

FENCING. Bob Corbin, Professor of Physical Education, takes a few moments to view a track team practice session. The track team was able to take advantage of the resurfaced track at Alumni Field that was completed in October. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

COKE IS IT. Ross Cochran, Instructor of Bible, gets a drink for his son Christopher at a Timothy Club mixer. The Timothy Club was the organization for all Bible majors. — Photo by Jeff Montgomery.

Endless Guidance

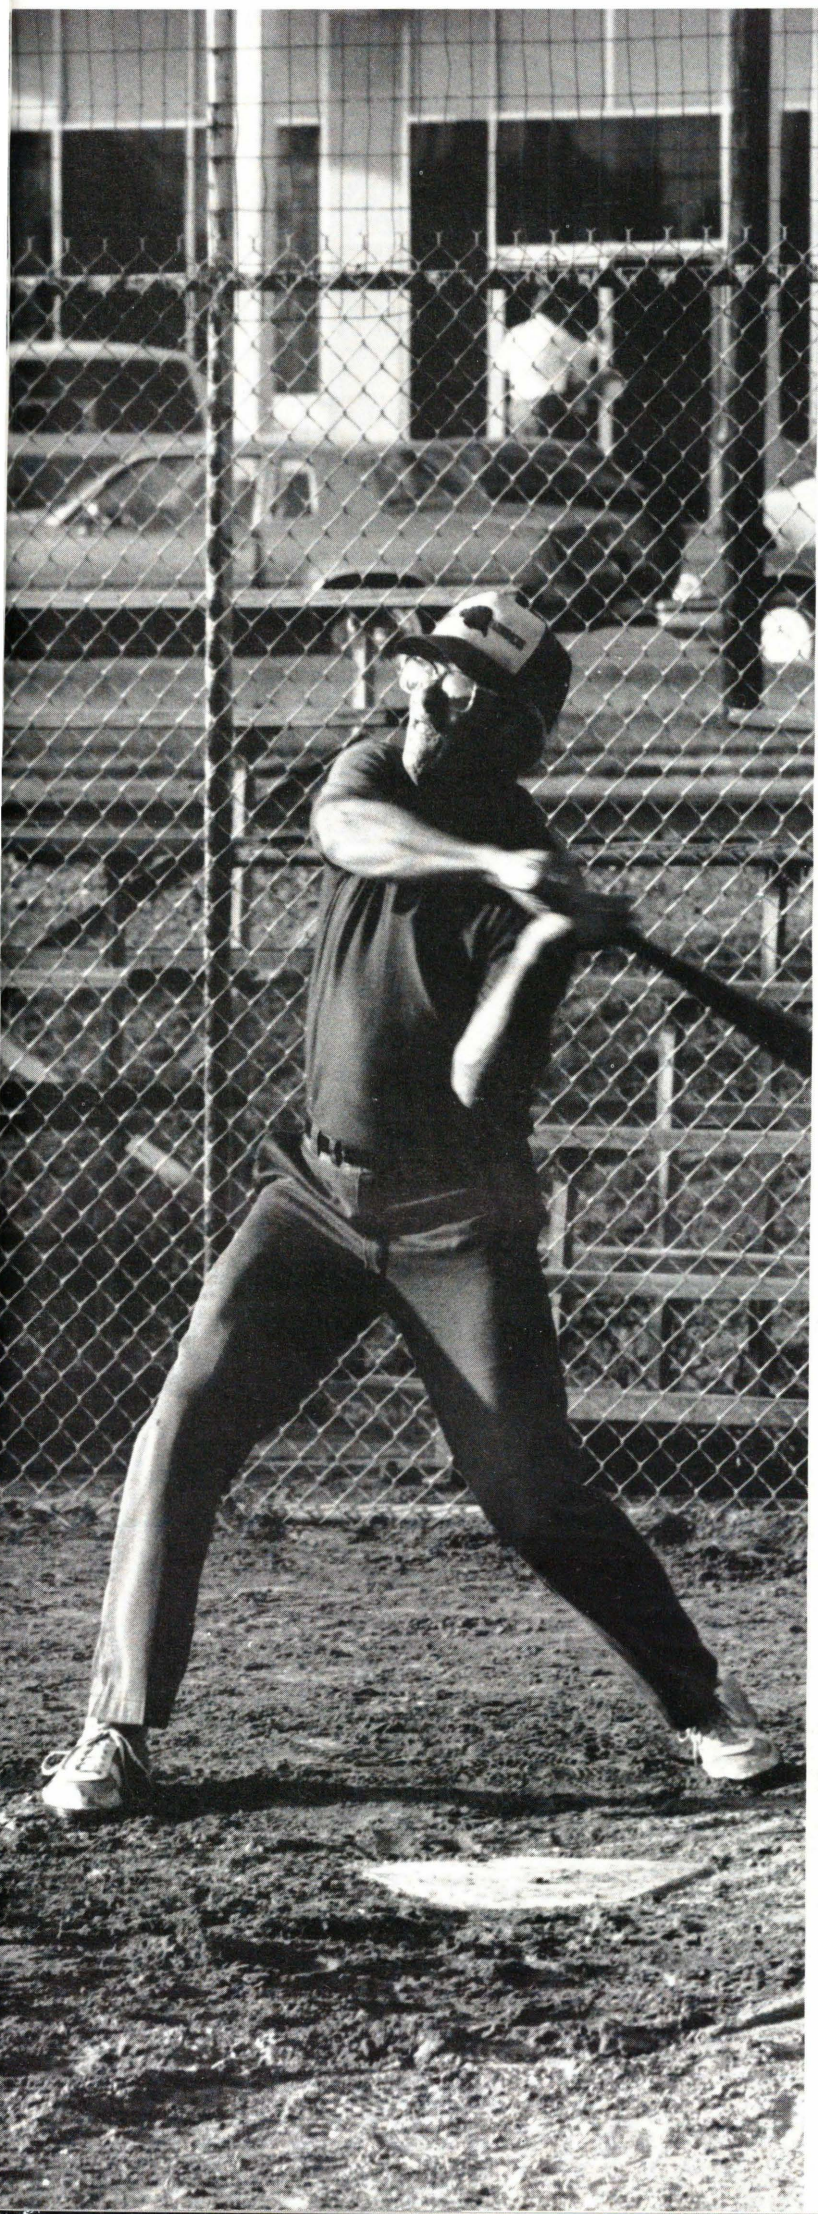

There has always been a special bond between the faculty and student body at Harding. A bond due not only to the school's small size; the members of the faculty strive to promote Christian principles, to set an example for the students and to care about the students on a personal basis.

Staff, administrators and their families provided spiritual guidance by opening their homes for Wednesday night Bible study. Others led students spiritually in church services, devotionals and chapel programs. Many instructors opened each class period in prayer to help students keep their focus on God.

Every year, professors create relationships with students, some of which lasted for years, and all of which had an impact on the students. It was through these personal relationships that the faculty and their families were able to provide the most guidance. Many administrators and faculty members invited students into their homes on a regular basis. Others were always around campus to support, influence and assist. In spite of long hours and increased enrollment, Harding's staff was always able to provide endless guidance.

-Shannon Romine and Melydia Clewell
Academics Editors

HOME RUN. Jimmy Allen, Professor of Bible, blasts one out of the park during a faculty softball game. The game gave students a chance to see their professors out of the classroom. — Photo by John Klein.

Dr. David B. Burks
President

CHATS AND CHUCKLES. Dr. Clifton L. Ganus, Chancellor, converses after chapel. —Photo by Jeff Montgomery.

HONORS OF WISDOM. President Burks awards Pauline Alison of Leisure Lodge the Resident of The Month plaque for September. —Photo by Jeff Montgomery

PRESIDENT

Burks strives to improve Harding-Searcy relations

Dr. David B. Burks entered his third year of office the same way he entered the first two: making change. Tangible proofs of improvement were seen in the renovation of the American Heritage Center, which housed a fifty-two room hotel, five conference rooms, dining facilities and a 500 seat auditorium all under one roof. A new men's dorm, housing 260, was completed and a new university telephone service was installed just in time for fall's over capacity enrollment. Reconstruction of the school's library began and was scheduled for completion by July of 1990. A temporary library was set up in the Administration Auditorium and offices left vacant by the Student Affairs' offices moved to the second floor of the Student Center.

Burks also set out to meet his goal of 75% doctoral coverage, a plan allowing the majority of faculty members to earn a doctoral degree. Burks sensed a smooth working relationship with the faculty, and described his relationship with the students as "a good one." He continually tried to improve Harding's student-oriented services and programs. He affirmed the Bible's teaching of the concept of striving for excellence, not mediocrity, as he sought to continue improving the overall "Harding experience" for students.

He continued to promote a healthy "town and gown" relationship between the Searcy community and the academic community at Harding. The university kicked off a five-year, one million dollar fund raising campaign to support the school; a significant anticipated contribution from a city the size of Searcy.

The spiritual atmosphere was at the heart of the institution, and at the heart of all Burks' decisions for the university. It was that spiritual atmosphere that Burks hoped would take Harding through the 1990's. "If we will be distinct, if we will be different, we will be the kind of university that people want to exist."

— Melydia Clewell

Dr. Clifton L. Ganus, Jr.
Chancellor

Ganus celebrates 50 years at Harding

He came to Harding in the fall of 1939, as a freshman studying business. Within three months, he'd changed his major to Bible and History. Two hours after graduation, Ganus began a new chapter in his life, as a college graduate and as a husband. It was 1943. The war had ended but its after-effects were all too evident. As editor of the 1942-43 Petit Jean, Ganus faced difficulty gathering supplies and getting the book printed. He was worried that the annuals would not arrive before everyone left for summer vacation in May of 1943. As it turned out, Ganus ended up signing yearbooks as he stood waiting to get married.

Ganus still claims his years as a student were the most enjoyable of his life. It's been fifty years since his association with Harding began. Times, the campus, and Dr. Ganus have all changed. He's seen a 20-acre campus with 4 buildings blossom into 200-acres with 47 buildings. Ganus, who said he'd never teach, joined the faculty in 1946 as a History teacher. He taught until 1965 when he replaced Dr. George S. Benson as the fourth president. Looking back, Ganus remembers a turning point in the history of the school in the late 1960's. Student protests and demonstrations were raging throughout the country's schools. If ever the school was to fail, Ganus believes it

OPEN HOUSE. Dr. David Burks, President, meets with Carter Lambert at the Parent's breakfast held during Open House. Lambert worked with F.A.C.T., the Future Alumni Communications Team. —Photo by Sharon Bowles.

ATTENTION, PLEASE. Dr. David Burks, President, reads some very important announcements before the lectureship program begins. —Photo by Jeff Montgomery.

CHANCELLOR

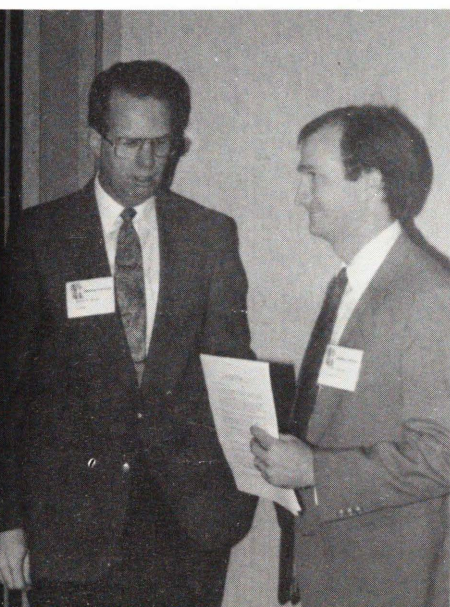

would've been at that point. However, the campus hardly took notice of the rest of the country, and remained distinctively different.

After serving for twenty-two years Ganus turned the presidency over to Dr. David B. Burks in 1987. Ganus describes the changing of Harding's presidents as a baton relay. Each carries the "baton" for a hundred meters then passes it on. The "baton" represents the basic principles and values of the university.

Now in his third year as Harding's Chancellor, Ganus continues to strive to improve the quality of experience each student enjoys. He continues to recruit young people to come to Harding and is also in charge of the Walton Scholarship program. He said he had no problem turning the reins over to Dr. Burks. He's still available and willing to help, but only when he's asked. Ganus doesn't want to be a "Monday morning quarterback," but he's happy to offer guidance when asked.

Ganus predicts the administration will focus on improving its programs and staff. During this, his golden year with Harding, Ganus is still here to serve. "I want to help in any way I can, in any way I'm needed."

— Melydia Clewell

George S. Benson
President Emeritus

PRESIDENT EMERITUS

Benson continues after 53 years

In his 53rd year of association with Harding, George S. Benson continued to take an active role in campus matters. The President Emeritus also served on the University's Board of Trustees.

In 1936, Benson returned from extensive missionary work in China to take the position of President of Harding College. He held the position for 29 years, during which time he paid off the school's large debt and began campus expansion.

In 1965 he accepted the office of President Emeritus. Since that year, Benson has worked with a friend to raise funds for the church in Zambia. As a result, both a Christian high school and junior college have been built.

Benson is somewhat of a campus celebrity, being a favorite among the students. However, he has received greater acclaim. He is a member of the Freedom Foundation, has received the Arkansan of the Year Award and has been inducted into the Oklahoma Hall of Fame.

— Melydia Clewell

SCIENCE NEWS. Mr. David Smith heads a meeting of the Science Development Council. The group consisted of members of the President's Council with an interest in the area of science. — Photo by Ken Bissell.

CHECKING IT OUT. During the Alumni Homecoming Brunch held in the student center, Dr. George S. Benson, his wife Marguerite and alumnus Harold Lou Morris inspect a Harding brochure. Dr. Benson could often be found in the Student Center or the cafeteria. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES. James H. Cone, Chairman; Harold N. Cogburn, Vice Chairman; Jim Bill McInteer, Secretary; James Burcham, Treasurer; John Baldwin, Pat Bell, George S. Benson, David Paul Burton, Paul Carter, Houston Ezell, David Burks, Richard Gibson, Louis Green, Dallas Harris, Olen Hendrix, Harry Risinger, Dan Russell, Roy Sawyer, Donal Shores, John Simmons, Deanna Smith. — Photo by Brian Lovegrove.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES PRESIDENT'S DEVELOPMENT COUNCIL

TAKING A BREAK. Mr. Chuck Gatton of Gainesville Fla., pauses during a meeting to talk with George Oliver, Dean of the School of Business. Gatton was a member of the President's Development Council. — Photo by Ken Bissell.

