Apple charges new prices for iTunes

Apple launched a three-tiered price structure for iTunes on Thursday, allowing users to charge varying track prices for the first time.

Although Apple previously insisted on a single music price policy which charged $0.99 per song, the new price structure offers consumers the chance to charge $2.59, $0.99 or $0.29. Its price list will likely move now to $1.29, while single songs remain at $0.99 and older songs fall to $0.69.

Along with price changes, all songs will eventually be DRM-free. Apple currently has a deal with four major recording companies, including Universal and Warner Music, to sell unprotected music, but not to sell unprotected music to Amazon.

Apple main music rivals competitors, like Amazon MP3 Store, WalMart's digital music store and eBay, have all been selling DRM-free music for over a year.

Foreign aid program successful in AIDS relief

The AIDS death toll has decreased by 1.2 million from 2004 to 2007 in a dozen African countries thanks to the U.S. foreign aid program, researchers said Monday.

The President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief, started by George W. Bush in 2003, beyond the disease's damage every year of 2013 percent per year for three countries.

$18.8 billion has been spent in treatment effort for people already infected with AIDS and per capita, making it the largest single-country, largest-scale effort to combat a disease.

The new program and increased funding to $28 billion through 2013. This money will go toward the expansion of treatment programs to include bystanders and minors while removing the emphasis on casual transmission.

Hurricane season predictions released

Forecasters predict an average season of tropical storms and hurricanes in the Atlantic basin, which includes the Caribbean Sea and Gulf of Mexico.

Colorado State University's 2009 hurricane forecast team has predicted 12 named storms, half being hurricanes. Two of the anticipated hurricanes are expected to reach the level of major hurricanes (Category 3, 4 or 5) as peak wind speeds of 111 mph.

"Forecast models all forecast the probability of a major hurricane making landfall along the U.S. coast is 90 percent for the season and 52%," said Forecaster Phil Klotzbach of the Colorado State University.

Colorado State's Tropical Meteorology Project's predictions have been more accurate than most national and international hurricane models.

The hurricane season starts on June 1 and ends Nov. 30. The first named storm of the season will be Ana.

Beverage consumption linked to weight loss

Cutting back on sugary drinks may have a bigger impact on weight loss than cutting back on solid foods, researchers said in a study published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition.

The researchers studied changes in beverage consumption over 18 months in 18000 middle-aged to see the effect on the weight of 810 adults.

Beverages were divided into seven categories including sugar-sweetened beverages, diet drinks, milk, 100 percent fruit juice, coffee and tea with sugar, coffee and tea without sugar and alcoholic beverages.

Of these types, only sugar-sweetened drinks significantly affected weight loss. By cutting just one serving per day resulted in a weight loss of 1.1 pounds at 6 months and 1.4 pounds at 18 months.

Mary Harding events and organiza­tions already run by the group have involved careful planning and have been successful. Many students have expres­sed interest in helping others, but the group has found that with proper planning, the students can make a successful impact.

Mary Harding events and organiza­tions are popular among students because they provide an opportunity to help others while being an active member of Mary Harding. Students are encouraged to submit ideas for events and work together as a team to plan the events.

Mary Harding events and organiza­tions have been successful because they are well-planned, and students are encouraged to participate.

D James "Jimmy" Carr died April 1, 2009, in Las Vegas. He served as Harding’s assistant minister in 1979 and then as assistant to the president in 1973 until he retired in 1997. Before coming to Harding in 1970, he served in Florida in a number of different positions, including Visit Chaplain for Student Services for the entire state. He was active in the Lord’s church and served faithfully as an elder at the Gainesville congregation in Tallahassee, Fla. As assistant to the president and Jodie, Dr. Carr was responsible for many of the activities we now see in place. He was given the assignment under Dr. GCR to create the student program, which is now a vital part of the university. He was a leader in his community, and the people poured out their love for him before he was even formally inaugurated as president. He was the only one who could make it possible in our community as well. We were also responsible for promoting the idea of Harding establishing an on-campus career center, which is now Harding’s Place. It seems to me that the world would be made easier if I could be included in the famous Chapter of the Lord’s church. We’ve been through so much together. As a personal note, I encouraged him to consider a Bivocational career. He went on to Florida Southern College where I encouraged him to lead his P. O. D. P. He encouraged me to take a career as a daily basis. He was an example to me in terms of how to be a successful person enough.

What makes him feel happy is his love for people and the people not only in our community but in our state. It was a great man of faith. He was a great example to all of us. His life is an amazing legacy, and I know that he will be a reminder to all of us.

New Bisons contribute to improved season

by ROBBY CARMARSH

student reporter

You aren’t supposed to get better than last year, but the Bisons improved on your top five games from the honor of conference school history. You aren’t supposed to get another chance to replace five starters, including the guy who led the team in batting, home runs and RBIs. But you aren’t supposed to get better when you only improve by one. The Bisons won the season with a combined 12 starters in 30 games played. But like I said, you aren’t supposed to get another chance to replace five starters.

The Bisons were bolstered by senior left fielder Adam Delby and senior catcher Casey Moore, the newcomers have added spark, that Delby has turned into a burner, Redshirt freshman Kevin Ganus came into the season with big shoes to fill. Ganus began the season as the replacement at first base for the bigger Matt Wilson, who graduated, Ganus homered to left field for the Bisons and not look back. With splitting time between first and second base, the starting job is all good showing on the right side of the field. "Ganus is good at putting the ball in the hole," Delby said.

Students aren’t the only one underestimating the Bisons. Continuously playing in the conference tournament in Starkville, MS, the Bisons find themselves in the middle of the field heading a starting lineup that include the preseason of this team. With an edge because we have a lot of young talent" Ganus said. "That’s exactly what we need to break the mental barrier of the Bisons this year."

Bisons begin spring practices

"We've got some transfers in and we also have some freshmen, one thing Huckeba likes about this group is that we're seeing competition at quarterback for the first time," Ganus said. "We have good competition on the field. That makes you feel like there is a time for younger players to make plays. Whether they make plays or not, but one thing is certain, those kids can play."

Bradley hit .207. Compared to already started the team, but their contributions to the Bisons lineup. Much like in scoring position for Harding, Ganus is just one of many underclassmen that the Tar Heels' fifth handle from the start of the something that should never be forgotten. Campus cleans up for yearly festival

by HIGGIE DENZIN

What is the happiest place on Earth for Dirtbeaters? To ask this question is to invite a southern drawl response: "That's a hard one. I reckon it's got to be the Spring Sing show..."

Our interviewee, a senior named Jeff, is the sort of lighthearted soul who has the ability to turn the most mundane instances into something delightful. And so, as he stories of dirt and joy, he manages to turn our interview into something quite delightful as well.

Jeff: "Spring Sing is always a great time. The weather is usually nice, the music is great, and the shows are always entertaining. It's a great way to end the semester and look forward to the next one."

As the lights come up on the stage, the audience is greeted with a sea of red, white, and green. The atmosphere is electric, and the energy is contagious. As the performances begin, the crowd is swept away by the music and the energy of the performers.

Backstage brings Spring Sing to life

by BLAKE MATHews

It's spring, or at least that's what it feels like. The sun is shining, the flowers are blooming, and the air is filled with the sweet scent of springtime. The perfect time of year for a springtime event like Spring Sing.

Spring Sing is a big deal on campus. It's the biggest show of the year, and it attracts a large audience. The event is held on the main stage of the student center, and it features a variety of musical acts, including student bands, musical groups, and even some top-notch entertainment from outside the university.

The show is divided into several parts, each with its own theme. The first part is usually a mix of student bands and musical groups, followed by a variety of musical acts from outside the university. The show is capped off with a grand finale, which is always a highlight of the event.

The performers work hard throughout the fall and winter months to prepare for the show. They rehearse constantly, perfecting their acts and perfecting their music. And when the day arrives, they are ready to give their best performance.

For the hosts and hostesses, Spring Sing is a great opportunity to showcase their talents and entertain the audience. They work closely with the performers to ensure that the show runs smoothly and that the audience is entertained.

For the audience, Spring Sing is a great opportunity to enjoy some great music and have a good time. The show is a celebration of the end of the semester, and it's a great way to look forward to the next one.

Backstage, the performers are hard at work. They are rehearsing their acts, perfecting their music, and getting ready to give their best performance.

The show is a testament to the hard work and dedication of the performers, and it's a great way to bring the university community together. It's a time to relax, enjoy some great music, and have a good time.

Student Shifts From College To Cavalry and Back

By SARAH KYLE

n 2008, Burkhard decided to try his hand at the military, he wanted to be involved in something different. He told his mom that he would not join the infantry, which is one of the most dangerous parts in the military. However, Burkhard still found a way to be involved and told his mom that he had become a Cavalry Scout.

"She asked what you did, and I said, 'Well, we actually go ahead of the infantry,'" Burkhard said. "And she said, 'Yay Germany!' But she didn't say, 'Well, Walla Walla, nice.'"

After basic training and AIT, Burkhard was able to return to Harding, but she said the transition was less smooth.

"I went to Harding, where everybody is a made-up Christian environment," Burkhard said. "And then you go into the army where you have everyone who wants to be a straight-up Christian or they're kind of whatever. Then it was really tough because the language was totally different everybody came across.

Burkhard said that there was little to no church presence on his base, aside from chapel every Sunday that he was reluctant to attend and had no friend he could relate to in the army.

After noticing that some of his family members for the soldiers in Mississippi, the unit traveled to Victoria, Texas, and was called back home to Texas to perform search and rescue work.

Burkhard decided to stay on campus and eventually returned to campus, where he realized the impact of the hurricane. Burkhard was forced to drive on the wrong side of the road.

"We were driving south on the southbound side of I-30 because there were trees from the storm. We never had to stop for gas, and you can really just see one thing can wipe it all away," Burkhard said.

While Burkhard was currently promoted from deployment status, he said he was ready for deployment, despite initial fears. Burkhard also considered volunteering to deploy with the 72nd out of Texas in September, but he said he was grateful that he should finish college.

"My time will come. My time is over there in [Iraq] right now, they fell in August, and I'm stuck in school," Burkhard said. "But hopefully I get my chance to go."

As a social science major with plans to coach high school football, Burkhard said the National Guard was an alternative to military service and civilian life.

"There's a lot of things about a National Guard career where you can be a civilian, but you can do something that you're comfortable with," Burkhard said. "I think it's a pretty good situation because not only do you have a job, but you have a job in your home country as well."

"I had a real selfish attitude about being able to drive on the wrong side of the road. But then I realized how powerful and we've built a strong military, he wanted to be involved in something more than a desk job but had promised his mom that he would not join the military.
