Documentary seeks answers in murder case

Produced by HU professor, 'Missing Micah' explores scenario surrounding 2006 alumna Micah Rine Pate's death

by BETHANY NICHOLSON

It's a good mix of having the confidence to know you can do something while having the humility to know there's still lots you don't know.

-Matt Mead, senior, marketing and finance major

In addition to photography, Butterfield said they found in Micah Pate's journal mention of Thomas Pate's last call to his wife was on his way to the police station.

Butterfield said, "I suggested to the Rhode that we make a documentary on the life and death of Micah. My intention was especially from the addiction standpoint."

According to Blackstone, they are letting interviews from friends, family members of both sides, the authorities and even Thomas Pate himself tell the story. Butterfield will use Micah Pate's journal entries to piece together the rest.

"It would be a project, what can we learn from this?" Butterfield said.

"It's not a collection, but then there is. "What were the things that were important to Micah?" Butterfield said.

Blackstone said, accurate or not, lessons can be learned from the plans on putting these lessons in the documentary."

"It was a murder, what can we learn from this?" Blackstone said.

"But, it's not a mystery and we may never really know what happened."
Highlighter Run gives thanks to donors

by REBECCA NEELY

Harding University will host its own version of the “Color Run” called the “Highlighter Run” on March 23. The race is in conjunction with “Say Thanks Day,” a day set aside to thank donors for their contributions to the university.

Young Alumni Associate Jordan Smith came up with the idea for the Highlighter Run after the Color Run garnered popularity. “We wanted to do something fun to highlight the donors who contribute to the university, and also give back to the student body,” Smith said.

Registration for the run will be held in front of the Gunas Athletic Center at 8:30 a.m., on March 23 and the race starts at 10 a.m. at the GNC. There will be water stations at each mile marker to splatter partici­pants with paint.

“I am not looking forward to being covered in paint with friends and highlighting what others have made possible for me through giving,” junior Julie Spann said.

Runners are asked to wear shorts and a white T-shirt. Parents are encouraged to wear clothing or accessories to help participants know their family members.

Just because a person has his or her concealed weapon permit does not mean he or she is going to be proficient in the use of his or her weapon, Houston said. A person may have obtained a concealed weapon permit but may not be up to standards in the use of it or they may have never used it in a stressful situation.

If given the option, Houston, who has concealed carry license, said there is a possibility he would carry but won’t on campus, but she would like to give much thought to potential fandom of doing so. Houston said if Harding were to go in the direction of having more armed staff, therecommendation is for the form of a certified police officer department on campus.

Although Harding’s position has not been mentioned, students are weighing in with their opinions on the topic.

Junior political science major Lanague Pfister said since more colleges prohibit guns or any kind of weapons that could act as protection, she thinks having more armed officials would keep people from lacing on campus.

“If a shooter or any violent person knows that people on the campus or in the school were armed then that would make them to think their decision to come on and start randomly shooting at people,” Pfister said. “We’re law-abiding citizens, especially on college campuses. We all grow adults; I feel like abiding the staff and faculty to have guns is a really good idea.”

Junior Calvin Graham said he thinks professors should not be allowed to carry handguns because it would distract from the purpose of community, learning and sharing wisdom. Graham said when a student is asking whether or not their teacher has a gun in their desk or a holster

“We wanted to do something fun to highlight the donors who contribute to the university, and also give back to the student body,” Smith said.

President David Burk said he appointed a committee headed by Dr. David Collins to look at the recent legislation.

“We will discuss the matter at our next board meeting in early April,” Burk said. “I will then make a recommendation to our Board of Trustees at their next regular meeting May 5, 2013. This is a complex issue and it is important that there be a careful consideration of all of the facts before making any decision.”

ARRAS, OHIO — “The Innocent, the Staggered Killer” Richard Beasley, who was convicted of murdering three men who responded to his Craigslist ad to work on a cattle farm in 2011, was sentence­red the death penalty by an Ohio jury on Wednesday. Last week, Beasley was found guilty on 26 counts of aggrav­ated murder, kidnapping, aggravated robbery and other charges according to CNN. Beasley will be televised remotely next Tuesday.

JERUSALEM — Paulette Obama traveled to Israel on Wednesday for the first time since taking office in 2008. Obama was greeted by Tsvi by Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and President Shimon Peres. According to CNN, the two leaders discussed extending U.S. military assistance to Israel for another 10 years part of the current agreement that expires in 2017. Among the discussions were Syria, the Palestinian­inese reconciliation, and how to handle the current threat from Iran missile program.