Groups work behind the scenes

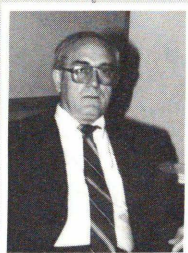

Many of the students were unaware of the governing structure of the university, but it continued to exist — and progress — as usual.

The Board of Trustees met twice this year to continue the development of the university. Twenty-one leaders from throughout the country made up Harding's board, including two who are familiar faces to the students, President Emeritus Benson and President Burks.

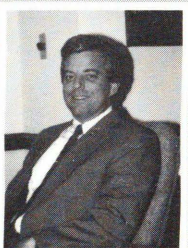

The President's Council continued to be one of Harding's groups of volunteer leadership. With a membership of around 350, they also met semi-annually. Most of their time was spent in discussion groups based on their special interests. They had the chance to see the students and faculty at work in the spring, with an open house of all the departments on campus.

The council worked to make recommendations to the board concerning the institution and proved themselves invaluable to the university on campus, as well as in their home congregations and communities. — Mellydia Clewell

Jerome Barnes
Vice President
for Student Affairs

James W. Carr
Executive Vice President for Educational
Services

C. Floyd Daniel
Vice President
for University
Relations

Neale T. Pryor
Vice President for Academic Affairs

Lott R. Tucker,
Jr.
Vice President
for Finance

CONCENTRATION. Dr. Neale Pryor, Vice President for Academic Affairs, concentrates on a Lady Bisons volleyball match. Dr. Pryor was seen at volleyball games on a regular basis. — Photo by Sharon Bowles

OFFICIAL BUSINESS. C. Floyd Daniel, Vice President for University Relations, gives out information requested from his office. Daniel's office oversaw the Development, Alumni and Public Relations offices. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

Dedicated men serve as Vice Presidents

Last year, Dr. James W. Carr was appointed to the new position of Vice President for Educational Services and Enrollment Development. At the end of the 1988-89 year he was promoted to Executive Vice President. Carr oversaw the Admissions Office, and the offices for the physical plant, career planning and placement, financial aid, testing and research and continuing education.

He supervised the American Studies Institute, which received the Freedom Foundation Honor Medal for excellence in 1989. Carr also made time to sponsor Harding's chapter of the College Republicans and a newly formed girls' tennis team. Carr was actively involved with the Kiwanis club and was on Searcy's Beautification Committee.

Carr's plans for this year included "bringing in the best prepared freshman class in the history of the university." He enjoyed getting the chance to continue working with a faculty and staff who accepted nothing less than excellence in their work. Of Harding, Carr noted, "It is an excellent place where all of us have such high expectations — and that makes it hard to be a manager here. It is an extraordinary place."

Dr. Neale Pryor continued a seventh year as Vice President for Academic Affairs. He joined the faculty in 1962 as a professor in the Bible department. Pryor still spent time in the classroom this year in addition to his duties overseeing the academic portion of the university. Pryor supervised the schools that made up the university and assisted the deans in course and curriculum decisions. Many students knew Pryor as "the man who never forgets a name," and others wanted his signature on yellow "drop and add" cards. Pryor taught a Bible class at the College church, where he also served as an elder.

Lott Tucker, Jr., Vice President for Finance, came to Harding in 1951 as the Business Office Manager. In 1957 he became the Business Manager and in 1970 he was appointed Vice President for Finance. Tucker has spent the past nineteen years in charge of Harding's finance, record keeping, auxiliary enterprises and investments. This year he was the chairman of the university's one million dollar fund raising drive in Searcy. He was an elder in the College Church and Chairman of the Searcy Chamber of Commerce Planning and Steering Committee. He also worked with the Kiwanis Club.

BEFORE THE GAME. Dr. James W. Carr, Executive Vice President for Educational Services, talks with Robbie Schaeffer, senior, at a reception before a Bison football game. The Alumni Office hosted receptions before all the out of town games. — Photo by Ken Bissell.

Dr. Jerome Barnes assumed the office of Vice President for Student Affairs. In the past, Barnes was a student and also a teacher at Harding. He previously managed three men's dorms. In 1973 he was appointed Advisor to the Student Association and in 1987 he became Dean of Campus Life. As the Vice President for Student Affairs, Barnes was responsible for supervising the counseling center, the Health center and the Housing Office. Barnes also monitored the activities of campus social clubs and prepared the student handbook.

VICE PRESIDENTS

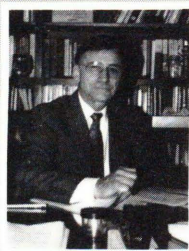

SPECIAL PRESENTATION. Lott R. Tucker, Jr., Vice President for Finance, takes part in a roast held for Dr. David Burks. The roast included a mock call from George Bush. — Photo by Ken Bissell.

C. Floyd Daniel served as Vice President for University Relations. His duties covered three distinct areas: The Development office, Public Relations and the Alumni office. Daniel served as an elder at the College Church and was a fund raising consultant for Children's Homes, Inc., in Paragould. He was also chairman of the Christian Service Committee. As for his work at Harding, Daniel was "greatly blessed in being with so many dedicated Christian men and women."

— Melydia Clewell

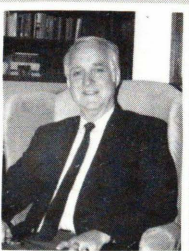

Bobby Coker
Dean of the
School of Education

George H. Oliver
Dean of the
School of Business

Carl Mitchell
Dean of the College of Bible and Religion

Dean Priest
Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences

Cathleen Shultz
Dean of the
School of Nursing

THEOLOGY. Senior Todd Kempton talks over a little theology with Dr. Carl Mitchell after class. Dr. Mitchell was the dean of the College of Bible and Religion. — Sharon Bowles.

MAKING THE GRADE. Alicia Bowen, senior, discusses her grades with Dr. Bobby Coker, Dean of the School of Education. Teachers were more than willing to discuss grades with the students. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

Mitchell becomes third Dean of College of Bible

It was just two years ago that the position of Dean of the College of Bible and Religion was created. However, the office has changed hands three times since its beginning. Dr. Phillip Slate replaced the first interim dean, Dr. Neale Pryor, in 1988. Slate juggled his time between Searcy and Memphis, where he was Dean of Harding's Graduate School of Religion. In 1989 Slate returned to the Memphis campus full-time and Dr. Paul Pollard became the interim dean. By the fall of 1989, Dr. Carl Mitchell had been selected to fill the office. Mitchell was not new to Harding; in the early eighties he was a professor of Bible, assistant chairman of the Bible department and associate director of HUF. Mitchell came back this year to oversee and coordinate the affairs of the College of Bible and Religion, but he still spent time in the classroom. He worked "to encourage and contribute toward the training of preachers, missionaries, and other ministries to help Harding."

Dr. Dean Priest was Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. It was his seventh year overseeing the largest college in the university. He said of his office, "I see my responsibility as aiding the twelve department chairmen of the College of Arts and Sciences to do the best job they can ... I enjoy helping achieve the goals they set for the departments." Priest also acts as the liaison officer for the Liberal Arts Development Council and Director of Faculty Development. On his efforts to guide students, Priest said, "I still feel my greatest contribution at Harding is working with the individual student. It is a joy to see the excitement of learning take place in the classroom."

PAPER WORK. Dr. Cathleen Shultz, dean of the School of Nursing, keeps herself busy with paper work, making sure the nursing program runs smoothly. Shultz has been with Harding since 1976. — Photo by Kimberly Nunn.

Mr. George Oliver was officially appointed Dean of the School of Business this summer, after serving as acting dean for over a year. His association with Harding began in 1985 when he was named assistant dean of the school of Business. Now he oversees the School of Business and finds time for other ways to serve. He is the Director of the Center for Professional Ethics, member of academic committees and is a Training and Development Consultant to several corporations.

Dr. Cathleen Shultz kept her office as Dean of the School of Nursing for a twelfth year. She has worked at several hospitals and colleges throughout the country, and has received numerous awards in recognition of her outstanding abilities as both a nurse and a teacher. This year she received a three-year appointment to the Arkansas Board of Nursing. Shultz lead a staff of twelve faculty members in the school, which was accredited by the National League for Nursing. Shultz said the best part of her job was "working with the students," helping to guide them by "personal example, incorporating values in teaching, in a home Bible study and as a sponsor of OEGE."

ACADEMIC DEANS

Dr. Bobby Coker returned as the Dean of the School of Education, a position the Harding graduate has held since 1979. He has been involved in the Arkansas Department of Higher Education and was named to the Board of Examiners of the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education. Coker was also elected for a three-year term to the Board of Directors of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education. Coker has also been a leader in the state's education reform movement.

— Melydia Clewell

L. "Butch"
Gardner,
Dean of Students

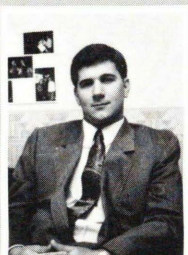

Foy O'Neal,
Dean of Men

Kay Gowen,
Dean of Women

Steve Beliech,
Assistant Dean of Men

OUT OF THE OFFICE. Butch Gardner, Dean of Students, pauses outside of his office to chat with Kim Johnson, junior. The Student Affairs office was moved to the Student Center during the summer. — Photo by Jeff Montgomery

SPONGING OFF. Kay Gowen, Dean of Women, braces herself for a possible strike with a wet sponge. Gowen was participating in the ARA carnival held in the back rooms of the cafeteria. — Photo by Dena Fritcher.

Student Affairs relocates; New Deans selected

When the Office of Student Affairs moved this summer from the Administration building to the second floor of the Student Center, more than just a few papers got rearranged. In fact, all four dean positions in the office were vacated. Dr. Jerome Barnes was promoted from Dean of Campus Life to Vice President for Student Affairs. The Dean of Campus Life position was abolished.

Maribeth Downing and Butch Gardner both left their positions as Associate Deans of Students. Downing returned to the classroom full-time. Gardner was appointed Dean of Students. His association with Harding began in the 1970's as a student. In 1979, he took the position as Assistant basketball coach, staying until 1984. After spending three years as the head coach at the University of Arkansas in Pine Bluff, he returned to Harding in 1987 to work as Associate Dean of Students.

In his new role this year, Gardner helped in the daily operations of Student Affairs and also coordinated the summer orientation program for incoming freshmen. He contributed time to several organizations, including the National Association of Foreign Student Advisors and the Arkansas College Personnel Association. One of Gardner's goals for the year was to guide students by helping them "grow and mature spiritually," by his example and by exhorting them.

Foy O'Neal filled the opening of Dean of Men. He joined the Harding Administration in 1986 as the Assistant Director of Admissions. In his new role as Dean of Men, O'Neal's duties included supervision of the male students and their dorms. In addition to his duties as a dean, he was a Foreign Student Advisor. O'Neal, who says his "whole life is at Harding," wanted to work this year to "be open to the personal needs of students, and to be of use where needed."

Kay Gowen moved into the office next door to O'Neal's when she took the position as Dean of Women. In the past, she has worked in Harding's Public Relations Department. During the 1973-4 school year, she served as an Editorial Associate, then she returned to the department in 1987 as Assistant Director of Public Relations.

In her new role as Dean of Women, Gowen worked "to assist students with their overall college experience, by upholding the philosophy and standards of the university." Gowen said the best part of her new role has been the close association with the kids. She spent the year trying to get to know students individually, letting them know she cared for them, and helping them understand the reasons for Harding's rules and regulations. Gowen also found time for serving outside her official duties as dean. She taught a bible class for college women and worked on the Spiritual Life, Public Relations and Counseling Referral Committees for the university.

Steve Beliech spent the year dividing his time between two positions, Assistant Dean of Men and Director of Student Activities. He worked under Foy O'Neal to oversee the male residence halls and also supervised Student Impact and Summer Experience. As director of Student Activities, Beliech helped to fill the void left when Dean of Campus Life Jerome Barnes was promoted to Vice President. He was the "entertainment liaison between the school and the community as to support both our events and community events." Beliech attempted "to reach out to areas of White County to inform them of our events schedule." Between work for both positions, he found time to serve as freshman class sponsor. "By eating with students, visiting on campus at night, visiting in the Student Center," Beliech strove to "create the knowledge that I am an administrator but mostly a friend." He worked "to build a bond of love, trust and friendship that would transcend his administrative position to reestablish and confirm his Christian purpose."

STUDENT DEANS

As the new deans settled into their new positions and new offices, changes naturally took place. We saw from the Student Affairs office a renewed, reinforced commitment to the values of the university as they guided students to pursue excellence academically, socially and spiritually.

