I realize you are in a great push to work on your book during this year off, but I would like to ask a special favor of you. Would you be able to review Volume IV of "New Directions in Theology Today" which is entitled The Church, by Kolin W. Williams? This series is published by the Westminster Press of Philadelphia and this particular title was published in 1968. It is a paperback book that sells for $2.45.

If you could get to it within the next thirty days I would consider it a personal favor. You may already have another book that you have recently read that you think would be extremely pertinent to college students who are Christians or to church members in the renewal of the church--if so, go ahead and review it and I will get someone else for this volume on the Church. Thanks for encouraging our many readers through your efforts as one of our reviewers.
