

We're

Carrying the Torch

We were from different states and countries, members of various social clubs, and representatives of 70 academic majors; and although our individuality shone through, we united ourselves with the purposes of Christ and functioned as one student body. We laughed, cried, grew, and changed together; but in the midst of our struggles, we faced the challenge of keeping our faith alive. Each student had individual impact on the lives of others in the Harding community, but the spirit that unified us will survive the years as we continue the tradition of carrying the Harding torch. ♦

SENIORS

Getting to Know One Another

"Getting to know one another" was the focus of the 1992 senior class, according to David Bell, class president, from Pensacola, Fla. He said that the emphasis for the 1992 senior class was to go beyond social clubs and current groups of friends in order to get to know one another in the class.

A senior retreat was planned at Camp Wyldewood where seniors could get together and have an opportunity to share their plans for the future. A seasoned alumni and a recent graduate were invited to speak about what to expect in the working world.

Darren Bonham, graduate assistant with the Alumni Office, was the faculty advisor for the senior class.

Senior week was held April 20-22. This year, senior week was held on three days instead of a full week as in the past. Representatives of the senior class addressed the student body the week before senior week began.

Although the decision for a class project was not made until late in the year, plans for a timely gift to Harding on behalf of the class were in the making. Bell said he hoped that the project would be a monetary gift for one year. Seniors offering a gift came from the graduating class in May, August or December, 1992. Bell indicated that if the gift was given all in one year, it would be easier for the pledges to meet their goal. Five-year pledges in the past have been received about 30 percent of the time, he said.

Carmelita Bandy, the vice president for the senior class, had to move to Houston during the school year, so plans were to select a working committee from the senior class to work with Bell on the project.

ALPHABETIZING. Classes editor Juanita Campbell sorts and sticks the last student photos for her section. Her job was difficult as she was responsible for alphabetizing and organizing all student photos.

How To Look It Up

Where is my picture? Many students go thumbing through the classes session and try to look for their picture, but when they get to their "class", they find that they do not appear there. Then frantically they turn to the index to find that they are not in "right" class. Well, this is why.

When the Petit Jean staff classifies your picture we use the fall list of students, and your classification when you come to school is where you are classified. If you are one of those fortunate students that is a semester behind, and your classification changes in the December instead of in May you will not be where you expect to find yourself.

The reason why we have to stay with the Registrar's list is that the Petit Jean is a historical document, and can be used in a court of law. The staff has to go with the accuracy of this list. We realize that we will not have everyone pictured in the book, but one of our rules is to use the "correct" list. If for some reason you are not in the proper class, and your classification changes in May, then you need to go to the registrar and fix it with their list. The editors on this staff are human too. We do make mistakes. We just want you to know that we are doing all that we can to make this book historically pleasing to you. ♦

In Victory Or Defeat All Who Ran Won

In the 1991 fall semester 45 students began the task of running for a class office. Upset stomachs, long nights without sleep, and lots of Roloids were in store for these students over the next two weeks as they filled out forms and planned campaign strategies. Each student was required to petition 50 students for their support in the election. Visibility was the biggest factor in campaigning, and there was no better place to campaign than the student center. Although the requirements to run were not too difficult, it took a lot of hard work, determination and courage to attempt the task.

For three days, the 45 students promoted themselves with creative slogans, pictures and whatever else was necessary to raise the support of other students. Once the campaigning was over, all the candidates could do was sit and wait. Awaiting the totals was hard on many of the candidates; even the most confident had their doubtful moments. Scott Baine, who won the freshman S.A. representative position said, "The competition was very tough and at times I felt I didn't have a chance."

Although all couldn't win, everyone who participated said they enjoyed themselves. Although they didn't obtain the positions that they set out to get, several candidates were satisfied with just being able to compete.

Christene Richart, who ran for freshman president said, "Although I didn't win, I accomplished a great goal of mine just by running against an opponent. Running for office is more than just competition against another person. It is a great way to meet people and make friends."

Judy Baker, who ran for freshman vice president, agreed, "It's hard to be happy when you lose, but there's a satisfaction you have knowing you have accomplished something." Baker continued, "After all, winning isn't everything." ♦

THE BALLOTS ARE IN. Sophomores Molly Majors and Alissa Jackson cast their ballots for class officers in the student center. Participation in voting was a concern during school-wide elections.

A Bold New Look Begins In 1992

UNDER CONSTRUCTION. Even though it was an inconvenience, the remodeling of the Student Center evidenced Harding's growth.

The Hammond Student Center will have a whole new look next year. Renovation and construction began after the Thanksgiving Break and will end before the 1992-1993 school year begins. The contractor for the project was James H. Cone.

Some of the new fixtures will include the completion of the second floor and a stairwell for the bookstore. On the second floor, there will be six classrooms added. There will also be more office space added for Student Affairs, the Bookstore and the S.A. Office. Shores Chapel will be refurbished as well.