— Melydia Clewell

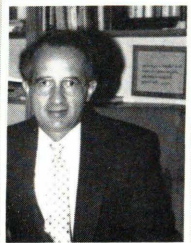

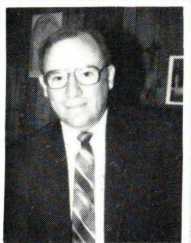

Winnie Bell, Director of the Library

Jimmy Carr, Assistant to the President

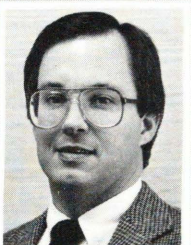

David Crouch, Director of Public Relations

Don Diffine, Director of The Belden Center

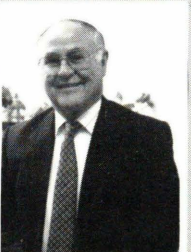

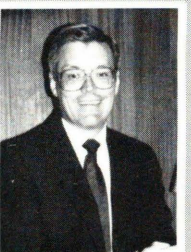

Ron Finley, Registrar

Al Fowler, Assistant Vice President of University Relations

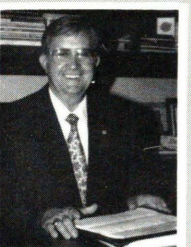

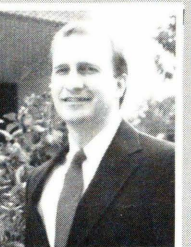

Tom Haward, Director of Institutional Testing

Wyatt Jones, Director of Graduate Studies

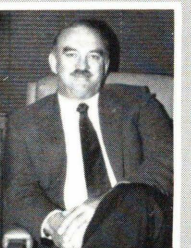

Carter Lambert, Director of Alumni Relations

Durward McGaha, Director of Placement and Career Counseling

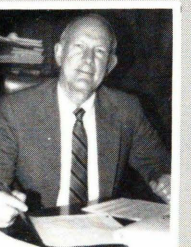

Lew Moore, Director of Counseling

John Nunnally, Director of Computer and Information Services

Harry Olree, Director of Athletics

Byron Rowan, Assistant Vice President for Finance

OFF DUTY. Dr. James F. Carr, Assistant to the President, spends some free time talking with campus minister Dwight Smith and a Harding supporter. Carr was often seen around campus getting to know the faculty and students. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

LIBRARY ASSISTANCE. Winnie Bell, Librarian, offers a student assistance with library resources. The staff was always helpful to both students and faculty. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

Directors manage various programs

Winnie E. Bell completed her fifteenth year as Harding's head librarian. She graduated from Harding College in 1949 with a B.A. in Business Education. She received her M.A. in Library Science from Peabody College in Nashville, TN. She joined the staff in 1959 as an assistant librarian. Bell spent this year "planning ways to make resources available to students." She looked forward to moving back into a newly remodeled library with an on-line catalogue, but she was content to spend the year in temporary facilities set up in the Administration building.

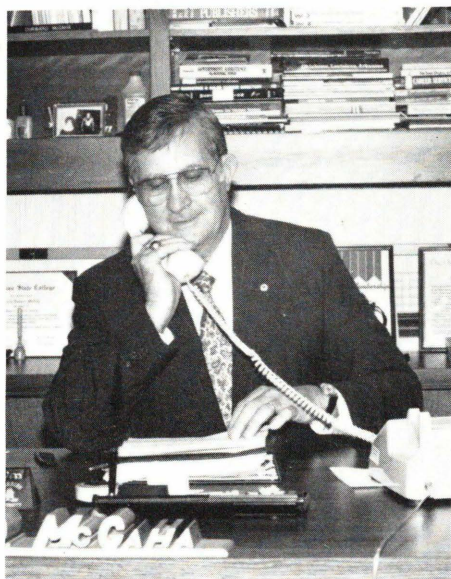

Dr. James F. Carr, Jr., continued to serve as Assistant to the President. Carr came to Harding in 1970 as the assistant dean of the college. He held the position for two years and was then given his present title. Carr retired from full-time work in 1983, but this year he was still very active on campus. Carr enjoyed the chance to work with the students and was grateful for the close relationship he shared with Harding's alumni and supporters.

David C. Crouch, Director of Public Relations, has been at Harding for 19 years. He served as the Director of Placement until 1987, when he was moved to his present job. Crouch is a member of the College of Christ, the Southwest Placement Association, and CASE, the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education.

C. Alvin Fowler was promoted from Director of Development to Assistant Vice President for University Relations. The 1968 Harding graduate worked directly under Floyd Daniel and also served on the Public Relations Committee. Fowler was also a member of the Searcy Chamber of Commerce and American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Dr. Thomas M. Howard served as the Director of Institutional Testing and Research Services. He received his doctorate from the University of Arkansas and joined the faculty at Harding in 1972. In addition to his responsibilities as an administrative director, he also spent time in the classroom as a professor of Political Science.

HOLD FOR MORE DATA, PLEASE. Durward McGaha, Director of Career Planning and Placement, gives information to a student over the phone. McGaha's office helped students make career decisions. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

In his second year as Harding's Registrar, Ron Finley faced a record enrollment of students. Finley's office was a vital part of the continued operations of the university. Their main duties were processing grades, maintaining transcripts, preparing the semester class schedules and conducting registration. Finley received his master's in education from the university of Arkansas and joined the faculty here in 1978.

Wyatt M. Jones completed his fourteenth year as Director of the Graduate Studies program. He was directly responsible for the graduate program, in addition to his work in the classroom. An alumnus of Harding, Jones became a professor of education after receiving his doctorate from the University of Alabama.

Carter Lambert was appointed the Director of Alumni Relations in January of 1989. He graduated from

ADMINISTRATIVE DIRECTORS

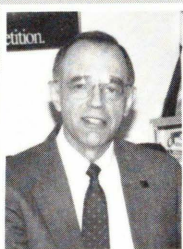

Harding in 1982 with a B.A. in English and in 1984 received his master's in physical education. Lambert built on solid programs of the past in an attempt to get students past and present involved in the work at Harding. His goal for the year was "to share with current students Harding's rich history of excellence and sacrifice."

Durward McGaha held the office of Director of Career Planning and Placement. McGaha joined the admissions office in 1973 and served as Director of Admissions from 1980 until his appointment as Director of Career Planning in January of 1987. He also served this year as Director of Student Employment and Assistant to the Executive Vice President. He worked this year to increase the number of recruiters by 25% over last year and to increase the number of students who use Harding's Career Placement services by 50%.

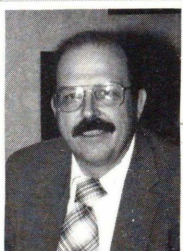

Dr. Lewis L. Moore, Director of the Counseling Center, received his B.A. from Harding and his doctorate from the University of Nebraska. He joined Harding's faculty in 1970 and is currently a professor of Psychology. In his ninth year as the center's director, Moore served over a six member staff to provide psychological services to the students.

(continued on page 271)

Robert Reely,
Director of the Small Business
Development Center

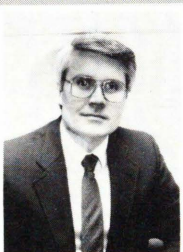

William Ryan,
Director of Physical
Plant Services

Don Shackelford,
Director of Harding
University in Florence

William Tucker,
University Attorney

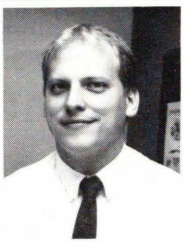

Zearl D. Watson,
Director of Student
Financial Services

Jim White, Director of Admissions
Services

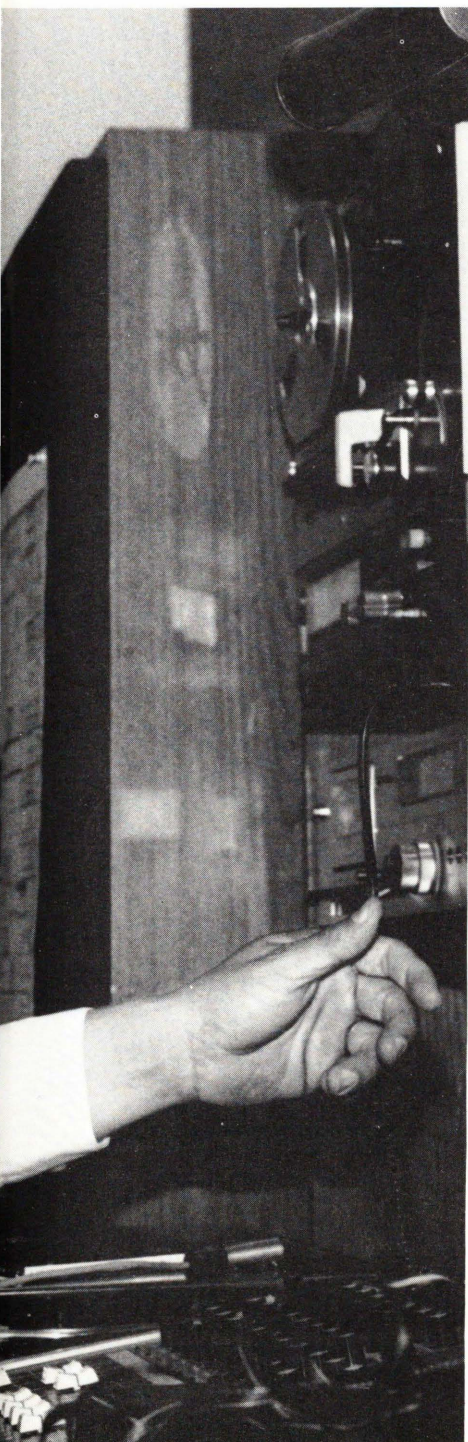

David B. Woodroof,
Director of Educational Media
Center

THAT'S A TAKE. David Woodroof, Director of the Media Center, dubs a tape for a customer. The Media Center offered a wide range of services to both students and staff. — Photo by Jeff Montgomery.

ROUGHING IT. Dr. Tom Howard, Director of Testing, chat with Dr. James Carr and Wilt Martin at Camp Takodah. The faculty retreat was held before classes began. — Photo by Kenneth Bissle.

(continued from page 269)

John W. Nunnally held the office of Director of Computer and Information Services for a third year. Before accepting his present position, he spent three years as the Director of the Administrative Computer Center. This year Nunnally was responsible for academic and administrative computer services, telecommunications and he invested the possibility of installing a campus computer network.

Dr. Harry Olree served on Harding's faculty for 32 years. He continued to serve as the Director of Athletics, overseeing the Intercollegiate Athletic Program and supervising the work of the coaches. Olree worked to "provide an opportunity for athletes with exceptional skill to compete favorably with athletes of other educational institutions."

Dr. Robert H. Reely, Jr., completed his second year as Associate Executive Director of the American Studies Institute. He also served as director of the management and marketing programs. Reely enjoyed setting up the American Studies Distinguished Speakers Program and looked forward to starting a conference center in the American Heritage.

Byron Rowan served as the Assistant Vice President for Finance. He worked directly with Vice President Lott Tucker, Jr., overseeing the university's finances and record keeping. He was involved in the coordination of Harding's five-year fund raising drive in the Searcy community.

ACADEMIC ADVISING. Dr. Don Shackelford, Director of HUF, advises a student. Shackelford was responsible for both student's and faculty's HUF preparation. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

Dr. William W. Ryan, Director of Physical Plant Services, joined the Harding faculty in 1983. In the classroom he was an associate professor of Computer Information Systems. Ryan was in charge of all campus maintenance, including the co-generation plant, plumbing and grounds beautification.

Dr. Don Shackelford completed his tenth year as Director of Harding University at Florence. He was responsible for teacher assignments, orientation of teachers and students and planning all of the HUF programs. Shackelford, who was also a professor of Bible, joined the faculty in 1972.

William Tucker served as the university attorney for an eighth year. Tucker provided legal representation for Harding and worked to improve the legal health of the university. He provided one-on-one counseling for students and opened his home for weekly Wednesday night Bible study.

ADMINISTRATIVE DIRECTORS

Zearl D. Watson continued to hold the position of Director of Student Financial Services. His office coordinated federal aid, endowments, loans and departmental and athletic scholarships for students who received financial services. Watson continued to run a tight ship in the financial affairs office as the number of students seeking aid increased.

James L. White completed another year as Director of Admissions. White oversaw the recruiting effort for the university and was directly responsible for recruiting in Arkansas. White enjoyed telling prospective students about the "Harding spirit" and planned for another capacity enrollment.

David B. Woodroof was the Director of the Media Center. His office provided photo copies to all the departments on campus, as well as supplying video, audio and slide equipment. They also offered other services, such as laminating and binding.

— Melydia Clewell

Faculty displays specialized talents

The Art Department was headed by Dr. Don Robinson as chairman. Robinson obtained his M.A. from Colorado State University and taught design-painting and jewelry classes.

Four other professors helped make up the art department this year. They were Gregory Clayton, Faye Doran, John Keller and Paul Pitt.

Clayton directed the computer graphics program. He also was asked to make a bronze cast bust of Dr. George S. Benson. Other sculptures done by Clayton could be found in various galleries throughout the country, including a gallery at Eastern Michigan University.

Doran received her Ed.D. from Penn State and this year directed the

CHALK WALK. Chris Kachouroff, freshman, sketches on the sidewalk outside the Art Building before Spring Sing Weekend. Every year art students decorated the walks for Spring Sing and Youth Forum. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Department of Art

Interior Design program. Doran specialized in weaving. She was known around the state and the region for her art work.

Keller received his Ph.D. from the University of Nebraska. His specialty was watercolor and paint making. He directed the teaching program from the art department this year.

Pitt specialized in ceramics. He was a member of the Little Ozark Foothills Association. He had a master's in ceramic and painting from Memphis State University.

This year the Art department's activities included weekly senior art showings and an all student show during Spring Sing weekend. A faculty show was also held the first week of the spring semester.

— Lori Rose

SOFT AND SQUISHEY. Darlene Sellers, senior, listen to Greg Clayton as he instructs her in the basics of sculpture. Clayton served as Assistant Professor of Art. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

Greg Clayton, M.F.A.-Assistant Professor of Art
Faye Doran, Ed.D.-Professor of Art
John Keller, Ph.D.-Associate Professor of Art
Paul Pitt, M.F.A.-Professor of Art

Don Robinson, M.A.-Professor of Art & Chairman of the Department

Biology department offers courses

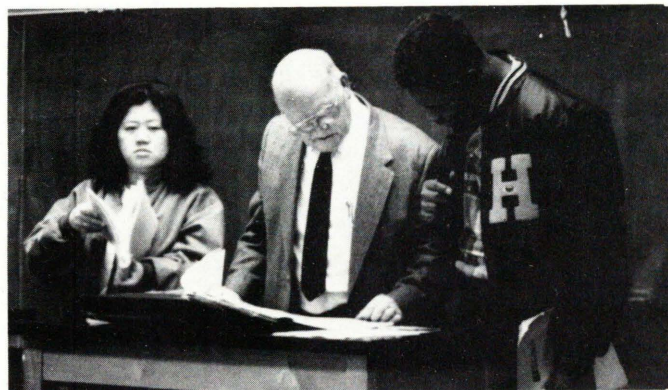

The Biology Department was designed to provide a basic knowledge of biology as a necessary part of general education, to train teachers of biology, to equip students for graduate study and to prepare students to pursue medicine, dentistry, nursing, medical technology and other professions.

