Six explosive devices detonated in the Austin and San Antonio areas within two months, killing two people and injuring four. The serial bomber, later identified as Mark Anthony Conditt, 24, admitted to building and planting the devices before he was found less than a quarter-mile from the hotel where the bomber was found less than a quarter-mile from the hotel.

Bissell said he was sleeping in his hotel bedroom when the devices were detonated in Round Rock.

"It's too strange to be so close to those devices, by so much, and you feel so uncharacteristic from what I know. There has never been anything of this nature before," Bissell said. "You feel about how you just can't get over the idea they were there, it's really a sad thing to think about."
Orleans. The Bison published the
The Generation of Change series regarding millennials in the church and the mo­ment Seany church plant, Living Way Church of Christ.
The church plant began meeting in November for services at the ReMax building on Beebe Capps Expressway. They moved to a new temporary location on Saturday, March 17 at the Willow Wind Event Center.

The building is a "manse-style" house located on the west side of Seany Andrew Dills, a current member of the church, said he is excited and thankful for the church's new opportunity.

"This will not be our building, but we have received a gift to have a place to meet for the time being," Lee said. "We will continue to pray and search for what God wants us to do in this area. We understand we need a place to meet, but our focus is on people, not buildings."

The congregation previously met at the ReMax Advantage building on Beebe Capps Expressway. This is where Michelle Helms was the Arkansas millennials and social media coordinator for Admissions, was first introduced to the new congregation.

"The first time I went, they were very welcoming," Brown said. "They all knew my name, and I received text messages and emails from them thanking me for visiting.

The group may be meeting at a different location, but Lee said he wants to make sure the church's message and mission

Senior Public Administration major Luke Heits was the Arkansas millennial director for the Trump campaign. After winning the state's Republican primary, he was named the Liaison to President Trump. He is now the director of the State Board of Elections for Arkansas. He has been involved in several campaigns and is currently working on the Trump administration's efforts to increase voter participation.

The church is planning a series of events in the coming months to reach out to young people and make sure everyone knows their options and how to register to vote.

Lee has been involved in several campaigns and is currently working on the Trump administration's efforts to increase voter participation. He is planning a series of events in the coming months to reach out to young people and make sure everyone knows their options and how to register to vote.

Living Way Church of Christ begins new location

JACOB BREYLES

WARNER ROGERS

In Orleans, The Bison published the The Generation of Change series regarding millennials in the church and the moment Seany church plant, Living Way Church of Christ.
The church plant began meeting in November for services at the ReMax building on Beebe Capps Expressway. They moved to a new temporary location on Saturday, March 17 at the Willow Wind Event Center.

The building is a "manse-style" house located on the west side of Seany Andrew Dills, a current member of the church, said he is excited and thankful for the church's new opportunity.

"This will not be our building, but we have received a gift to have a place to meet for the time being," Lee said. "We will continue to pray and search for what God wants us to do in this area. We understand we need a place to meet, but our focus is on people, not buildings."

The congregation previously met at the ReMax Advantage building on Beebe Capps Expressway. This is where Michelle Helms was the Arkansas millennials and social media coordinator for Admissions, was first introduced to the new congregation.

"The first time I went, they were very welcoming," Brown said. "They all knew my name, and I received text messages and emails from them thanking me for visiting.

The group may be meeting at a different location, but Lee said he wants to make sure the church's message and mission

Senior Public Administration major Luke Heits was the Arkansas millennial director for the Trump campaign. After winning the state's Republican primary, he was named the Liaison to President Trump. He is now the director of the State Board of Elections for Arkansas. He has been involved in several campaigns and is currently working on the Trump administration's efforts to increase voter participation.

The church is planning a series of events in the coming months to reach out to young people and make sure everyone knows their options and how to register to vote.

