Dear John Allen:

Your letter meant so much to me, and I appreciate your writing. I have remembered you several times in my prayers in the great undertaking that is before you, and I know that you will discharge your responsibility in a great way. Rest assured that I will continue to remember you in my prayers. I'd like to sit down and have a nice long visit with you, and maybe we can do so in time to come.

The Lord has used you mightily, and I earnestly pray that He may forever do so. You have a most unusual ability, and I sincerely believe that hundreds of people will be turned to the Lord through your great preaching and interest in the souls of men.

Let me say again that I appreciate so much your letter and the spirit that motivated it. May God bless you in every way, not only in your radio preaching, but in all that you do for the Cause of our Lord. The next time you come this way, call me if you have time and maybe we can get together for a cup of coffee. In the meantime, my very best personal wishes to you, and the greatest success possible in your radio preaching!

Sincerely,

George W. Bailey