Led, by Michael V. Plummer, acting chairman, the faculty included Bryce Roberson, William Rushton, George Woodruff, Ronald Doran and Adjunct Instructor Retta Dean.

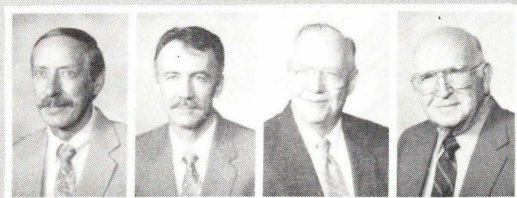

Biology majors could elect either the Bachelor of Arts or the Bachelor of Science program. Classes included such interesting subjects as Entomology and Herpetology.

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Department of Biology

CHECKING GRADES. Jenny Kwa, sophomore, and Wayne Shorter, freshman, check scores with George Woodruff, professor of biology, before class. Biology 111 was a general education requirement. — Photo by Jeff Montgomery.

Ronald H. Doran, M.S.-Associate Professor of Biology
Bryce Roberson, Ph.D.-Professor of Biology
William F. Rushton, M.A.-Professor of Biology
George W. Woodruff, Ed.D.-Professor of Biology

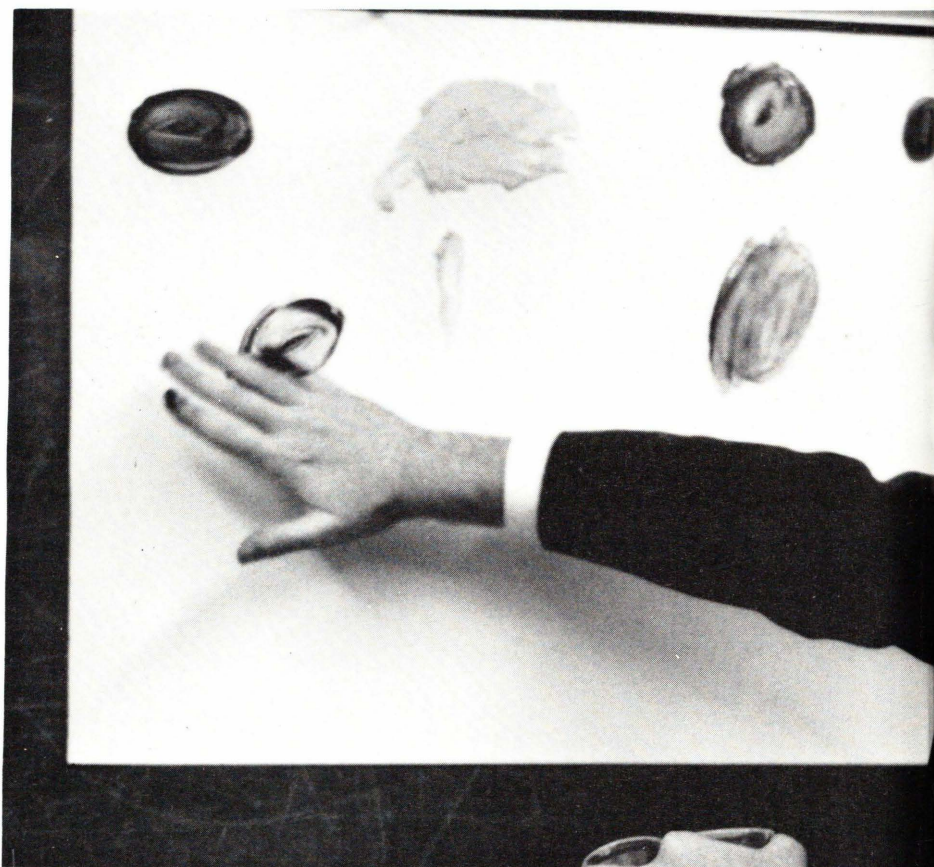

Department provides useful experience

The goal of the communication department was to offer hands-on experience to those students who chose one of the broad area communication majors. The department offered degrees in the areas of oral communication, communication disorders, theater and mass communication.

Dr. Louis Butterfield returned from graduate work at Texas Tech University and upon his return, Mike James left to pursue his doctorate at Florida State University in Tallahassee, Fla. James was working on a degree in mass communication. Steve Frye joined the faculty in August to teach classes in the area of mass communication.

Mass communication students developed professional skills while working in the campus radio and television stations. All majors were required to spend a semester at each

EVERYTHING I NEED TO KNOW I LEARNED IN KINDERGARTEN ... Jack Shock demonstrates color blending with fingerpaints. Shock's typography class was required for all print communication majors. — Photo by Wayne Westerholm

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Department of Communications media outlet.

Theater students were active in several productions during the year. The Pied Pipers were directed by Andy Kronenwetter, a graduate student who worked to perfect the group's children's theater presentation. Dr. Morris Ellis directed the fall musical presentation, Brigadoon, and was a technical advisor for Spring Sing 90. Ellis also directed the department's entry in the American College Theater Festival in the fall and coordinated the Summer Dinner Theater.

The forensics team competed in several tournaments throughout the year and planned a trip to a competition in California. Debate teams and competitors in individual events categories enjoyed a string of wins. Dr. Pat Garner, forensics director, spent the spring semester at HUF.

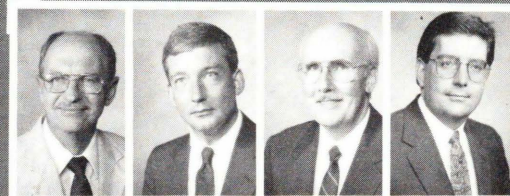

The department offered communication disorders majors the opportunity to experience therapy situations first hand through the speech therapy clinic located in the Ganus Building. Directed by Dr. Daniel Tullos, the clinic provided therapy for clients with a variety of speech and hearing problems. Portions of the building were remodeled to provide a conference room and office space.

— Mary Williams

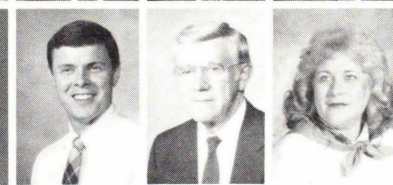

CREATIVE WRITING. Dr. Ray Wright listens to a student's work during the creative writing class. The class was revived due to student demand. — Photo by Dena Fritcher.

Morris R. Ellis, Ph.D.-Associate Professor of Communication
Patrick Garner, Ph.D.-Professor of Speech
John H. Ryan, Ph.D.-Professor of Communication & Chairman of the Department
Jack R. Shock, M.A.-Assistant Professor of Communication

Daniel Tullos, Ph.D. C.C.C., S.L.P.-Associate Professor of Communication
Evan Ulrey, Ph.D.-Professor of Communication
Rebecca Weaver, M.C.D.-Assistant Professor of Communication, Supervisor of the Communications Disorders Clinic

WHAT'S UP, DR. LOU? Dr. Louis Butterfield, Associate Professor of Communication, instructs his class with his own enthusiastic style. The department of Communication taught classes in communication disorders, oral communication and Mass Media. — Photo by Johnathan Nail.

Department growth is prominent factor

Growth was a prominent factor in the English Department for the 89-90 school year. Dr. Kenneth Hammes was added to the faculty and he brought a good sense of humor to the department that endeared him to many students. After a ten-year absence, a creative writing course was added to the schedule. The class, which was taught by Dr. Ray Wright, was revived due to student demand.

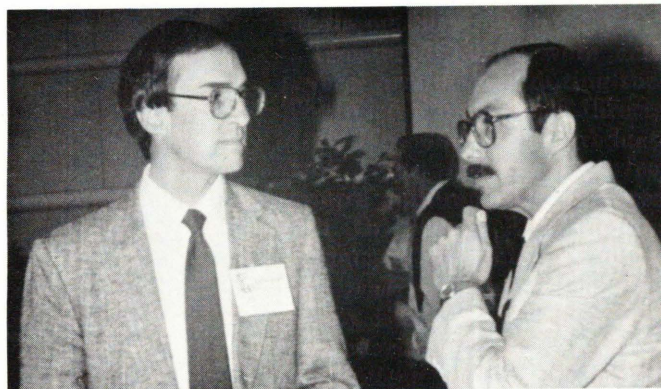

For the first time the department published a newsletter for English majors. According to Dr. Dennis Organ, chairman of the department, "The newsletter was started to keep the students up on the activities and opportunities available to them here."

The department sponsored several activities for English majors as well, beginning with a student-teacher picnic held at Riverside Park in the

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Department of English Language and Literature

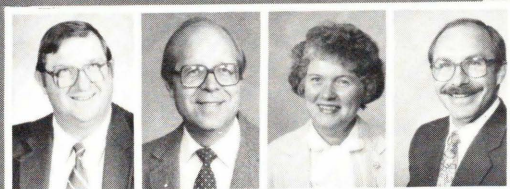

COLLECTING HIS THOUGHTS. Dr. Dennis Organ and Dr. Larry Long chat during the parent's breakfast held on Homecoming weekend. Organ served as chairman of the English Department. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

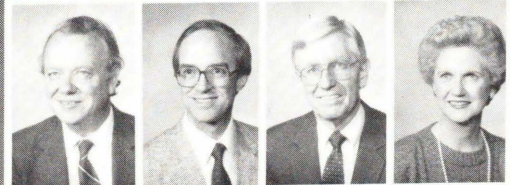

fall. The outing allowed faculty members, their families and students to become better acquainted. The annual Creative Writing Contest was held in the Spring with the results announced at the Departmental Awards Banquet in March.

In the future the Department planned to host the annual Southwest Region Conference on Christianity and Literature, scheduled to be held in September of 1990. The Department also developed an extensive network of graduates from fields other than teaching. These former students were available to counsel and advise present students on the different paths that English majors can take. "It is important for those who do not want to teach to know there are other career opportunities," explained Organ. "The possibilities are limitless."

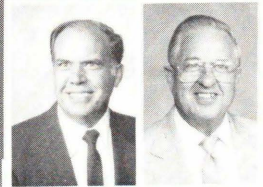

— Trina Shaw

Rodger Brewer, Ph.D.-Associate Professor of English
Kenneth Hammes, Ph.D.-Associate Professor of English
Alice K. Jewell, M.A.-Associate Professor of English
Larry Long, Ph.D.-Professor of English, Director of the Honors Program

Duane McCampbell, Ph.D.-Professor of English
Dennis Organ, Ph.D.-Professor of English & Chairman of the Department
Charles Pittman, M.A.-Professor of English
Betty Ulrey, M.Ed.-Associate Professor of English

Eugene Underwood, Ed.D.-Professor of English
Ray Wright, D.A.-Assistant Professor of English

LEARNING TO COMMUNICATE. Celest Selby, junior, asks a question of Richard Walker after class. Walker was a speech professor. — Photo by Dena Fritcher.

Department looks to the future

The professors and instructors of the Foreign Language Department were kept busy this year, as usual. Robert Helsten, professor of Bible and German instructor, announced his retirement plans and a search was underway to find a replacement for him.

Other teachers in the department were Winfred Wright, chairman of the department and professor of French; his wife, Dorothy Wright, also a professor of French; Ava Conley, associate professor of Spanish; and Terry Edwards, assistant professor of Italian at HUF.

During the summer months, Spanish teacher Ava Conley sponsored a work-tour known in Central America as the Venezuela-Latin America Work-Study program. Students working under the program spent six

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Department of Foreign Language and International Studies

to seven weeks of the summer in a Latin American country on campaigns. This enabled the students to learn more about the culture of the Latin people and gave them a chance to spread the gospel. The program gave students six credit hours, five in Spanish and one in missions.

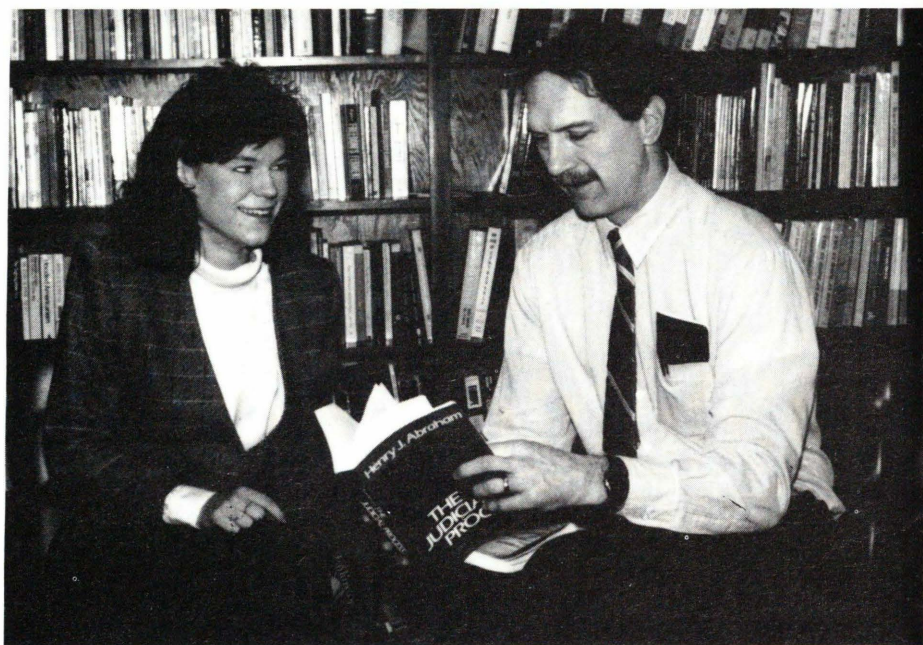

Clubs in the Foreign Languages Department include Le'Cercle Francais, the French club and Los Amigos, the Spanish club.

When asked about expectations for the department in the future, Chairman Winfred Wright noted a need for a more frequent use of video material in the classroom and outside it. Also, computer software in the foreign languages is something he looks forward to seeing. Wright would also like to encourage foreign language study be required for the general course requirements.