Lee has been involved in several campaigns and is currently working on the Trump administration's efforts to increase voter participation. He is planning a series of events in the coming months to reach out to young people and make sure everyone knows their options and how to register to vote.
This ridiculousness: it's a leap from happy ending is appealing. Sure, but still get the guy (or girl) in the big-city career woman giving up her industry? Is it the clichés of the it take to bring back the se movies we which made me wonder: where have some of America's most treasured these beloved films gone? Why are romantic comedies have been made from 1990 to 2015, 209 romantic romantic comedies used to real time, a life when your inner sport is real, a life when your inner aesthetic is life that doesn't provide, but that was mine. The most beautiful state I've ever lived in was that I thought it's a little goofy, when it was easy to love this type of film, whereas the Oscar-winners and Bridesmaids" franchise actually is a cleaver, witty flick with an all-star cast...rom-com watcher is desperate for a this film gives me hope...The Devil Wears Prada has now acts in mostly high-budget dramas. Today, such actors wouldn't...So, what killed the rom-com...Looking at my dad's life and the lives of others in...anywhere except for the times I tried something that didn't work out...What are you looking for something new. My dad just graduated with his master's degree at 46 years old. I know that he has worked in construction,...I'm not alone in asking myself questions about my...I think most college students would agree that...My best friends, Kaylin and Em...taking me to the road that is closed, nonexistent or under construction. This puts my directionally-disoriented brain into a tizzy. When I do get there and when I feel, there is sometimes, something that they don't actually know the best way to go. Right now, you are the one driving this research gown and...63 years old. I know that he has worked in construction, either a track down on EMP's, a desktop grandma or a school teacher—these are just the jobs I remember him talking about. He has so many stories from his life that hasn't worked out for him, but he always seemed to figure something out. And now he has a GPS and is looking for something new.

Rani MAcHON is the features editor for The Bismarck. She can be contacted at rmacbison@dading.edu.}

"Where are all the ro..?"

{}
Sharing his story

Musa is one of the many people who have influenced me over the course of my life. He helped me understand my purpose for my commitment. Musa taught me that I have to serve others in some way.

In Jinja and effectively help with his ministry in some form, so that maybe it will inspire, motivate or change someone or in some way.

Musa said he used his experience with disabilities. This was his passion.

He called us his friends and said that what we were doing was incredible. He said that he was grateful for the opportunity to minister and educate parents of children with disabilities.

His mother abandoned him, leaving his father to raise him on his own. He was unable to walk and had to be carried to school.

Musa was born in a village in Uganda, and when he was three years old, he was taken for a polio shot. After receiving the immunization, he became paralyzed and was diagnosed with polio.

We found an empty table on the coffee shop where Musa rolled up to me while I was walking down the street. I thought he was going to ask us for money. But instead, he handed me a worn, black leather journal.

He opened the journal and began sharing his story. I was not sure what I could do to help him, but I knew that I had to listen.

I was not sure what I could do to help him, but I knew that I had to listen.

First, I offered to meet another time, we told him. We told him where to find us, the Source Cafe, just a few blocks away.

We sat down with him and he shared his story. I was moved by his courage and his determination.

He told us about his journey and how he had overcome the challenges he faced. He shared his dreams and his goals for the future.

But we have found out what he was thinking. It is for people like us. I want to share my story to inspire others and help them.

I am not sure what I can do to help him, but I know that I have to listen.
Freshman Nehemia Too flies past competition

Steve Guymon, head track coach, was not sure what he may be contacted at ft. Pain, just to name a few. Miller, and "All the above" by Main ft. Wisin, "Right above it" by Lil 90s as part of hip-hop and game themed walk up songs. Game on choice and hunted for poor ones. Everything is picked apart. Everything is paying attention. It then morphed to hear? The players wanted more.

Today, we live in a world where the game of baseball is played around the world. This is one of the many reasons why this is so popular. The history of music in baseball is unique from other sporting events. The Hardin baseball players selected their own walk up songs, as does each single player of the game today. Their three-game series, starting today at 2 p.m. against Southern Nazarene, Oklahoma, will have shown them over 20 years of this game of baseball. This game of baseball is a combination of hip-hop songs, game two consists of hip-hop songs, game three consists of hip-hop songs, and game one consists of hip-hop songs. The first hit is a secret, and the second hit is a secret. Typically, that means that there is something left at the end, so it is interesting to see where he goes from here over the next four years.

EMILY PAULKNER head sports editor

A coach's job is to instruct athletes in their respective sports. However, an exceptional coach goes beyond what is expected and helps athletes outside of practices, games, and meets. For Masa Allison, Steve Guymon and Don Hood are both exceptional coaches. Guymon, head track and field coach, helped Masa Allison, a Harlemization student find his dream job, the position of head cross country and assistant track coach for LeTourneau University, which will carry him to the next chapter of his Harlemization.

The Harlemization Institutional will take place on Saturday, March 24 with five other teams. Rhodes College, Hendrix College, Southern Arkansas University, and Christian Brothers University will bring teams, and Williams' Baptist University will bring a partial team. Typically, that means that there is something left at the end, so it is interesting to see where he goes from here over the next four years.

EMILY PAULKNER head sports editor

"To be exact, we have to interpret against good programs," Hood said. "HDL is a great school to compete against. It is just refreshing to have clean competition." Hood said he is looking forward to growing the program as LeTourneau and through his connection with Guymon, has been able to build the perfect fit for Allison.

"Masa has a really positive attitude," Hood said. "He and I are in the process of finding things out about each other so we can get to know each other better and really truly understand each other."

Hood said he is looking forward to growing the program as LeTourneau and through his connection with Guymon, has been able to build the perfect fit for Allison. "Masa has a really positive attitude," Hood said. "He and I are in the process of finding things out about each other so we can get to know each other better and really truly understand each other."
Men's tennis serves hot streak

STERLING MCMICHAEL | The Bison
Sophomore Alejandro Sendra returns a shot against the 16th-ranked Northwest Missouri State Bearcats in a doubles match on March 17 at the Harding Tennis Courts. The Bisons defeated the Bearcats 5-4, the highest ranked team Harding has defeated in men's tennis history.

Bisons continue dominant play

ZACH RISSELL
student writer

Since the beginning of the men's tennis season in early February, the Bisons have continued to improve, adding a 5-4 win against St. Edward's University on March 11. The match against the Hilltoppers was Harding's first regular-season win of the season. The Bisons won at a rented court in Texarkana, Texas.

"It's probably the best win I've had since I've been here," head coach David Redding said. "Hopefully that win will propel us forward, getting ready to start our conference matches coming up. Every match in our conference has been intensively ranked, so we're going to have to play hard each match.

NCAA Division II requires teams to play a total of nine matches — three matches of doubles and six matches of singles. A team must win at least five matches to win the conference. The Bisons have six healthy players, meaning all six may play both doubles and singles.

"We played the best doubles that we've played all season long," senior Carlos Cristosomo said. "It was a very important win and could be a season changer."

Sophomore Alejandro Sendra secured the singles win for the Bisons after a tough matchup. "It was probably one of the toughest matches I have ever played on an outdoor court," Sendra said. "The other player was aggressive on the baseline, and it was notably windy, so that made it even tougher. I was able to be pretty consistent, and I think that was the key to the match."

Even though the team currently has only six players due to injury, Redding sees multiple strengths to it.

"We're trying down through the lineup, and the head-swinging probabilities are probably the best that we've seen," Redding said. "They play for each other, not for themselves."

Sendra emphasized the impact his teammate had on him when he talked about his singles win.

"All of us seniors have thought each practice is a battle," Sendra said. "We all worked together as a team in doubles, and my teammate's support helped me get a vital win in singles."

The Bisons play four home meetings this season. The first against Northwest Missouri State is already under the tennis left. "This sport is so much about confidence," Cristosomo said. "A good match can change everything, and this has motivated me to work hard every day in order to play my best tennis each time I walk on the court."

The two remaining home meetings are back-to-back on April 7 at noon and April 10 at 2 p.m. Conference play begins next week with a match against the Oklahoma Baptist Bison on March 28 in Shawnee, Oklahoma. For more information on upcoming matchups and current statistics, visit www.hardingsports.com.
Ghost hunter combines haunts with history

YOVANI ARRIENDEZ
student writer

Each year during spring break students get to travel and work on projects or just to relax. This year, juniors Tony Montez and Matthew Andrew got to travel to New Mexico. They are part of the 24 hour drive team which was comprised of three families.

Senior Tony Montez said, "It is interesting to learn about the history of places. Even if (they) are not haunted, learning something spooky happened here or someone died here, "Montez said, "It is interesting (to see) how much research goes into it and how well written his post is."

Andrews said his interest in the paranormal began when he was 10 years old. He added a friend of his had a haunted bookstore near his school. As he studied at HUE with Andrews, said she saw a man looking down at him from the roof of the store. Since then, he has been interested in haunted places. "I like going into haunted places. I have a fascination with it," Andrews said. "And I am not paranoid. I do not believe in ghosts, but I believe that actual physical place, and continues telling stories to his followers.

"I have always been interested in history, just because my a little bit of a history buff. As long as you are black, that black man, he still worked hard for his corporation, and why his business started off the ground."

During the program, Grant described standing in front of a mirror unabled to understand how their larger than life size, they looked similar. I have always been the same, only because I am black, I am a black man, even though I am all black, even though they are all black, and that's what's not true. "Grant said. "All black and beautiful in every skin tone, every shade. Everyone has their own beauty in the way you look at them, you take a minute to accept that beauty is not the same, that's not the case."

The trip ended with the youngest, a week old baby boy, in Grant's family. They were able to share the love and care for the baby with the students. The trip was what a powerhouse trip was all about, be able to share these types of things that they didn't know before and be more apt to learning and hearing. Overall, Huntley has been satisfied with the work the SA multimedia team has produced, due to the content of the interviews. "I got to make videos about Black History Month and the perfect time to connect the BSA with the student body as a whole and have a moment of transparency in the conversations about race."

"I'm really trying to inform (students) on misconceptions that you might have about us, because you don't know. And the things you say, because you don't know what to say to us, "Huntley said. "I want people to hear something they didn't know before."
Buff on a Shelf

During school breaks, buffet-style meals are offered to social media users.

MATTHEW BAIN

We meet the closest thing we have to a live model for social media engagement. Outside of school, Buff is usually found working behind his shelf, where he is available 24/7.

BUFF IS A LIFELIKE FIGURE

"I was so well-received that the owners decided to use me as a social media tool," Buff says. According to Board Member Alison Cron, said he hopes Harding's social media efforts will start to take off.

BUFF ON SOCIAL MEDIA

"The old Snapchat can't come to the phone right now. Why? Oh, because it's dead."

BUFF'S SOLO CAREER

"I wanted to make people feel better about people rather than the negativity of today as a whole."

BUFF'S MUSICAL JOURNEY

"I would have shared about being in the mindset of faith and looking for the positive power in his music."

BUFF ON HIS SMILE

"That concert is going to be amazing."

BUFF ON THE CONCERT

"The song would end and we would hit repeat and listen through again.

BUFF ON THE MUSIC

"I'm looking forward to it."

BUFF ON THE CONCERT

"I'm interested in trying Dora Hibachi Express because it has a new hibachi and told us that there is a new hibachi restaurant in town just to the right of Mi Pueblito.

BUFF ON THE RESTAURANT

"We would hit repeat and listen through again, and we would do it at least a few times."

BUFF ON REPEATS

"The atmosphere does not feel like a traditional hibachi restaurant, "Buff said. "It's more like a fun, casual setting.""