Dear Dave:

Thank you so much for the generous offer of your camp at Red River this past August. Sue and I, along with the children, had looked forward with so much interest for a few days of rest and relaxation there. We have a very hectic pace to maintain here in Abilene, as you might well expect, and therefore felt a real need to enjoy the quietness of your place there.

Unfortunately, at the last minute the schedule here would not allow our going. I called the man in charge of your place in Red River to let him know that we would not be there. I deeply regretted, however, that the late notice probably meant that no one else could utilize this facility. I hope this did not cause any inconvenience. If there was some additional cost incurred because of this cancellation, I will be more than happy to take care of it. Just let me know.

Thank you so much for allowing us the opportunity to come. We would have liked nothing better than being there. Sue and I send you, your lovely wife and family, our best regards and prayers. We hope that your trip to Europe this summer was a meaningful one and that on your return you found things in good shape at home.

Your brother,

John Allen Chalk