Goals of the department include preparing even more students for life and work in a world where communication with people of other cultures and languages is becoming increasingly more important.

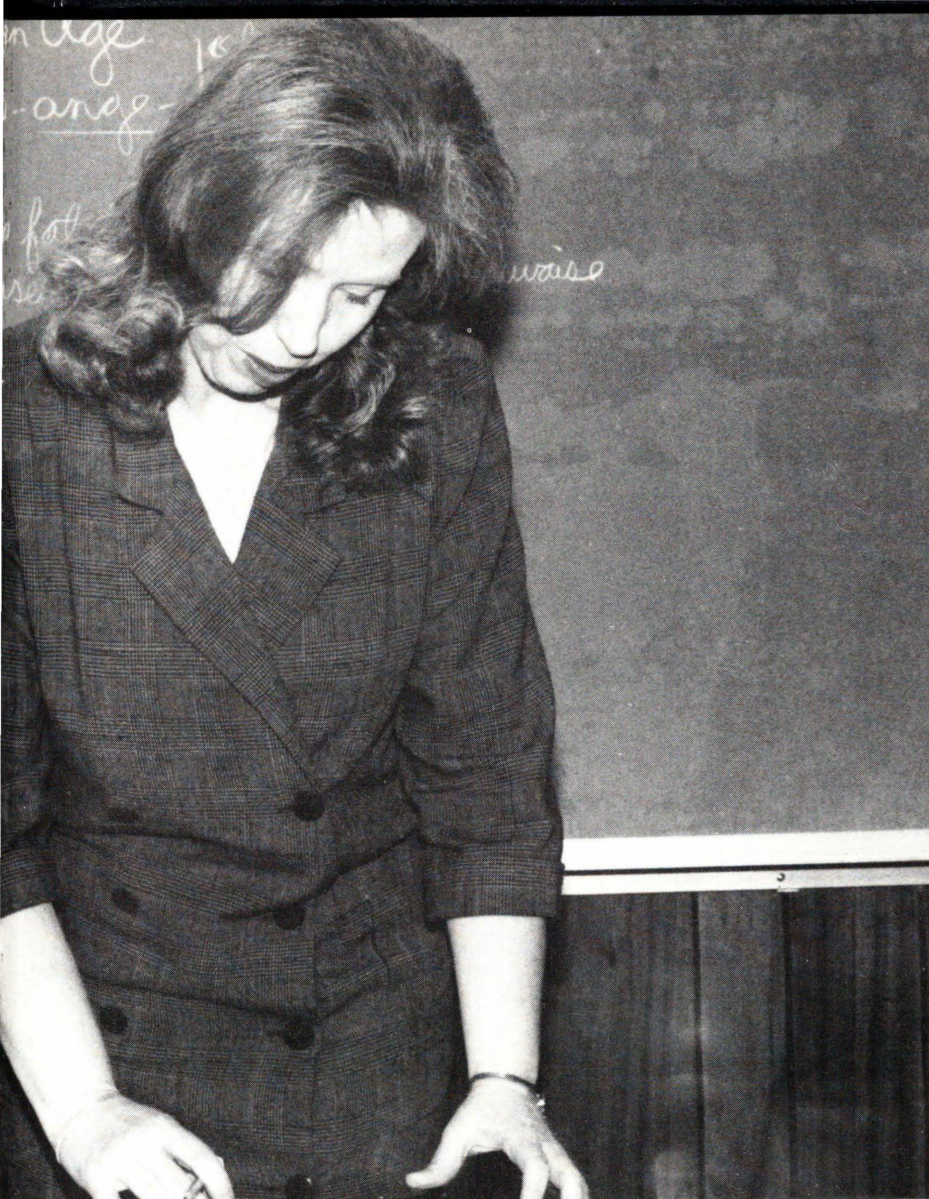

— Ronnie Biggs

CHOOSING A TOPIC. Dr. Fred Jewell, Professor of History, helps Jan Kessler, senior, decide on a term paper topic. Harding professors spent many of their office hours assisting students with their classes. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

Ava Conley, M.A.-Associate Professor of Spanish
Robert Helsten, M.A.-Professor of German
Dorothy Wright, Dr. de l'Universite-Professor of French
Winfred Wright, Dr. De l'Universite-Professor of French & Chairman of the Department

LEARNING A LANGUAGE. Floyd Jones, sophomore, gets a little extra assistance from Ava Conley, assistant professor of Spanish. Language classes required hours of preparation. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

Lawyer retires; Faculty keeps busy

The professors and instructors of the History and Political Science department were once again kept very busy this year. Ray Muncy continued as chairman of the department, and in addition to departmental duties, Muncy began plans to compile an archive of church history, using papers and periodicals submitted by ministers and congregations. He also continued to sponsor the Barristers, Harding's pre-law organization, and he organized the department's "Evening of Scholarship", held in the spring.

After spending the fall semester at HUF, Virgil Lawyer retired from the faculty, and plans were also made to begin a search for his replacement.

Mark Elrod, instructor of political science, devoted much of his spare time to sponsoring Harding's chapters of Amnesty International and

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Department of History and Social Science

STUDENT CENTER POLITICS. Mark Elrod, instructor of Political Science, and Don Allen Frost senior, take a minute for a little out-of-the-classroom visiting. Harding prided herself on her student-teacher relationships. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

the Sam Adams Society. Elrod also stayed busy behind the desk. His article, "NATO Burden Sharing and the Forces of Change," was published in the International Studies Quarterly, a publication which reaches history teachers in the United States and abroad.

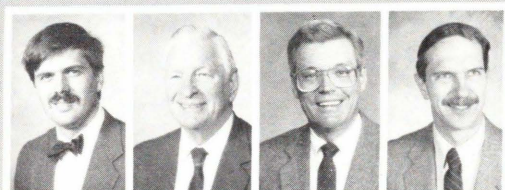

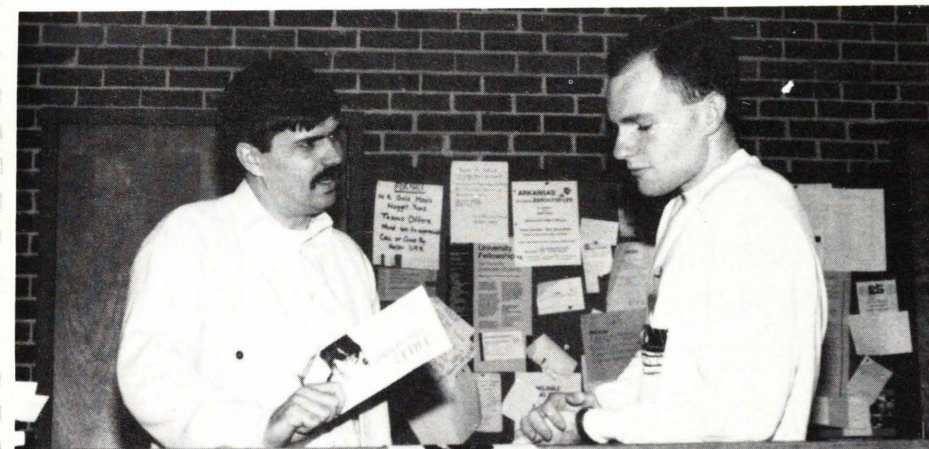

Fred Jewell was known for more than just his class discussions. Dr. Jewell was once again elected secretary of the Arkansas Association of College History Teachers. It was his fourth consecutive term as AACHT secretary, and he was also elected to the governing board of Phi Alpha Theta, the national history society. Jewell sponsored the Phi Alpha Theta chapter at Harding.

Clifton L. Ganus, Jr., continued to spend time in the classroom as a professor of history, in addition to serving as the university's chancellor.

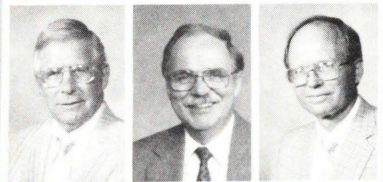

Tom Howard sponsored Psi Sigma Alpha, the political science organization, and also directed the Institutional Testing and Research Services.

Under Harding's current program, students in the History and political science fields could focus on areas ranging from history education to international politics.

— Ronnie Biggs

Mark Elrod, M.A.-Instructor of Political Science
Clifton L. Ganus, Sr., Ph.D.-Professor of History
Tom Howard, Ed.D.-Professor of Political Science
Fred Jewell, Ed.D.-Professor of History

Virgil Lawyer, M.A.-Professor of History & Social Science
Raymond Muncy, Ph.D.-Distinguished Professor of History & Chairman of the Department
Joe Segraves, Ph.D.-Professor of History

Students prepare for family careers

Home Economics is a profession whose basic philosophy is to improve the quality of life for individuals and families. One of the objectives of Harding's Home Economics department is to prepare professionals for a variety of careers specializing in the family.

This year, chairman Elizabeth Wilson spent time working on her doctorate dissertation at Memphis State University. Wilson also performed a dietetics self-study to insure a quality program for dietetics majors.

Sharen Crockett was the director of the Child Development Center and was also one of five outstanding child care providers recognized by Arkansas governor Bill Clinton.

Loleta Higginbotham continued to teach fashion merchandising and consumer economics courses, and was also the supervisor of the home

TUTTI FRUITI. Lynn England, associate professor of home economics, gives Wendy Blades, sophomore, a hand in preparing a fruit salad. Food preparation was just one aspect of the home economics course study. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Department of Home Economics

economics student teachers. She also sponsored the Harding chapter of AHEA, the American Home Economics Association.

Terri Rine worked as the assistant director of the child development lab, and under her lead, the center extended its hours from half-day to full-time.

The Home Economics department received a grant from the U.S. Department of Education this fall. Working under a literacy program, student tutors were provided for unwed, pregnant teenagers enrolled in the GED program.

Registered dietitian Lisa Ritchie joined the department this year and taught food and nutrition classes. — Kelly Jaye Thomason

Sharon Ann Crockett, M.S., C.H.E.—
Associate Professor of Home Economics
Lynn England, M.A., C.H.E.—Associate
Professor of Home Economics
Loleta Higginbotham, M.A.T., C.H.E.—
Assistant Professor of Home Economics
Elizabeth Wilson, M.A., C.H.E.—
Associate Professor of Home Economics
& Chairman of the Department

CHECK THIS THEORY OUT. Scott Ragsdale and junior Jim Laughery look through the sports section of the Daily Citizen. Ragsdale spent time in the classroom and was an assistant football coach. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

BASES LOADED. Steve Smith, chairman of the department, flashes a smile during a Bison baseball game. Smith also served as the team's head coach. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

Department strives to meet goals

The mathematics and computer science department worked to meet its pre-set objectives. Those objectives included providing cultural training in mathematics, preparing teachers for secondary school mathematics, providing basic training in computing and giving the basic training needed in mathematics for students of science.

Dr. Steve Smith continued to serve as head of the department. Bill Oldham was the Director of Mathematics Education and Tim Baird served as Director of Computing Degrees. John Nunnally held the position of Director of Computer and Information Services.

Under the direction of Steve Baber, Harding sent two computer programming teams to regional competition. Among schools from Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and other schools from Arkansas, both of

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

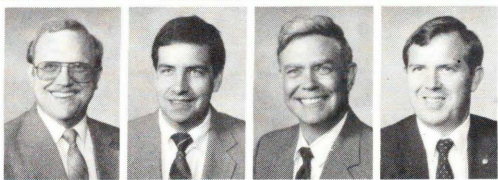

Department of Mathematics and Computer Science

Harding's teams made strong showings, finishing in the top ten in the undergraduate category.

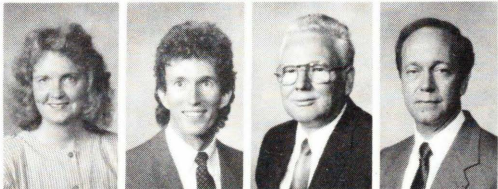

Deborah Duke worked on various studies during the summer and Tim Baird spent the year following up on his dissertation.

Travis Thompson was in charge of coordinating all of the department's incoming grants, including one from the Exxon corporation. The Exxon grant was made possible by a legislative bill which also made algebra a general requirement for colleges. The Aegis grant enabled the professors to spend two weeks in the summer challenging high school students in mathematics or computing.

