Students Honor Veterans' Day

By KATHY KELLY

It was at 11 a.m. on Nov. 11, 2007, that the crowd rose to its feet, and showed their appreciation for those who have served our country. It was a moment of remembrance and reflection, a time to honor those who have given so much for our freedom. The event was held at the Searcy Veterans' Memorial, and it was a moving experience for everyone in attendance.

Hollywood Strike Affects Primetime

Since its origins on Monday, the Hollywood writers strike has currently arrested the production of eight primetime shows, most recently NBC's "The Office." Many other shows besides those canceled were affected, including "The Tonight Show with Jay Leno" on NBC, "Late Show with David Letterman" on CBS, and "Dancing with the Stars" on ABC. What may be the longest rally regarding this strike occurred at the Disney studio in Burbank, near Los Angeles, involving an estimated 60 individuals gathered; among this number were prominent producers, writers, or "union men," says Greg Daniels, the executive producer of "The Office.""It's a matter of principle," he said.

The source of this strike resulted from dealings between the Writers Guild of America and the Alliance of Motion Picture and Television Producers. On Monday, these organizations failed to negotiate a plan for payments from shows and DVDs offered online.

Iowa Man Recovers After Dog Shot Him

On Saturday, hunter James Haskell was shot in the leg when his dog triggered the trigger on his shotgun by stepping on it. According to Alan Foster, a spokesperson for the Iowa Department of Natural Resources, Haskell was hit in the calf on the opening day of the pheasant hunting season.

"He had surgery and is doing pretty well," said Foster. "He had a shotgun bullet that went toward his back hip, but then hit in the calf." Haskell placed his gun on the ground to retrieve the pheasant, a circle for exquisite views of this University of Tennessee, for astronomy outreach at the observatory.

FLU: Vaccination Should Be Done Each Year

FAQs About Flu Vaccinations

Q: Why should I get a flu vaccination each year?
A: Everyone is at risk of flu, which can lead to severe illness, hospitalization, and death. Each year, there are many flu viruses circulating, so the flu vaccine is updated to protect against the most likely viruses.

Q: Is there any risk or side effects when I get a flu vaccine?
A: Most flu vaccines are very safe, but some people may experience mild side effects such as soreness at the injection site or a low fever. These are usually gone within a few days.

Q: Who should not receive the flu vaccine?
A: People with certain medical conditions should not receive the flu vaccine unless it is recommended by their healthcare provider. This includes people who are pregnant or have certain heart or blood vessel conditions.

Q: What are the side effects of the flu vaccine?
A: The most common side effect of the flu vaccine is soreness at the injection site. Other rare side effects include muscle pain, joint pain, flushing, and headache.

Q: How effective is the flu vaccine?
A: The flu vaccine is typically 60-90% effective in preventing people who get vaccinated from getting sick with the flu. It's important to remember that not everyone will be protected every year.

Q: Where can I get a flu vaccine?
A: Flu vaccines are available from your healthcare provider, local pharmacies, and health centers. Check with your local health department to find a clinic near you.

Some Facts About Flu

According to the CDC, the flu is responsible for thousands of deaths each year, with children under the age of five and adults over the age of 65 most at risk. The flu can also lead to complications, such as pneumonia, that can be fatal. The flu is a highly contagious disease, and getting vaccinated is the best way to protect yourself and others around you.

Riverbark said.

"The mail room takes care of them either.

"The Daily Show with Jon Stewart" and other shows have been taking care of the blue bins in the student center, labeled for paper recycling. The custodians and the mailroom does not deal with the recycling.

"If the bins are going to be where they are, they should be used for their proper purpose. With the time to evaluate how it can be done better.

"The bins are made by the student center staff. They are just throwing away what they think it is, but it's not appropriate.

New York City's "GrooveLily,\" will be coming to the HU campus on Nov. 26. Dr. Cliff Gifford III, professor of music and director of chamber activities, said he heard the group a few times ago at a conference and was interested in this unique sound.

"The group is made of classical-composition music, musical theater, jazz and pop. It's a contemporary space where creative musicians give the boundaries laid down by words and music.

"Like rock, hip-hop and pop, Groovelily is a one-of-a-kind musical theater. We can't wait to see how it will go down.

hereas homosexuality has been a hot button issue in the local community for the past several years, it is in light of Harding's position—and all of the great women Harding has had in his cabinet—that this issue is raised.

I believe that it is now time for the United States to recognize homosexuals as a protected class under the law. This is not to say that homosexuals are superior to any other group of people, but rather that they should be provided with the same rights and protections as everyone else. It is time for the United States to acknowledge that homosexuals are equal citizens of this nation, and that they should be treated as such.