On the first floor, the post office will be expanded to accommodate more students and to improve traffic flow. The most important part of the renovation is the installation of an elevator and ramps for the handicapped. ♦

Communication For A Cause

The phone-a-thon was a program devised by the Development office to raise money for the renovation of the Coe American Studies Building, the Administration Building and the Hammond Student Center. It began on September 8, 1991 and continued through November 1991. The purpose of the phone-a-thon was to match the $1.5 million challenge gift by the Mabee Foundation of Tulsa. In order to receive the Mabee donation, Harding had to raise $1 million in gifts and pledges by April 10, 1992.

hasn't seen for a while. Coker said, "I ask them what they are doing and so forth." He mostly contacted his former students and previous contacts. This was Coker's 4th phone-a-thon.

Other participating faculty/staff members were Kathleen Campbell who had 88 percent success, Cliff Ganus III who had 94 percent success, Cliff Ganus Jr. who had 93 percent success, Ken Davis who had 82 percent success, Dean Priest who had 76 percent success, and Barby Smith who had 90 percent success.

Even though it didn't get a lot of press coverage, the phone-a-thon was successful in what it set out to do: gathering pledges and donations for the university. Coker summed up his feelings with a statement of commitment, "If I were asked to work on the phone-a-thon again next year, I would definitely do it." ♦

— Angela Anderson

The phone-a-thon worked by having faculty, staff, and students call alumni and friends to ask for their help in meeting the Mabee challenge. As of September 30, 1991, $640,000 had been raised toward the phone-a-thon goal. One of the faculty members, Dr. Bobby Coker said, "The phone-a-thon is probably one of the hardest things I'm asked to do, but because it is important to the University, I do it." Coker became involved after the Development office requested his help. He enjoyed the phone-a-thon because he got the chance to talk to people he

Hillsboro Launches National Television Show

After much research and prayer, elders of the Hillsboro Church of Christ, Nashville, Tenn., announced taking oversight of a new, national television ministry to begin January, 1992.

The initial budget of $1.2 million dollars provided production and distribution of the 30-minute, weekly talk-show program. The funding included broadcasting of the program, up to three times weekly in some communities, via satellite, commercial television stations, and cable television systems.

Entitled Campaign America, the weekly program targeted the baby-boomer generation which is the largest age group in the U.S. population, about 45%. The program featured a regular host, but different guests from churches of Christ across the country were also featured. Fundamental Bible questions were taken from the studio audience and callers nationwide as they called-in.

"The Hillsboro eldership has long been a supporter of television ministries to preach the Gospel," stated 80-year-old Prentice Meador Sr., spokesman for the Hillsboro eldership. "The elders also recognized that new opportunities in broadcasting and the obvious search by most Americans for an understanding of God requires a fresh approach to reaching the lost with the fundamental teachings of God's Word."

Though the television show was called Campaign America it was also the title of the entire on-going national campaign. The campaign consisted of three critical elements. First, the weekly T.V. program with a totally new approach for the brotherhood. Not only did it feature presenters from local congregations answering Bible questions but, through the use of satellite technology, the program originated from different cities and churches across America.

The second element was the offer of free Bible correspondence courses to everyone who calls the special 800-number during the T.V. program. The course was totally new, designed especially for Campaign America by the Gospel Advocate Company.

The third element was campaign materials for local churches to tie-in with the national show and advertisements to help with local evangelistic efforts. These campaign materials could be used anytime during the year and included specially designed items for radio, television, newspaper and direct mail in the community. ♦

Governor Runs For President

This year's presidential campaign was a special one for Arkansas. For the first time in American history, an Arkansas governor, Bill Clinton, was seeking the Democratic nomination for United States president. Although Clinton received widespread support in his race for governor, some of these supporters thought he should stay in Arkansas.

Probably the best known of these supporters at Harding was Dr. Raymond Muncy, Chairman of the Department of History and Social Sciences. In Clinton's last race for governor, Muncy campaigned for him but as Clinton ran for the Democratic Presidential Nomination, he withdrew his support. When asked about the switch, Muncy said he thought Clinton would be more effective if he stayed in Arkansas. "The best thing for Clinton would be for him to lose the nomination for the presidency. Then he could come back to Arkansas, put his ideas into action, clean up his record and try for the presidency again."

Muncy's beliefs were based on Clinton's lack of experience and his poor record as Arkansas governor. Clinton has no international or foreign relations experience nor has he used his talents to help his home state. "Arkansas ranks economically among the poorest states, has a weak public education system, is environmentally sick and a lot of industry has recently moved out. This shows the American people that Clinton cannot even help his own state and will cause them to doubt his claims of being able to help the nation," explained Muncy.

Despite his inexperience and record, Clinton had a significant lead as of the Jan. polls. Time would tell if Clinton would remain standing. ♦

Serving Students Spiritually

The junior class officers had two goals. The first goal was to look for the spiritual needs of the junior class, and second, the opportunity to serve others.

The junior class officers were Terry Davis, president; Kim Gooch, vice-president; and Monica Kimbrell, secretary/treasurer. The officers were involved in two events during the 1991-92 school year. The first was a financial aid packet campaign. The purpose of this project was to get everyone to fill out financial aid packets. This enabled Harding to receive more money for financial aid.