— Kelly Jaye Thomason

Stephen Baber, Ph.D.-Associate Professor of Math & Computer Science
Tim Baird, Ph.D.-Assistant Professor of Computer Science & CIS, Director of Computer Degree Program
Harmon Brown, Ph.D.-Professor of Math
Gene Dugger, M.S.-Associate Professor of Math & Computer Science

Deborah Duke, M.S.E.-Instructor of Math
Randy Maddox, Ph.D.-Assistant Professor of Math
Bill Oldham, Ed.D.-Professor of Math, Director of Math Education
Dean Priest, Ph.D.-Professor of Math & Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences

Scott Ragsdale, M.S.E.-Instructor of Math & Computer Science
Steve Smith, Ph.D.-Professor of Math & Chairman of the Department
Travis Thompson, Ph.D.-Associate Professor of Math & Computer Science

Musical groups provide enrichment

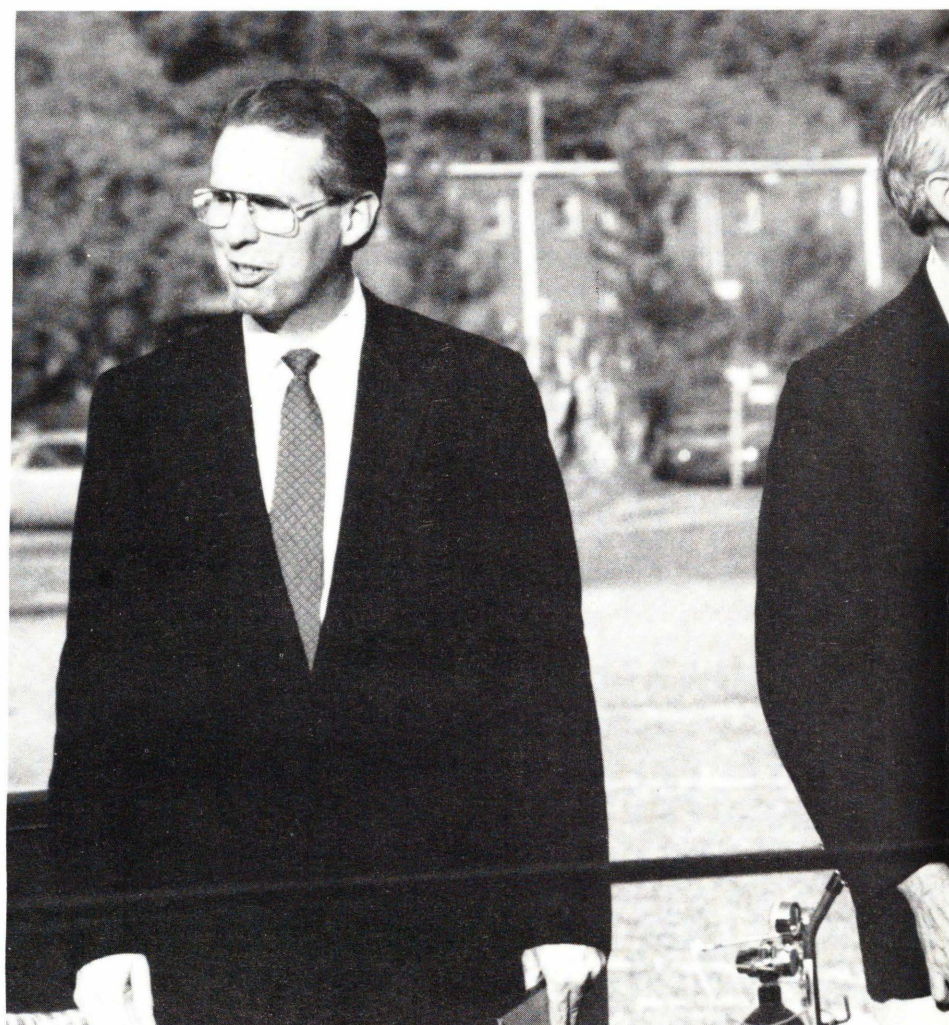

Providing students the cultural enrichment afforded by musical experiences was just one of the goals of the music department. The music faculty worked to help students to develop a higher understanding of the musical arts.

Eight professors instructed the students with Dr. William Hollaway serving as department chairman. Jeff Hopper and Laura White joined the faculty after completing studies elsewhere.

Several students received private instruction from faculty members. Instruction was offered for both voice and instrument.

Articles by Dr. George Baggett appeared in the newsletter of the Society for Music Teachers in Education, a publication for music teachers.

Dr. Clifton L. Ganus, III, directed the University Chorus and the Uni-

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Department of Music

versity Singers. Dr. Arthur Shearin directed the Concert Choir, which participated in the Christian College Choral Festival held at Abilene Christian University.

Dr. Warren Casey and Patricia Cox directed the various instrumental groups that students could participate in. Academic achievers were awarded with membership in the Academic Choral Directors Association, sponsored by Ganus, and the Student Music National Education Conference sponsored by Baggett.

The department offered a Bachelor of Music Education in Instrumental and vocal/choral and a bachelor of Arts in Music.

— G. Shawn Morgan

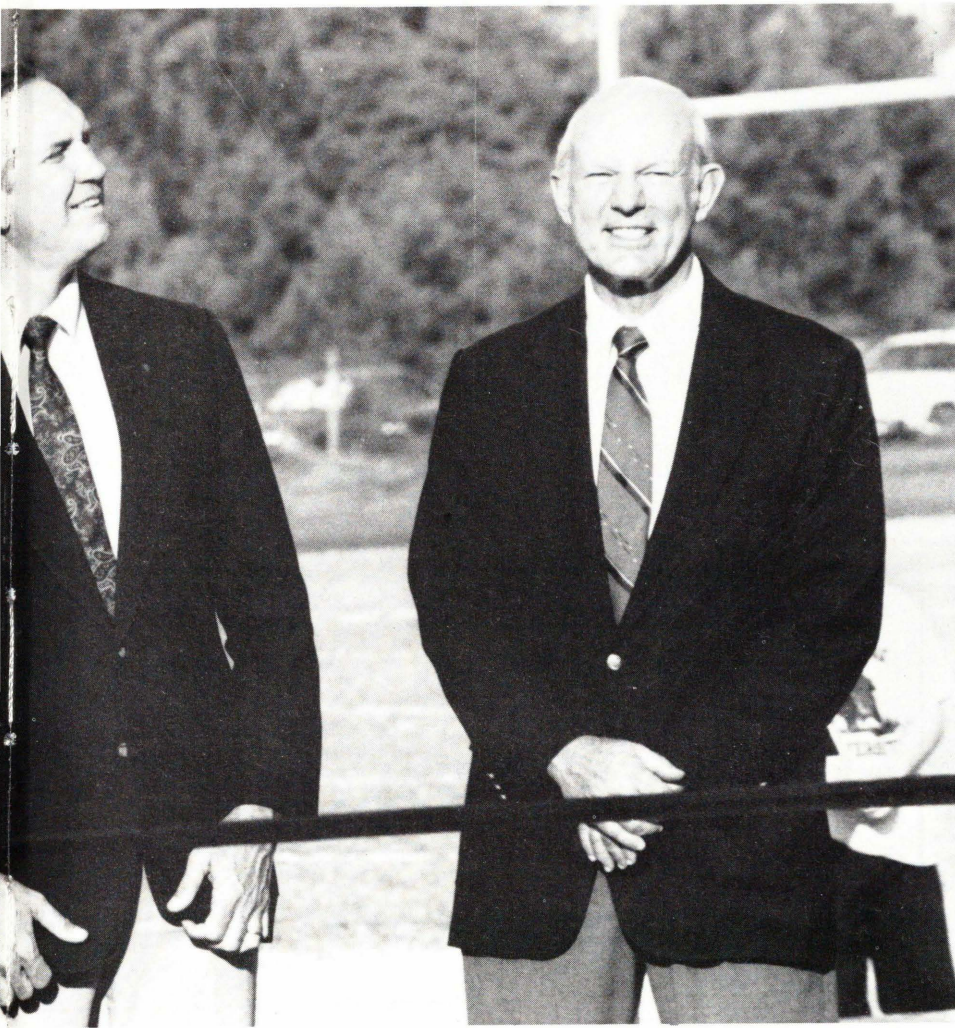

NEXT SELECTION. Dr. Arthur Shearin announces another piece by the Concert Choir during a chapel performance. The group also performed at a festival held at ACU. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

George E. Baggett, D.M.E.-Professor of Music
J. Warren Casey, Ph.D.-Associate Professor of Music
Patricia Cox, M.Ed.-Assistant Professor of Music
Cliff Ganus III, D.M.A.-Professor Music

William Hollaway, Ph.D.-Professor of Music & Chairman of the Department
Lisbeth Jones, B.A.-Adjunct Professor of Piano
Arthur L. Shearin, D.M.A.-Professor of Music
Neva White, M.M.-Associate Professor of Piano

RED RIBBON DAY. Dr. David Burks, Ted Lloyd, track coach, and Harry Olree, Athletic Director, await the dedication of the new track. The track was named in honor of James D. Key. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

Athletic teams excel in every way

Harding's athletic teams got off to a great start this year, winning four AIC championships by November. Under the direction of Ted Lloyd, both the men's and women's cross country teams won the AIC and NAIA District 17 championships. Lloyd was named AIC and NAIA District 17 coach of the year and was chosen to be assistant men's track coach of the 1990 Goodwill Games.

Coach Larry Richmond, Ronnie Huckleba, Randy Tribble and James Frank helped the Bison football team take a share of the AIC championship, and Richmond was chosen to be NAIA District 17 and the AIC coach of the year.

Karyl Bailey saw the lady Bisons' team win the AIC championship in volleyball. Bailey was named NAIA District 17 and AIC girls' volleyball coach of the year.

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Department of Physical Education, Health and Recreation

After an impressive start on the year, the faculty worked to continue improving the P.E. program. Mike Pruitt was added to the faculty to oversee the intramural program for men and Barbara Barnes continued to direct the women's program. Both received assistance from coach Jack Boustead.

Jess Bucy put in his last year as head coach of the men's basketball team. Assistant coach Nicky Boyd was selected to replace Bucy at the end of the 89-90 season. Greg Harden began his first year as head coach for the women's basketball team.

Another addition, Russell Showalter, coached the men's golf team and David Elliot oversaw the tennis team.

Bob Corbin was asked to head the new exercise and physiology research lab, and he continued to teach beginning physical education classes. Kathryn Campbell taught swimming and lifesaving courses and was the cheerleaders' sponsor. John Prock continued to be a valuable asset to the department, assisting coaches and spending time in the classroom.

Harry Olree, in his thirtieth year with the department, continued to serve as chairman. Olree received help from assistant chairman Wilton Martin and assistant athletic director Ted Altman.

— Melydia Clewell

Karyl Bailey, Ph.D.-Professor of Physical Education, Women's Volleyball coach

Barbara Barnes, M.A.T.-Professor of Physical Education, Women's Intramural Director

Jack Boustead, M.Ed.-Associate Professor of Physical Education

Nicky Boyd, M.Ed.-Assistant Professor of Physical Education, Assistant Basketball Coach

Jess Bucy, M.S.E.-Professor of Physical Education, Basketball Coach

Kathryn Campbell, M.A.T.-Professor of Physical Education, Cheerleading Sponsor

Bob J. Corbin, M.Ed.-Professor of Physical Education, Research Associate

David Elliott, M.A.T.-Associate Professor of Physical Education, Tennis Coach

James Frank, B.A.-Assistant Instructor of Physical Education, Assistant Football Coach

Ronnie Huckleba, M.A.-Assistant Professor of Physical Education, Assistant Football Coach

Ted Lloyd, M.S.-Professor of Physical Education, Track and Cross Country Coach

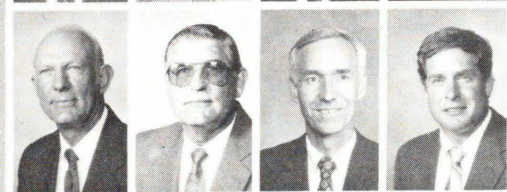

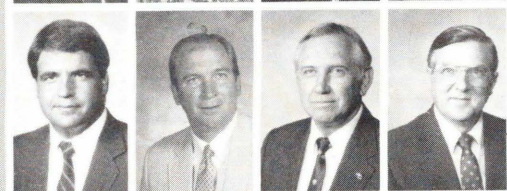

Wilt Martin, Ed.D.-Professor of Recreation & Assistant Chairman of the Department

Harry Olree, Ed.D.-Professor of Physical Education, Athletic Director & Chairman of the Department

John Prock, M.T.-Professor of Physical Education

Mike Pruitt, D.A.-Professor of Physical Education, Intramural Director

Larry Richmond, M.Ed.-Assistant Professor of Physical Education, Football Coach

Randy O. Tribble, M.Ed.-Assistant Professor of Physical Education, Assistant Football Coach

Science center named for Joseph E. Pryor

Increasing the students' general culture and training high school science teachers were two of the objectives of the physical science department this year.

Don England served as chairman of the department, and his specialty course in biochemistry was a favorite among students. England, who served as an elder at the College church of Christ, was the speaker at a gospel meeting at the Westside church in the fall.

After hours in the physics classroom, James Mackey often found time to referee soccer games, while Lambert Murray spent part of his free time as a sponsor for Chi Sigs. After Chemistry labs were over, Carroll Smith was active in a cave club and William Williams went in search of rare chemistry books for his collection. Dr. Ed Wilson continued to offer his photography services for many club parties and banquets. Wilson also sponsored the Pre-Med

DEDICATION. Dr. Joseph E. Pryor makes his speech at the dedication of the science building in his honor. Pryor retired last year as a Professor of physical science. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Department of Physical Science and Chemistry clubs.

David Cole joined the physical science faculty this year to teach earth and physical science classes and an organic chemistry course. He also spent time working on his doctorate at Western Michigan University.

Joe Pryor, former academic vice president and academic dean, was named professor emeritus of physical science. As a part of this fall's Homecoming activities, the Science building was named in honor of Pryor, for his contributions to the department and the university.

— Kelly Jaye Thomason

LAB STUDIES. Jackie Valentine, Diana Washington, and Tracy Parks, all freshman, work together on a group project. Labs provided the practical experience needed for science majors. — Photo by Sharon Bowles

SCIENCE OF COMPUTING. Ed Wilson, professor of physical science, assists Lisa Bailey, senior, with a computer program. Bailey was a chemistry major — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

H. David Cole, M.A.-Associate Professor of Chemistry
Don England, Ph.D.-Distinguished Professor of Chemistry & Chairman of the Department
James Mackey, Ph.D.-Professor of Physics
Lambert Murray, Ph.D.-Professor of Physics

Joseph E. Pryor, Ph.D.-Emeritus Professor of Physical Science
Carroll Smith, Ph.D.-Professor of Chemistry
William D. Williams, Ph.D.-Professor of Chemistry
Edmond Wilson, Ph.D.-Professor of Chemistry

Success attributed to Thomas and faculty

Dr. Jack Thomas attributed his department's success to the teachers. The teachers in the Department of Psychology, Social Work and Sociology said Thomas runs a tight ship. It is a healthy combination that makes this department offer one of the most exciting programs on campus.

Ken Hobby joined the department this year and quickly became a student favorite. Hobby last taught as an adjunct professor at Northeastern Oklahoma State University. Together with Walter Porter, Hobby sponsored the Psychology club, helping secure prominent speakers for the majors' meetings.

Lewis Moore served as the Director of the Counseling Center while Dwight Ireland spent half-time hours in the counseling center and also taught in the psychology classroom half-time. Linda Thompson served as the Director of the Program for Academic Success, and Vice

LECTURE. Jack Thomas, Professor of Psychology lectures in one of his classes. Thomas also served as chairman of the department. Photo by Sharon Bowles.

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

Department of Psychology, Social Work and Sociology

SCHEDULING. Dwight Ireland, Associate Professor of Psychology, assists Robin Worrell, junior, with her class schedule. Faculty members were known for their eagerness to assist students in any way. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

President for Student Affairs Jerome Barnes was available to spend time in the classroom. George Oliver, Dean of the School of Business, instructed human resource majors, and he split the supervision of that major with Thomas.

Mary Shock, Director of the Social Work Program, worked with Thomas to devise a curriculum that would meet the standard set by the National Council on Social Work. Under this program, social work majors could eliminate up to one year of the average time spent acquiring a master's degree.

Lou Pace sponsored the Social Work club, which performed various community service projects. Two monthly chapel programs enabled Harding's students to recognize the accomplishments of special people. Blue Ribbon Day recognized kids from the Sunshine School and Resident of the Month recognized the elderly in White County.

In March, Thomas and Terry Smith attended the convention for the Council on Social Work Education in Reno, Nev.

As the year grew to a close, students from this department continued to be accepted to recognized graduate school.

— Melydia Clewell

Kenneth Hobby, Ph.D.-Associate Professor of Psychology
Kathy Howard, M.S.-Assistant Professor of Psychology
Dwight Ireland, Ed.D.-Associate Professor of Psychology
Lew Moore, Ph.D.-Professor of Psychology Director of Counseling

Louise Pace, M.S.S.W.-Associate Professor of Social Work
Sherry Pollard, Ed.D.-Counselor
Mary Shock, M.S.W.-Associate Professor & Director of Social Work
Terry Smith, M.S.W.-Adjunct Professor of Social Work

Jack Thomas, Ph.D.-Professor of Psychology & Chairman of the Department
Linda Thompson, M.Ed.-Instructor of Psychology, Director of the Program for Academic Success
Bill Verkler, Ph.D.-Professor of Sociology

Mitchell appointed Dean of the College

Harding's College of Bible and Religion played an important role in the lives of students pursuing careers in the area of Biblical studies. There were four main areas in the College of Bible and Religion: Biblical Languages, Religious Education, Vocational Ministry and Bible and Religion, with a special program for women.

Mitchell spent the year trying to strictly focus the curriculum for Bible related majors. Mitchell explained, "In the past we have allowed our Bible majors to attend classes that are intended for students with many different kinds of majors. We're now trying to single out our Bible students so that we can focus more attention on them." Mitchell hoped this improvement would help students better prepare for jobs in the ministry.

I BEFORE E EXCEPT AFTER ... Bill Lambert, associate professor of Bible, teaches a class in the English department. Lambert served double duty, teaching both Bible and English. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

"ONCE UPON A TIME ... Dr. Carl Mitchell lectures to a class. This fall Mitchell assumed the position of Dean of the College of Bible and Religion. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

COLLEGE OF BIBLE AND RELIGION

Another part of Mitchell's growth process was the implementation of an internship program. Under the direction of Don Shackelford, Mitchell saw the newly created Church Relations office as a way to help with the problem of decreasing enrollment for Bible majors. "I hope we can offer our students an opportunity to work with a local congregation while they remain students."

Harding's program was unique, as Mitchell said, "We are the only university in the brotherhood with a school of Biblical studies." A large percentage of the undergraduate students in the department chose to continue their educational pursuits through the graduate program in Memphis.

The department also offered students opportunities to participate in activities that would enrich and encourage their growth. retreats, seminars, lectureships and campaigns give students a chance to practice what they've learned in the classroom.

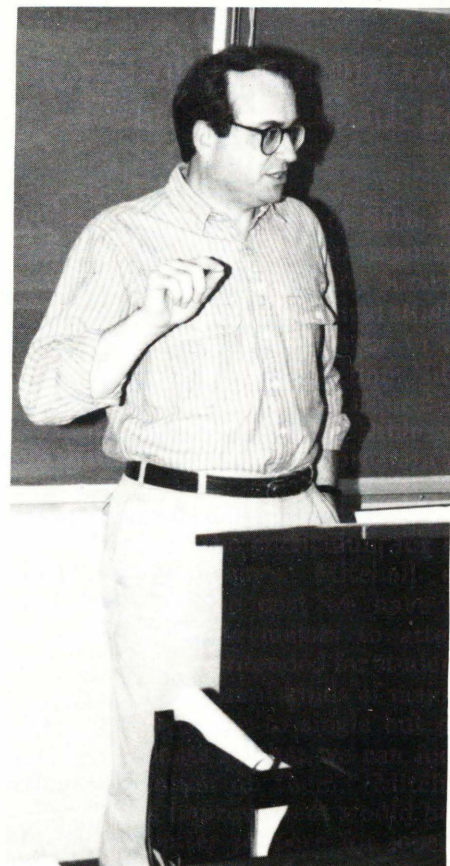

With a staff of 22, the department was excited about the changes as well as the traditions that have helped create the unique atmosphere in the College of Bible and Religion and, according to Mitchell, "is one of the best programs in the brotherhood."

— Virgil Walker

RECRUITING. Van Tate talks with Lisa Ort, junior, about mission work. More than 400 students participated in the various summer campaigns. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

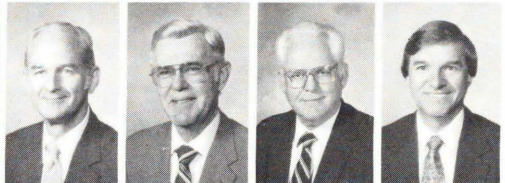

MAKING A POINT. Tom Alexander, assistant professor of Bible, makes a point to his Life of Christ class. The class focused on studying the gospels. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

Tom Alexander, M.Th.-Assistant Professor of Bible
Jimmy Allen, H.Hd.-Professor of Bible
Eddie Cloer, M.Th.-Associate Professor of Bible
Ross Cochran, M.Th.-Assistant Professor of Bible

James Thomas Eddins, III, M.Th.-Associate Professor of Bible
Robert H. Helsten, M.A.-Professor of Bible
Allan L. Isom, Ed.D.-Professor of Bible
Joe D. Jones, M.A. Associate Professor of Bible

Jack McKinney, M.A.-Associate Professor of Bible and Biblical Languages
Ken Miller, Ed.D. Associate Professor of Bible
L.V. Pfeifer, Th.M. Associate Professor of Bible, Director HSBS
Paul Pollard, Ph.D. Professor of Bible, Associate Dean of the College

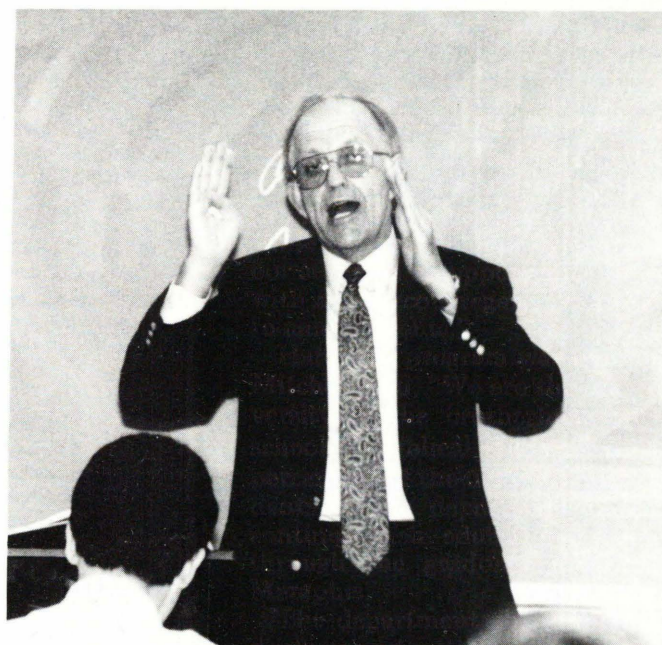

Neale Pryor, Th.D. Professor of Bible
Ed Sanders, M.A. Associate Professor of Bible
Don Shackelford, Th.D. Professor of Bible, Director of HUF and International Campaigns
Van Tate, Ph.D. Professor of Bible, Director of Missions Preparation

Will Ed Warren, M.A.R. Associate Professor of Bible
James S. Woodroof, M.A. Adjunct Professor of Bible

COLLEGE OF BIBLE AND RELIGION

NEXT POINT. Joe Jones lectures to his daily bible class. All incoming students were required to take daily bible courses. — Photo by John Nail.

Department boasts winningest economics team

With more students at Harding having majors in the School of Business than in any other area, it was not unusual for the School to also be the most active.

The Center for Professional Sales, directed by Randall McLeod, was created in 1989. The degree for professional sales was designed "to provide students with the skills necessary to succeed in sales." No other degree program like Harding's is now being offered in this nation.

Once again the American Studies Institute, directed by James W. Carr, brought to campus speakers of national recognition. These visiting lecturers included author Denis Waitley; former Secretary of Defense Frank Carlucci; former U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese; and John Akers, president and chief executive officer of IBM Corp.

Dean George Oliver reported that the School of Business' highly successful year resulted in many nationally recognized achievements.

SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

First, the Harding Economics Team was named first runner-up in the International Students in Free Enterprise Competition in Kansas City, Mo., and received a check for $3,500. This win made Harding's team the economics team with the most wins in the nation, with seven first-place wins and four second-place wins in the last 11 years.

Don Diffine, founder of the Belden Center for Private Enterprise Education, this year was awarded the first Distinguished Scholar Award from the Association of Private Enterprise Education in Cleveland for being "a national leader in the area of private enterprise education."

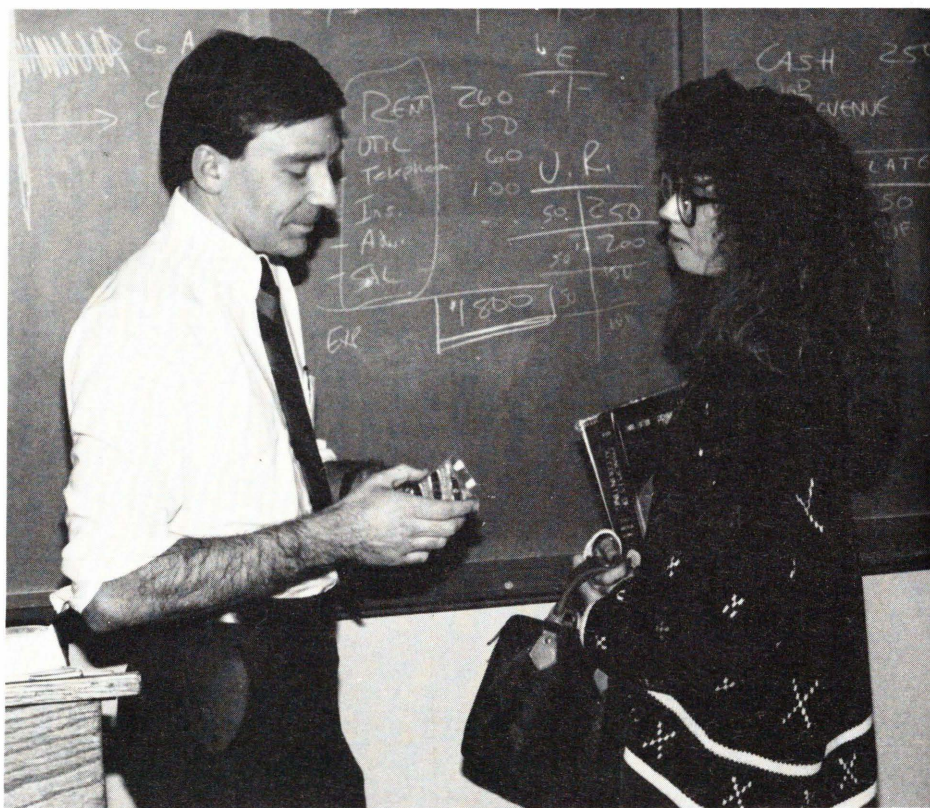

Harding's Society for the Advancement of Management again placed in the top ten in campus chapter competition of 200 chapters throughout the nation. It also placed in the top five nationally in Case Competition in Cincinnati.

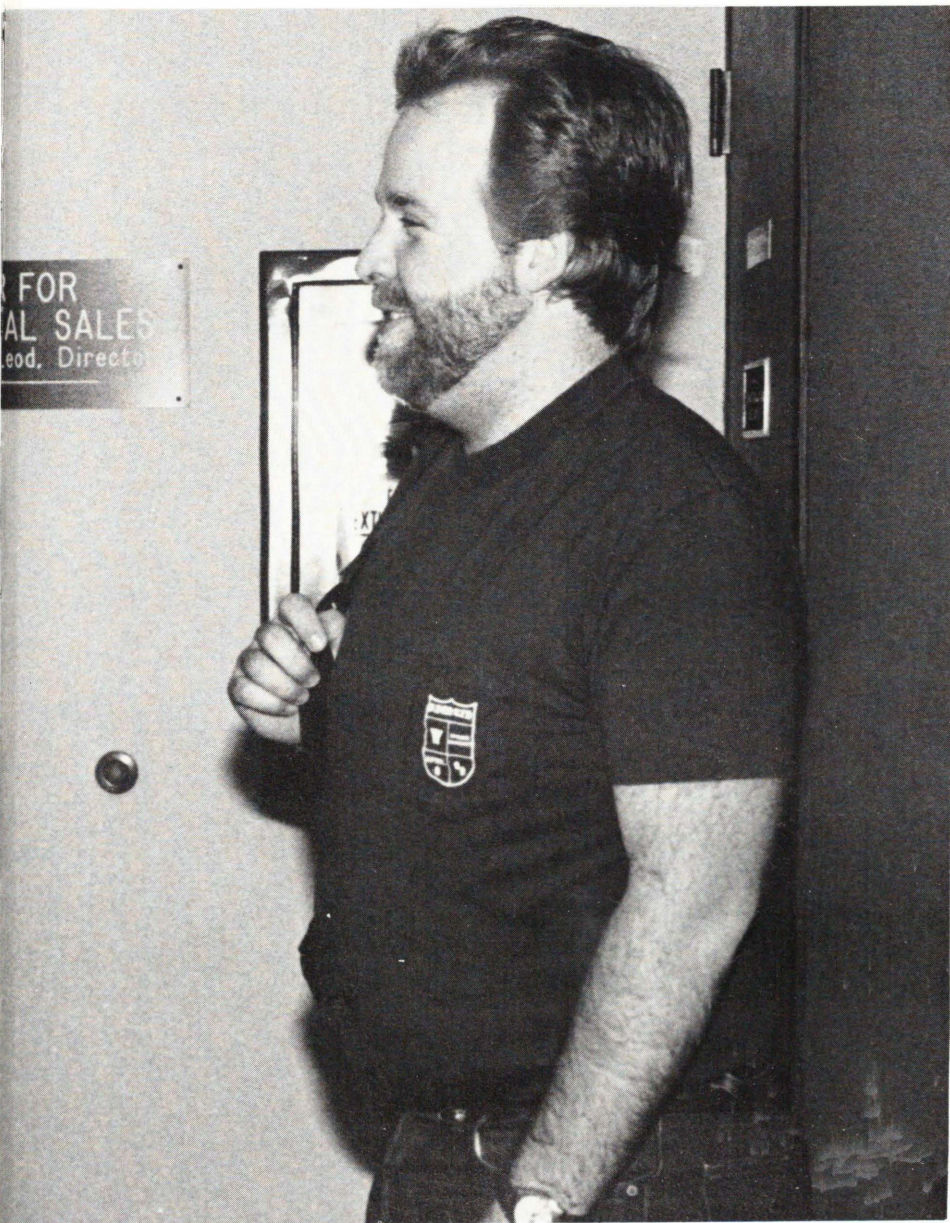

Finally, Harding's chapter of the American Marketing Association brought guest speakers to campus. The chapter placed second nationally in the annual Marketing Strategy Case competition in New Orleans last spring, finishing in the top four with three large, major universities.

— Phillip Tucker

TIME FOR A CHAT. David Johnson, director of the Accounting Program, talks with senior John Klein between classes. Dr. Johnson spent much of his free time helping his students. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

A=L+E. Phillip Brown talks with sophomore Allison Jacobsen after class. Brown taught beginning and intermediate accounting. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

STATISTICAL-LY SPEAKING.
James Behel of the School of Business prepares material for class. Behel
taught statistics courses this year. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

David L. Allen, M.B.A.-Assistant Professor of Accounting
Philip Brown, M.B.A., C.P.A.-Assistant Professor of Business
W. Lavon Carter, M.B.A.-Associate Professor of Management
Don P. Diffine, Ph.D.-Professor of Economics and Director, Belden Center for Private Enterprise Education

Michael Emerson, M.S., C.P.A.-Associate Professor of Accounting
James Ferguson, Ed.D.-Associate Professor of Marketing and Management
Robert J. Kelly, Ed.D.-Professor of Business Education and Director of Business and Office Education
Randall McLeod, J.D.-Assistant Professor of Business and Director, Center for Professional Sales

George H. Oliver, M.S.A.-Assistant Professor of Management & Dean of the School
Robert H. Reely, Ed.D.-Professor of Management and Director of Center for Management Excellence
Marvin H. Robertson, J.D.-Professor of Business Law
William Ryan, Ph.D.-Associate Professor of Computer Information Systems

Scott Stovall, M.S., C.P.A.-Assistant Professor of Accounting
David S. Tucker, Ph.D., C.P.A.-Associate Professor of Economics and Director of the Walton Program
Charles R. Walker, M.S.-Associate Professor of Marketing and Business

Largest major prepares christian educators

I would like to send them out to teach and make a difference in the children." That's what Dean Bobby Coker had to say about the Department of Education. With a total enrollment of over 800, including 125 graduate students, it was the home of the single largest major on campus, elementary education.

This fall, Richard and Jeanine Peck returned to the department from graduate study at Mississippi State University. Maribeth Downing, former Dean of Women, also joined the faculty as an associate professor of Education. Betty Watson and Jan Morgan both took leaves of absence to pursue doctoral degrees.

Those who taught in the department this year stayed busy both in the classroom and outside of work. Tony Finley spent the fall semester at HUF, and Wade Bedwell was appointed director of the Elementary and Special Education Programs. Jim Nichols received grants from the

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

State Departments of Education and Higher Education to instruct elementary science teachers at the graduate level.

Chairman Bobby Coker served on the National Council Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE), at both Merryville College in St. Louis and Concordia College in Moorhead, Minn. Coker also served on the board of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education (AACTE), which held meetings in Washington, D.C., and Chicago, Ill.

Jim Nichols, who supervised the student teachers, attended a two-week workshop at North Arizona University on Clinical and Field Experiences.

On the agenda for the spring was an NCATE analysis of the school. Plans were also underway for a self-study of the department and an update to meet the new standards for the curriculum.

Academic clubs in the education department included SEAE, for those certifying to teach, and Kappa Delta Pi, an honors fraternity for education majors, sponsored by Wyatt Jones.

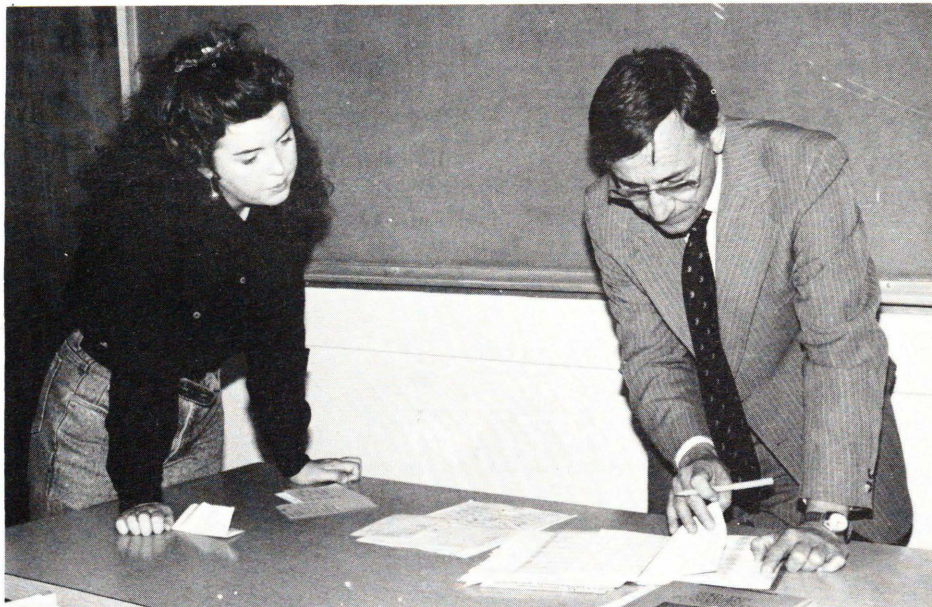

— Ronnie Biggs

HAVE YOU TRIED THIS?

Tony Finley, assistant professor of education, gives career tips to Leann Black, senior. Finley spent his spare time advising students and helping them job hunt. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

CHECKING THE GRADE.

Bobby Coker, dean of the School of Education, assists Alicia Bowen, senior, in checking her test scores. Coker spent time in the classroom in addition to his duties as dean. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

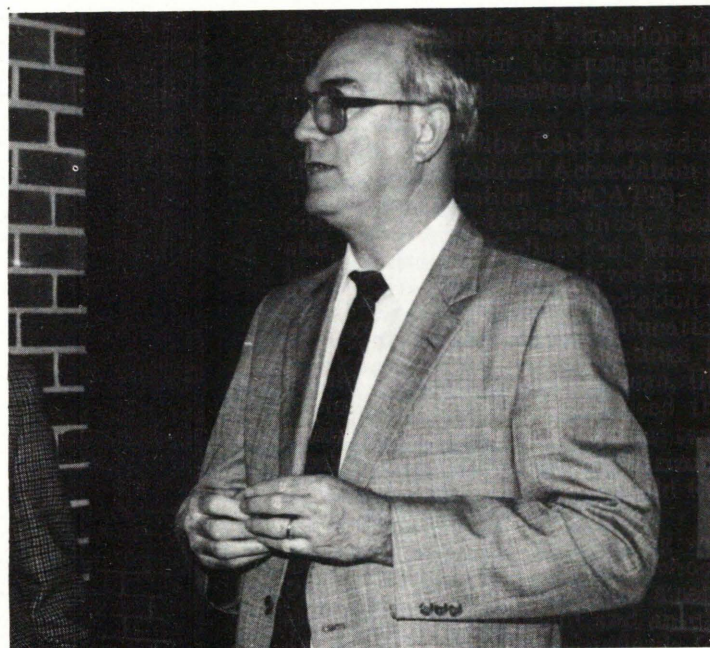

BREAKTIME. Richard Duke takes a break during the annual faculty retreat. The retreat is held every August at Camp Tahkodah. — Photo by Ken Bissell.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

STUDENT CENTER CHAT. Dr. Jerome Barnes enjoys conversation at the Alumni Homecoming Breakfast. This was Barnes' first year as Vice President for Student Affairs. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

Jerome Barnes, Ed.D.-Professor of Education
H. Wade Bedwell, Ph.D., N.C.S.P., D.A.B.C.P.-Professor of Education
Lois Brown, M.A.-Associate Professor of Education
Bobby Coker, Ed.D.-Professor of Education & Dean of the School

Marilee Coker, M.Ed.-Adjunct Professor of Education, Director of the Curriculum Lab
Maribeth Downing, Ph.D.-Associate Professor of Education
Richard Duke, Ph.D.-Associate Professor of Education, Director of Teacher Education
Lewis "Tony" Finley, Ed.D.-Assistant Professor of Education

Wyatt Jones, Ed.D.-Professor of Education, Director of Graduate Studies, Associate Dean of the School
Jan Morgan, M.S.-Instructor of Developmental Reading
Jim Nichols, Ed.D.-Associate Professor of Education, Director of Field Experiences
Betty Work Watson, M.A.-Professor of Elementary Education

Department prepares students for medical field

The School of Nursing was active in both the community and school this year with the continuation of their Rape Prevention Seminars, sponsored by Harding and White County Rape Crisis, Inc. New brochures were printed in the fall and several seminars were held at schools in neighboring areas. In addition to continuing the regular program, the department also received a grant to include child abuse seminars.

Other topics covered in seminars were "CPR", taught by Dortha McDowell and Tawna Pounders and "Cholesterol", taught by Beth Wilson and Cathleen Schultz.

In addition to these seminars, several of the faculty and students attended the Medical Evangelist Seminar in Dallas. There they planned summer mission trips to Haiti and Nigeria.

The School of Nursing was reac-

HOW'D YOU SPELL THAT AGAIN? Cynthia Denney helps sophomore Julie Huffman with her class work. Nursing majors had hours of both clinical and book work to get done during the year. — Photo by Jeff Montgomery.

SCHOOL OF NURSING

credited by the State Board of Nursing. They will be a part of the state board for a three year term. The department also received several grants and funding to improve facilities. An Arkansas foundation donated over $100,000 to allow the department to purchase new equipment and Dr. Cheryl Simmons created a fund, in memory of her mother, which was used to begin renovation of the laboratory. Another new fund was established by Dr. Ruth Cole to help nursing students with their expenses.

Dean of the School of Nursing, Cathleen Schultz, was elected to the National Nominating Committee of Sigma Theta Tau, the international honor society of nursing. Shultz was also the first Christian to win the Outstanding Professional Woman of the Year Award for White County.

New members of the faculty included Richard Smith, Joanne Smith, Rosemary McLaughlin, and Cecilia Sanders. Associate Dean Helen Lambert, who had been away working on her doctorate, returned to the staff this fall.

— Anita Chadwell

UNDER PRES-SURE. Sophomore Patty Paulson takes classmate Katie Burright's blood pressure. Nursing students spent time practicing techniques in class. — Photo Jeff Montgomery

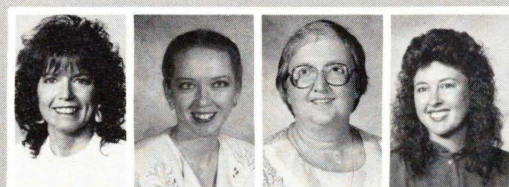

SCHOOL OF NURSING

TAKING A PEEK. Instructor Jamie Goslin checks sophomore Beverly Knight's ears as Rocia Garita, sophomore, observes. Goslin was a clinical instructor this year. — Photo by Shannon Romaine.

BRUSH 3 TIMES A DAY. Sophomore Dionne Frazier brushes practice dentures while instructor Susan Houtrow and junior Becky Boaz watch. Houtrow taught an evening clinical course this spring. — Photo by Shannon Romaine.

Louise Bradford, Ed.D., R.N.-Professor of Nursing
Da'Lynn Clayton, M.S., R.N.-Assistant Professor of Nursing
Charlotte Gibson, M.S., R.N.-Associate Professor of Nursing
Tina Godwin, M.S.N., R.N.-Assistant Professor of Nursing

Mike Justus, M.D., F.A.A.F.P.-Adjunct Professor of Nursing
Dorothea McDowell, M.S., R.N.-Assistant Professor of Nursing
Tawna Pounders, B.S.N., R.N.-Instructor of Nursing
Cathleen M. Shultz, Ph.D., R.N.-Professor of Nursing & Dean of the School of Nursing

Sam Shultz, M.D., F.A.A.P.-Adjunct Professor of Nursing
William D. White, M.D., F.A.C.G.-Adjunct Professor of Nursing

Staff patiently awaits new facility

This was definitely a year of transition for Harding's library. In May of 1989 they began the moving process to relocate in temporary facilities set up in the Administration Auditorium. Even though they were short of space and were limited to only one-third of the library's regular holdings, the staff worked hard to continue giving superior service to the students.

In January, the institution was given $1.6 million as a contribution to the library fund. The gift, from Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Brackett of Vero Beach, Fla., was the largest single donation ever made to Harding. Because of their willingness to contribute to Harding's growth, and due to their enormous generosity, the executive committee of the university's board of trustees decided to name the new library in honor of the Bracketts.

JUST THE FACTS, MA'AM. Craig Beard and Shirley Williams update Harding's periodical listing. The library held over 1,000 magazines and journals for students to use. — Photo by Jeff Montgomery.

NEW GRADUATES. