Dear Sue and John Allen:

Not because Ken McDaniel gave me "The Monitor," but for several other reasons do we have right to recall our visit with you. Yours is a great friendship, and for it we are thankful.

Betty and I are genuinely thankful for that visit we had in your home. No one serves with greater ease and beauty than you do, Sue, and the food was just as delicious as it was lovely. My congratulations to you on being such a wonderful hostess; the appointments of your home, the loveliness of its appearance all radiate the genuineness of the character and love for the better things of life that both you and John Allen exemplify.

To have seen your children was still a further blessing. We believe you are giving them a marvelous heritage and we are thankful that you are transferring to their hands the legacy of a great faith and a noble service.

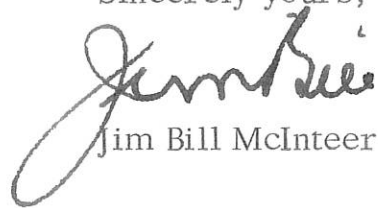

John Allen, we continue to be delighted with the quickness of your mind, the ability you possess in communication and the strength that you bring to any pulpit whether it is in a radio station or in a church building. God is using you mightily as one of the outstanding young men of our time, and for your complete abandonment of yourself to His cause we are thankful. May the Lord let you see some of the richness of the service you are rendering and reap some of the fruit justly deserved by virtue of the extension of those labors.

To have been in Abilene was to have been in a spot of great joy, and our thanks to you for further enhancing it by the visit to your home. My thanks for your coming to the chapel service, and for the repeated appearances you had there at the church building, Sue, and the kind comments you extended.

Yours is a great family for the Lord, we are thankful to know such people, and it is with gratitude in our hearts that we can remember before God's throne the talented folk of our time like unto you. May God ever bless you, use you mightily for Him, and enable you to do richly beyond that which you think could possibly be accomplished. Remember us when you pray even as we are bound to remember you in ours.

Sincerely yours,
