Dear Jimmie:

I continue to receive wonderful reaction to Action everywhere I go. It is probably the most widely read paper in our brotherhood. This places an even heavier responsibility on those of us who have any part in its production.

I noticed on Page 4 of the October issue your concern about the effect of the Worlds Fair Project on the Manhattan church building. I am personally convinced that the Worlds Fair Project helped the Manhattan work if anything. In a future article for Action, I am also going to explore the need to utilize other methods of evangelism as opposed to the church building-centered type of work. We may need one big office and training complex with a thousand "house churches" in the New York area.

God bless you and your continued work. Enclosed is an article for the November issue.

Fraternally yours,

John Allen Chalk