The second service project involved working with the Searcy Housing Project. This involved giving free movie passes for kids in the community. Because of this project, the kids at the Searcy Housing Project were able to see one movie a month. Members of the junior class were responsible for transportation to and from the movie.

"I have a background in it (housing projects), so I wanted to give something back to the program," Davis said. "Our main goal was serving others. We looked forward to the opportunity of serving others, and we wanted to do it in a quiet manner," said Davis.

Overall, the junior class was effective in their service to their class, their community, and our Lord. "If anyone speaks, he should do it as one speaking the very words of God. If anyone serves, he should do it with the strength God provides, so that in all things God may be praised through Jesus Christ. To him be the glory and the power for ever and ever.

Amen." (1 Peter 4:11) ♦

The Joy Of Ring Ceremonies

Choosing the person whom you want to marry was a decision that many Harding students made during their college years. Because of the once-in-a-lifetime quality of engagements, many tried to make the moment as special as possible. One special thrill was when a girl announced her new status to her club sisters. This memorable, and often surprising, event was the ring ceremony.

The first step in a ring ceremony was notifying the club president. Those in on the news were kept to a minimum in order to protect the element of surprise. After a time was set, all club members were notified by notices on the women's dormitory.

As they whispered and speculated on who they thought was the lucky woman, the club gathered in a circle. The club then sang special songs while a candle bearing the ring was passed around for everyone to look at. It was passed around until the lucky woman blew out the candle and was bombarded by delighted screams and hugs from her club sisters.

Jennifer Rogers (Phi-Delta) had to throw people off the trail for her ceremony. She admitted it was hard for her to keep her cover. "I felt nervous and was anxious to get it over with so I could wear the ring in public."

Ring ceremonies were a way to create special memories. Years later, those who became engaged while at Harding would hold that vision of the glowing candle and the silhouetted faces of their friends among their most cherished memories. ♦

Students Play Soccer In Searcy

Many students in the United States answer baseball, basketball or football when asked about their favorite sports, but to an ever-growing group at Harding, soccer was the only answer this year.

Many in this group helped make up the Harding Kickers soccer team (formerly Searcy Steel). The 19 student-players competed with various other teams from Arkansas colleges and universities, including the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville.

Although the team used Harding in its name, the school did not sponsor soccer as a sport, as evidenced by the team's blue and white uniforms. All funds were provided by team members.

Anyone was welcome to participate, too. The team members came from countries where soccer is the dominant sport. Center-forward and manager Luis Allen, a senior economics major from San Jose, Costa Rica, said, "I think it's neat to play with people from so many different places."

The Kickers emphasized physical endurance through the course of the fall season and posted an impressive 12-2 record. ♦

Harding Security: Serving For Safety

Traditionally, Harding's security team has been plagued with misconceptions concerning its role in university activities.

The functional security squad, which operates 24 hours a day year-round, did much more than just give out parking tickets this past year. Security guards protected students and their property, locked and unlocked buildings, jump started vehicles with weak batteries, unlocked car doors, took students to and from the Searcy Medical Center, and directed traffic, among numerous other duties.

Craig Russell, a Harding security officer since 1989, felt the worst part of his job was writing tickets. "Very few of us like writing them," he said. "In fact, every once in a while we receive threats from upset students. Overall, though, the students at Harding are very cooperative and easy to get along with."

Russell, who works full-time from 4 p.m. to 12 a.m., observed that the one thing which needed changing most concerning Harding's security was "the students' attitude about what security's role is. We aren't here to give anybody a hard time. We're here to help, not to hinder." ♦

Broad Smiles and Open Arms

Having a year safely secured under their belts, the 1991-92 sophomore class returned in August with broad smiles and open arms.

"Our goal is not to separate ourselves from the rest of Harding, but to motivate others to grow individually," Roger Clayton, sophomore class president, said.

Many sophomores saw their class as having strong leadership and Clayton was quick to agree: "We are unique in that we have a personality of dream and vision. This is the class of future leadership and we are preparing ourselves."

Nancy Palmer, vice-president of the sophomore class, echoed Clayton by saying, "We (the class) took on a few leadership roles our freshman year. Now we have a lot of leadership and hopefully it will continue the four years we are here at Harding."

of educating for eternity has been a foundation of the school, and the sophomores reinforced that motto through the wealth of talent found in the class. They proved their eagerness to teach others about the Lord and emerged as leaders by participating with the Spiritual Emphasis Committee, campus devotionals, the student lectureship, chapel, and missions at home and abroad. ♦

Palmer and Clayton both said one of the many roles the sophomore class played was helping others generate enthusiasm about being at Harding; but, most importantly, about being Christian examples. Harding's motto

Soviets Struggle For Stability— Communism Fails

For the 75 years since the Soviet Union's conception in 1917 with the abolition of the Tsar, nations watched as the communist country slowly became a world power — with no end to their power in sight. Former Prime Minister Nikita Krushchev felt so confident in communism that he boasted in 1960 that communism would outlast democracy.