There are many reasons why the United States should recognize homosexuals as a protected class. First, it is simply the right thing to do. All citizens of this country should be treated equally, regardless of their sexual orientation. Second, it is in the best interest of the country. By acknowledging the rights of homosexuals, the United States can help to prevent discrimination and oppression. Finally, it is in the best interest of the individual. By recognizing the rights of homosexuals, the United States can help to ensure that all citizens are treated fairly and with respect.

I believe that the United States should take a leadership role in this issue. We should work to educate people about the rights of homosexuals and the importance of equality for all. We should also work to ensure that the laws of the United States are fair and just for all citizens, regardless of their sexual orientation.

In conclusion, I believe that the United States should recognize homosexuals as a protected class. This is the right thing to do, it is in the best interest of the country, and it is in the best interest of the individual. I urge the United States to take action on this issue as soon as possible.
Students Prepare For Future Success

By SARAH GRIFFIN

The work is for most students not just about academic success, but also a way of earning an income. A key for employees is to be a role model for younger students and by understanding the world of work, students establish a better understanding of the work experience as well. The work is also a good way to develop lessons and to work, as professionals whose work experience and the world of work are the world of work.

While there are many benefits that can be attained during the internship, there is an overall sense of gain afterwards.

Bryan Meiks, Dean of Business and Economics, said there are a lot of benefits to students who participate in internships. Students get exposure to the classroom, and through the classroom and other students, they get an understanding of the world of work. The students get exposure to the classroom and other students, they get an understanding of the world of work.

"Students who participate in internships get a sense of the world of work, and they can build on that experience. If they can build on that experience, they will be better prepared for the world of work," he said.

"The internship is a great way to gain hands-on experience," said Meiks. "We encourage students to participate in internships, and we encourage them to participate in internships and to participate in internships."

God's Power Visible In Nature's Splendor

By Samantha Nuttal

Aerodynamics, the study of how air flows around objects, is a complex phenomenon. Yet, in the simple beauty of the hummingbird, we can observe aerodynamics at work. The hummingbird's ability to hover in one spot without moving its wings is a marvel of engineering and biology.

The hummingbird's body is a perfect example of aerodynamics. Its small size allows it to fly in tight spaces and its wings are shaped to create lift. The hummingbird's wings beat at a rapid pace, creating a unique sound that is both pleasing and mesmerizing.

In addition to aerodynamics, the hummingbird's body is also a marvel of biology. Its wings are covered in tiny hairs that allow it to capture nectar from flowers. The hummingbird's tongue is also uniquely adapted to its diet, allowing it to suck nectar from flowers.

But it's not just the hummingbird's body that is impressive. The hummingbird's behavior is also a testament to the power of nature. It's ability to migrate thousands of miles each year, and return to the same spot where it was born, is a testament to its intelligence and adaptability.

As we observe the hummingbird, we are reminded of the complexity and beauty of the natural world. The hummingbird is a reminder of God's power and His handiwork. It's a reminder that even the smallest of creations can be a testament to the majesty of the Creator.

The hummingbird is a beautiful example of how God's power is visible in nature. It's a reminder that we should look to nature to understand the beauty and complexity of the world around us. The hummingbird is a reminder that we should always be open to learning and exploring the world around us.

If you've ever seen a hummingbird, you know that they are truly a wonder of nature. They are a reminder of God's power and His handiwork. They are a reminder that we should always be open to learning and exploring the world around us.
I've been a fan of classic board games. Parcheesi, Monopoly, and Clue are just some of the games that I love. You may not have played, like Bridge and Ludo. I've also been known to present in that genre to the public. We're not talking about the current version of Monopoly, which is a board game that is only inspired by the original game, but rather the version that I grew up playing. I love games that have been around for a long time. They have a unique charm that newer games, which are often more complex, lack. The first season of "Dead People," which is a new show with a great cast, is a perfect example of a game that has been around for a long time. It's a game that I grew up playing and now enjoy watching. The show follows the adventures of a group of friends who play the game every weekend and even on other days. They are a close-knit group who play together and enjoy each other's company. The game is a lot of fun and is a great way to spend time with friends. It's a game that I've been playing for a long time and will continue to play for as long as it's available. The show is a great way to introduce new generations to this classic game. So, if you're a fan of classic board games, I highly recommend watching "Dead People." It's a fun and entertaining show that will keep you on the edge of your seat. It's a game that has been around for a long time and will continue to be a favorite for many years to come.
