2-18-1970

To: Jennings Davis, Jr.

John Allen Chalk

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.harding.edu/hst-chalk-personal

Recommended Citation
MEMO: Jennings Davis

FROM: John Allen Chalk

DATE: February 18, 1970

Jennings, I would like for you to do at least one, or more, book reviews for our Campus Evangelism Book Review service before you leave for Germany. I know the time is going to be short but I would like for you to do at least one new book, and then another that you have already read but is of a recent publication date.

The one I'd like for you to read and review, according to the guidelines I sent you last month, is a new book by John Howard Griffin, author of Black Like Me. The title of this new book, published by Pflaum Press, Dayton, Ohio, 1969, is The Church and the Black Man. It is a paperback book that sells for $2.95. I'm sure you can find it somewhere in the Los Angeles area as it is now available in most bookstores. Then, I would like for you to choose some book that you think has significance for Christian students and review it—some book that you have read in recent months that would still be fresh to you. Your contributions to the Book Review service would be especially meaningful to our student readers, as well as many adults whose lives have been touched by your ministry. If you could do this within the next month, I would really appreciate it.

I am keeping your Trimester in mind. I hope I can refer some students to you.