Krushchev's prediction proved false. Though Mikhail Gorbachev later sought to remedy the problems that riddled his government, the communist regime was doomed to fail. As reforms were implemented, the people became more and more dissatisfied. Every year Gorbachev was in power, the economy suffered; and goods in high demand became more and more scarce.

In a desperate attempt to regain the control Gorbachev had lost, members of the old party struggled to reinstate the communist philosophy in August of 1991. However, with Boris Yeltsin at the head of the resistance, the Soviet people voiced their refusal to live under a communist regime. Gorbachev rapidly lost his popularity as well as his remaining power, and stepped down from his office on January 1, 1992. This officially dissolved the Soviet Union and freed the once unified republics.

In the early months of political reconstruction, the newly-liberated Russian republics were vulnerable to possible authoritarian takeovers. Dr. Fred Jewell, professor of history, explained, "It would not be entirely impossible for a conservative, right-wing movement to gain control of the government and instill a sense of law and order among the republics." Only time would tell the fates of the Soviet Republics and their struggle to find their place in the world. ♦

Yugoslavia Endures Painful Changes

Change is inevitable — a lesson is learned anew each day. Some changes are slow, and some are quick. Some are necessary; some are not. Some are peaceful, and some are violent. The break-up of Yugoslavia has been a fierce change.

Civil war broke out in July of 1991 when Slovenia and Croatia declared their independence. Since then thousands of homes have been destroyed and many lives have been lost. Although the fight occurred an ocean away, the conflict hit close to home for many due to friends and family that were involved.

YUGOSLAVIAN UNREST. Civil war breaks out in Yugoslavia as Slovenia and Croatia declared their independence. The situation hit home for Harding student, Drazenka Valpotic from Zagreb — the capital of Croatia.

Harding enrolled its first student from Yugoslavia, Drazenka Valpotic, in the fall. Valpotic came to the United States from her hometown, Zagreb — the capital of Croatia. When she left her home she said that things seemed "very optimistic ... we didn't expect war."

With all the troubles and fighting, the future of the country appeared like a young child's work of art. To some it looked messy and hard to interpret. Some could not understand the purpose; yet others clearly saw the intentions and ideas. Whatever peoples' impressions were, Yugoslavia's future remained an unfinished work. ♦

Modernized Ad Building Serves Many

The most visible building on the Harding campus, the Administration building, was renovated during the 1991-92 school year in three different phases, spanning September 1990 to February 1992. Most of the renovations were covered by the $1.35 million donation of an anonymous California alumni.

The Harding physical plant handled all of the renovations themselves. Some of the heavier work included the gutting of the Little Theatre. Dr. Bill Ryan, physical plant engineer, estimated that Harding saved about 10 percent of costs by doing the work in-house.

When asked to what extent the building would be upgraded, Ryan answered, "The building will have air conditioning and most of the building will be carpeted." Surprisingly, the Ad. building was first built in 1951 with air conditioning, but it was not replaced when it quit working. Some of the features of the "new" Ad. building are burgundy and gray carpeted floors, and ladies' and mens' restrooms on all three floors.

Ryan said the auditorium holds approximately 1,000 people. It is an intermediate auditorium, with the Heritage Auditorium holding 500 and the Benson holding around 3,500. The auditorium was used for American Studies programs, some entertainers and some movies. Furthermore, the drama department used it for almost all of their productions.

Clearly the newly-renovated building will be of great use and service to a wide variety of people. The classroom and auditorium space was greatly needed as Harding has broken enrollment records each year. ♦

New Faces and Fresh Ideas

Unsure about leaving home and starting anew at Harding, but certain of their excitement, the freshman class of 1991-92 arrived on campus to take a huge step in their lives. The freshmen brought new faces and fresh ideas of unity together and quickly became a functioning part of the Harding spirit.

The fun and enthusiasm began with Student Impact, as the freshman class cut loose and had a great time during the few days before school started. Impact was simply an opportunity to enjoy new friendships and start placing names on the countless faces, a seemingly impossible task for the first few weeks.

It wasn't long, however, until the freshman class began to make its impression on Harding. Some students found a standing with one of several service organizations on campus, such as "The Crew." Others provided immediate assistance to Harding's varsity athletics. By the conclusion of pledge week, nearly all of the fresh-sickness was sometimes a serious depression factor, the freshman class of 91-92 found Harding a great place to be. ♦

men had found their niche.

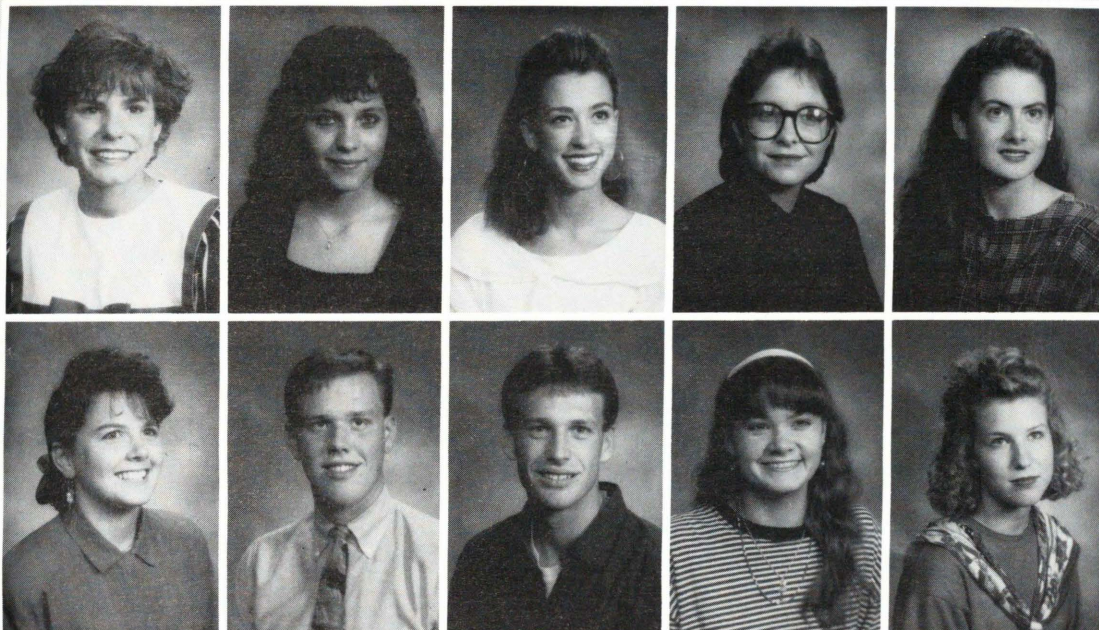

The freshman class officers, Julie Plemons, secretary-treasurer; Leanne Putnam, vice-president; and Michael Brooks, president; worked to be an essential part of the Student Association. The officers performed whatever activities they were asked to, such as promoting spirit with banners and flyers for Homecoming week, and other special S.A. activities. The officers also promoted service by collecting money for overseas mission work.

Soon the unsurety faded into security and even though home-

Women's Tennis Makes History

In 1991 for the first time in the University's history, Harding sponsored a women's tennis team. Problems in the past had kept a team from materializing, but this past year David Elliot, associate professor of physical education, agreed to take on the responsibility. "It's really been a challenge," said Elliot. "It's new and exciting to think about taking a program, starting from the bottom, and building it up quickly. I believe we can do it."

Chantelle Bequette, the only senior on the team, also commented on the newness of the women's program, "It's been a lot of fun because we've been kind of guinea pigs. We've gotten to try things out."

According to Elliot the team faced challenges because of their inexperience. None of the girls had played in a college match before the fall. Elliot added, however, that their attitudes will help decrease the gaps left by their inexperience.

The girls practiced Monday through Friday, year round in preparation for tournaments. They participated in only two competitions in the fall, but scheduled over 20 for the spring. The team began the season ranked 24th in the nation of all NIA schools. "This is really a building year for the program," explained Bequette. "We're going to get better."

The team consisted of nine members: Chantelle Bequette, Tammy Callahan, Tracy Crouch, Erica Degraw, Farah Mackey, Brooke Manasco, Patti Vaughan, Sheila Walker, and Amy Whittle. Elliot served as head coach, and he was helped by assistant coach Bobby Nix and Richie Roberts.

Both coaches and the women were very excited about the season, and the challenges that faced them. Although hard work and a lot of time was necessary, they were able to say as did Bequette, "It's been fun being a part of it." ♦

Times Of Transition

Making the transition from being a high school senior to a college freshman can sometimes be tough. But, this time freshmen weren't alone! Bruce McLarty, pulpit minister of the College Church, understood what transition was all about. He and his family moved to Searcy, and he began preaching at the College Church on Sept. 1, 1991. Even though McLarty and his wife, Ann, both graduated from Harding and spent four years of their life here, coming back after 12 years was a definite transition.

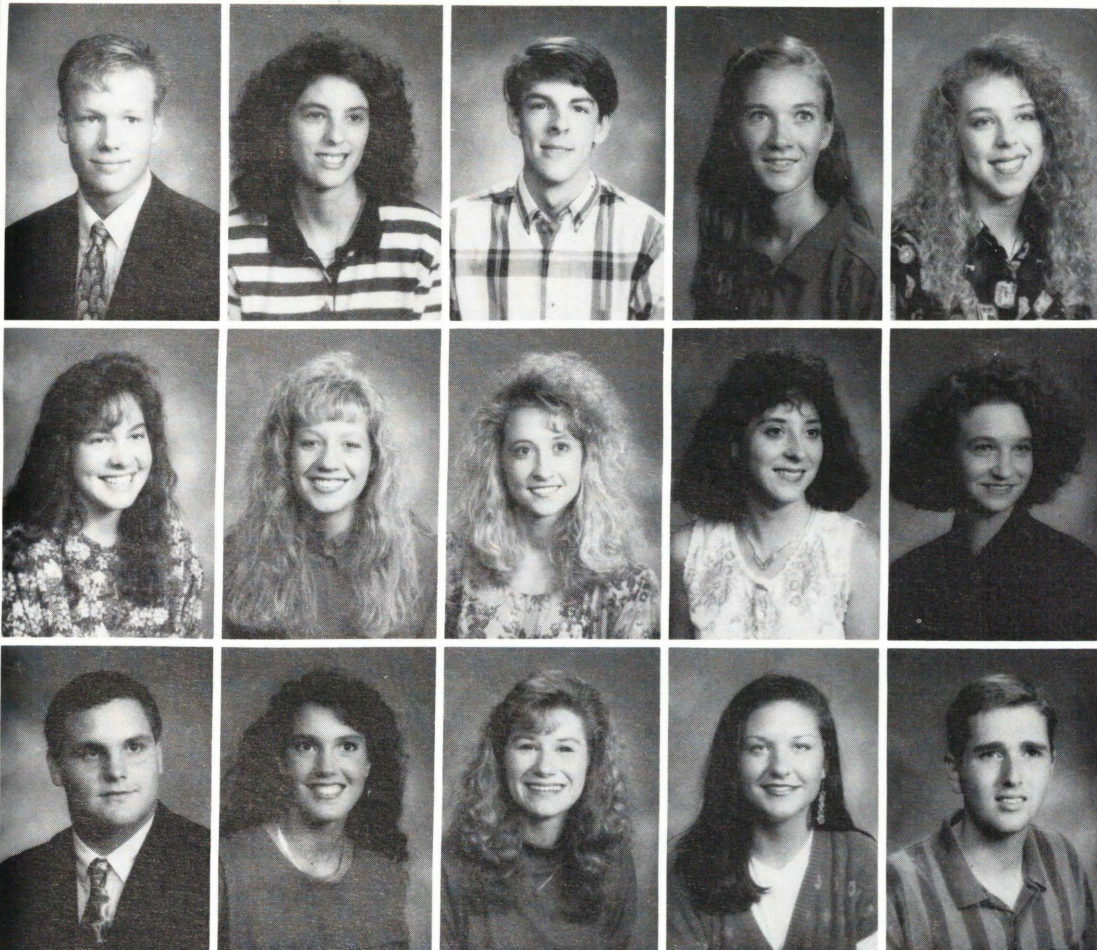

Starting at the College Church, McLarty said his biggest obstacle was trying to learn and remember the overwhelming number of names. Even though he had been preaching full time since 1980, he had never worked with such a large congregation. He began his full-time ministry in a small congregation in Marks, Miss. From there he preached in Memphis, spent 18 months in Kenya, and before he came to Searcy he worked with the church in Cookeville, Tenn., with about 550 members. McLarty decided to apply to the College Church because he and his wife were involved with the church while they were students. "We understand the importance of a college church because that is such a pivotal point in the lives of young people," he said. McLarty set a goal to have an effective ministry of the Word in the Harding setting. "I want to provide a context in which to develop spirituality," he said.

As McLarty thought back to his freshman year, he thought of what words would have helped him. This is the advice he gives: "Don't be in a hurry; take time to grow. Don't be too busy not to enjoy the beauty around you and most of all, be patient with people because they are growing too." ♦

ARA—Not Mom's—But Improving

ARA Dining Services made quite a few changes in the 1991-92 year under the direction of Charles Liming, manager. While it was definitely not Mom's cooking, ARA made an effort to have food that the students wanted.

One of the most popular changes implemented by Liming was the Wokery, a line of stir-fry dishes. Another popular change was the Big Scoop ice cream line, which had ice cream and an assortment of toppings. Another change in the cafeteria was the appearance of napkin holders on every table. The holders were instituted for environmental and economical reasons; they helped to eliminate waste.

The general feedback from the student body was positive; students seemed to appreciate the effort to make them happy. Faith Ort said, "They are very good. I'm impressed.

They do a good job of giving us what we want."♦

Mixers Help New Students Choose Clubs

MIX IT UP. Members of Chi Sigma Alpha hold a mixer for new freshmen. Mixers provide an excellent opportunity for new students to decide on a social club.

One of the biggest choices a freshman or transfer student made when they came to Harding was whether or not they would pledge a club. A social club can be a big part of a new student's activities; so, choosing the right club was important. The best way to find out each club's personality was the club mixers. Each women's social club held three or four mixers in order to meet prospective members and let the new students see what they were like.

Glenn Lee, a junior transfer from Daytona Beach, Fla. knew what to look for: "I wanted to choose a club that would give me what I need spiritually, but who also knows how to have a good time. The mixers helped me see what the guys in each club are all about."

Mixers helped new students get a handle on what the club scene was all about, and allowed them to see all of their options. ♦

Shawn Hicks: Yodeling And Entertaining

Shawn Hicks, a junior Spanish education major from Kilgore, TX, used an unusual talent to entertain people this past year.

Hicks, an amateur yodeler, first became interested in the art of yodeling at the age of 13. "I picked up on it by watching well-known country music yodelers and by listening to instructional records," she said.

She also said that she yodels primarily for enjoyment, although she would not hesitate using the talent to make money. She has performed in many different places, including country music shows, optimist clubs and other civic organizations, and student talent shows. She also participated in and won this fall's GMC Truck Entertainment Contest on both the local and state levels.

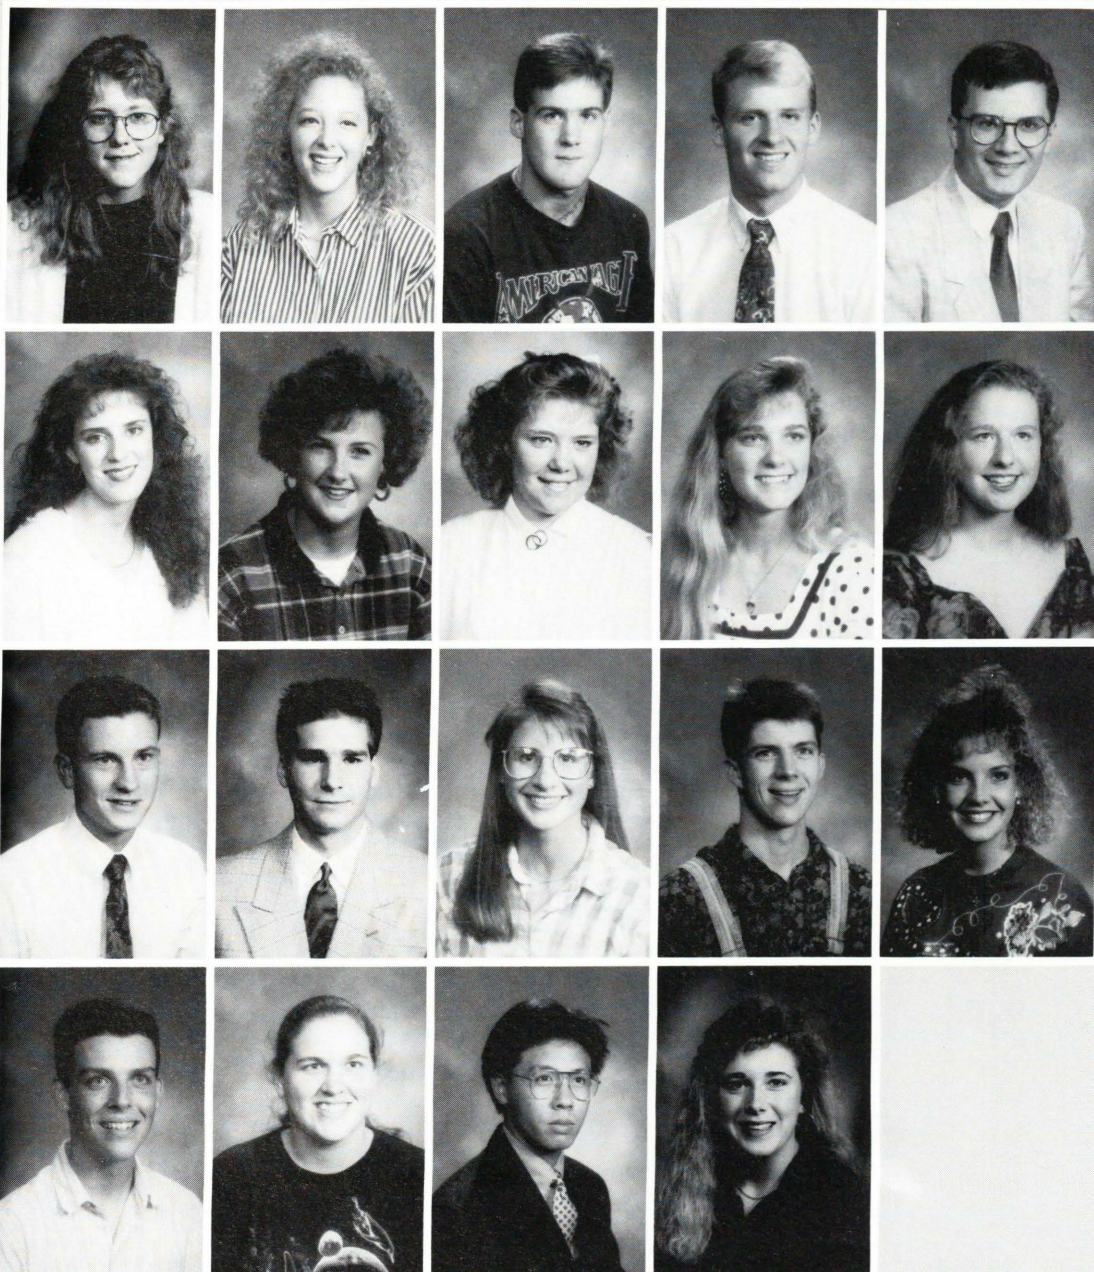

"It's a lot of fun doing something that not many people do," she said. "It also helps me meet people."

Hicks' talents were not limited to yodeling by any means. She also was an active member in the Spanish club and Ka Re Ta social club.

Susan Rice, one of her sisters in Ka Re Ta, said, "She's talented and friendly — it's hard to describe everything that makes her special!" ♦

Graduate Work Prepares Holliman For Military Career

For many people higher education stops with a license from a Vo-tech school or an undergraduate degree; but for others, formal learning continues even after "college." This year 207 students were enrolled in the Harding Graduate Studies Program pursuing masters degrees in accounting, education or science and education. For them, the extra semesters of work were worth the time and energy.

Hamilton Holliman, a graduate student from Pascagoula, Miss., enrolled in Harding's Graduate School in the fall of 1989 after completing a B. A. in biology at Freed Hardeman College. He initially enrolled because he felt Harding had a large, well-established program in a Christian environment. He was confident in the quality of his education here in Searcy, and he said that it was "equal to any other school's program in the area — if not the country."

He was particularly impressed by the excellent instructors and the simplicity of the system. He said, "Many times 'graduate school' intimidates students just by its name; but Harding's program is 'easy' in that its easily accessible to people really interested in furthering their education. It's not a complicated process, and its simplicity lends itself to greater learning on the student's part."

Holliman returned to obtain his teaching certificate so that he would have a secondary job opportunity when he finishes his service in the military. He planned on entering the Army in October of 1992. He wanted to work with the Military Intelligence Specialists in the Airborne Rangers division and hoped to eventually work in the Special Forces section. Obtaining his master's degree was essential to his plan as participation in the officers' training program required it.

A VALENTINE TOKEN. Student teacher Hamilton Holliman receives a "flower-gram" on Valentines Day at Bald Knob High School. Holliman felt like his field experiences taught him a lot about the teaching profession.

Holliman had positive feelings about the field experience opportunities offered through the graduate program.

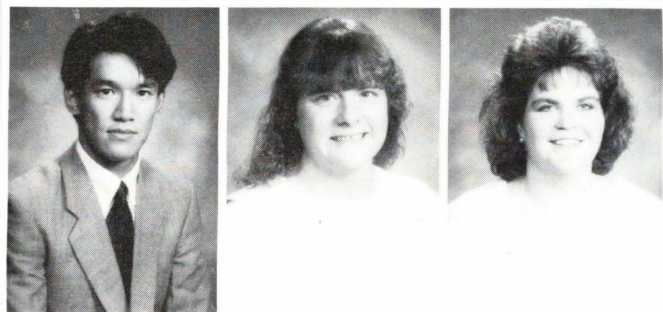

He felt that the most valuable lessons were learned as he interacted with professionals in his field. He said in regard to his student teaching experience, "People are just different, and each situation calls for a different response from the teacher. There are no cut and dry rules." He learned to be more compassionate and caring for other people and the overall importance of being a friend.

He also thought that the exposure to the classroom helped him count his own blessings. He said, "God has given me so much — my family, home, friends, etc. We don't realize how lucky we are. Seeing my own blessings motivates me to continue trying to help others."

Holliman continued, "People and friends have made a difference in my attitudes. At a state university the focus is more emphatically secular; here at Harding, we see Christianity at work on a daily level. We know that too much of a good thing is a bad thing; but as a graduate student I haven't felt unduly pressured by the spiritual activities. Having the opportunity to be influenced, however, has taught me to react to the world from a Christian viewpoint."

Not everyone in the graduate program reaped the benefits of their experiences at Harding, but Holliman clearly felt that the institution and people he worked with in Searcy for the past two years made a tremendous difference in his life. ♦

Teaching The Lost: HSBS Holds Summer Campaign In Brazil

Last summer Harding School of Biblical Studies had a wonderful opportunity to help evangelize the world. Due to the influence of visiting missionary Jeff Custard and Ricardo Maia, an HSBS graduate student, several Bible students campaigned in Brazil, South America, a country with millions of people who know nothing of salvation.

They spent months preparing before they actually left the United States. The workers had to make financial arrangements, choose which cities on which to focus their efforts, and establish their goals and methods of reaching the lost. Each person wrote letters seeking support from other Christians who were interested in helping the Brazilian work and decided to evangelize primarily in the cities of Rio de Janeiro, Campo Grande, and Cuiaba. Some others also worked in Sao Paulo and Belo Horizonte. With the encouragement and help of the brethren in these locations, the congregations as well as the campaigners flourished.

Jeff Custard, in response to an invitation from the Campo Grande congregation, held a gospel meeting that promoted the campaign efforts in the city. The talents of Jeff and Ronnie Matthews were also utilized as they prepared a chorus that was able to reach the Brazilians through music in their native language, Portuguese. Adrian and Michelle Harris, David and Renee Barber, and Ronnie and Mary Neilson were three married couples on the campaign who God especially used to spread the gospel. HSBS students Glenn Dallman, Phil Barnes, Don Brewer, and Brent Boys also went along with university student Ronda Milam and Ann Brown, teacher for the English department. The Lord used each person to influence the Brazilians. Ricardo Maia commented, "I really enjoyed taking the group to Brazil and being reminded of the great need for missionaries all over the world. We need to take advantage while the fields are ready for harvest!" Those who participated in this gospel effort experienced the joy of teaching the lost last summer. ♦