A one-fourth-size Newsweek page is dedicated to the topic of the day: "Women Still Can’t Have It All." The page is part of an ongoing series that explores the challenges and opportunities faced by women in the workplace. The page features an article by Lyndsey Ruble titled "Moral of the Story," which discusses the importance of finding a balance between work and family. The article highlights the experiences of four individuals: Heidi Perry, a military wife; М. С. H. Law, a social worker; Marie Vos, a CFO; and Marie Stroud, a professor. Each individual shares their perspective on how they manage their professional and personal lives. The page also includes a section titled "Defining Short-Term Missions," which provides an update on the status of the mission. The page concludes with a call to action, urging readers to "Let us strive the lost, in every place and every time."
Solid lead off for baseball

WHILE students were beginning their spring break on Friday, March 8, the baseball team was preparing for their GAC doubleheader against Eastern Arkansas at Jerry Field.

"Every college athlete knows going into a season the time and sacrifice it takes to play at this level," senior third baseman Billy Navarette said. "The majority of us are all a little bit褪色. We’re at a point in our career where we love what we do, that’s it.

The Bisons’ next game was March 15 and 16 in Magnolia, Ark., for GAC play against Southern Arkansas. Both teams were nationally ranked, the Bisons’ ranked 28th, and the Mustangs came in at 26th in the latest Collegiate Baseball Top 20 poll.

They started the series Friday at 2 and ended representing the Bisons with a double-header.

So, they’re big games.

The team placed their fourth straight game tournament Wednesday at national-ranked Delta State in Cleveland, Miss. They lost the game 2-0 despite allowing four hits.

Harding will host Arkansas-Monticello in a double header beginning Saturday at noon and in a third game Sunday at 2 p.m.
Dunk away, King James

Dunk away, King James. The men’s and women’s tennis teams are off to asolid start this season. Both the men and the women have the energy to come out strong in both matches. Our preparations include a lot of focus and hard work playing against each other in practice. This past weekend we were at Harding’s March 28. We will be in Harding’s April 11. Our goal is to stay focused on our practice and to bring it out to the court and give 100 percent, and when it’s over, bring home the W (winning). We are going to get there together. We need to bring our game and our team and our trust and our confidence. Our men and women teams both beat against Lebowa-Owen 250-100 March 5. On March 7, the women’s team beat against Lebowa-Owen 250-100. In a previous tournament, both teams came away with fashionable wins. James, Bryant, and Johnson said they will and should show their talents as they please, it just blows my mind when I see them do that I believe we can win. The teams are starting to click with each other, so we are more effective as a team. We are able to read each other better, so we are more likely to win. If James decides on his offer, and remain in the NBA, and not being involved in the dunk contest next year’s dunk contest winner, he will be in Harding’s favor if the NBA isn’t bringing havoc to the near, everyone locks in on him. During the halftime of an NBA game a few weeks ago, Johnson said he will and should show his talents as he pleases, it just blows my mind when I see them do that I believe we can win.

It was physically painful and emotionally draining, Isaac-Boyce. “I wouldn’t wish it on my worst enemy. The pain was like a kick in the gut. It was just there, and I had to re-learn my whole life.”

Assistant professor of music and director of activities at Dr. Burch will publish a children's book this summer, and it already scheduled for publication as well. The idea to write a children's book came from his experience as a father. Parker said, "I am doing it on my laptop and he wanted to see what they would think of it." He founded a nonprofit to help children get

"I do relate quite a bit with singing. As a performer, I find it mysterious, and so I get it all done relatively fast, so while someone might watch television for a couple hours, I'll write a children's book in an afternoon."

After he wrote the first story for his daughter, Parker could not help but wonder what would happen if he ever had a book to publish, he, too, could publish to see what would happen. He decided to go to classes that give professional services.

"At the same time, I started working on an essay telling that my book has been accepted for publication, Parker said. "I literally screamed in my ear all the way. I'm so proud of my children that he is motivated to be a good father."

As expected, much has happened in Hollywood since my last column, and I have been busy enough to avoid dating during all this. From Lil’ Wayne’s return to “Juice Timbrook” on “Late Night with Jimmy Fallon,” I know you will be devastated.

Last week, Lil’ Wayne suffered a seizure while shooting a music video with Nicki Minaj. He was rushed to the hospital shortly thereafter. On March 13th, he was re-elected to the New Orleans City Council.

The event was attended by family and friends six days in attendance. Lil’ Wayne supposedly had to be taken to the stomach pump at least two times as much fear on the occasion, which is the main ingredient in the soup recipe known as “sizzurp.” To support various causes, “sizzurp” has been on sale throughout the world, according to Nicole Jackson.

What should I wear to club formals? This is a question that always makes girls feel anxious. Please note that this is not a joke, and I am not talking about the color of your dress. Try to pick something that is not too short as well. Enjoy your night. Do not spend your money on a dress that drags on the floor all night. Not only will it be uncomfortable but also a disaster for the evening’s theme.
