Dear Raymond:

I learned yesterday from Evelyn Stites that you were in Asheville at a treatment center there. I have followed with deep concern your illness of the past several months and have prayed for you on a number of occasions.

I have had knowledge of other people going to this center and believe that you will find the very best of care there. I have always appreciated our friendship and still treasure very deeply the many opportunities for association that I enjoyed with you and your family during our seven years in Cookeville.

As soon as I learned you had gone to Nashville, I decided to write to let you know of our continuing concern and interest in you. My prayer is that through the efforts of your doctors and through your own cooperation with them, that you will be able to find the necessary keys to a happy, successful life. It is with deep concern and genuine interest that I write this letter.

Sincerely yours,

John Allen Chalk
