Dear Don:

Thank you for answering my request so promptly. I appreciated very much the bibliographical material given regarding fuel cells. We are in the process of looking up these materials and I think we will find them all, or at least the major ones, here in Abilene.

Your explanation was very clear about power supplies. I found many good things that can be properly used in my sermons. One idea that I had missed, but about which I had some hint, regarded the matter of energy converters. I now see this as an important part of understanding the whole problem of power supplies.

I will be sending you a copy of the sermon when it is finished.

Your remarks regarding the situation at the church are distressing. I think I understand the reason for the problem and regret deeply that this lack of training and general human understanding is causing so much trouble. Of course, this is the reality of life, especially when lived by those of us who are less sensitive and prepared than we should be.

Please express my regards to your lovely wife. We would have liked for her to visit in our home also. Perhaps next time this can happen. Thank you for coming our way and thank you for the help you have already been. Your proposal for a discussion group is an exciting one. Possibly it can take place sometime in the future. Thank you for writing.

Fraternally yours,

John Allen Chalk
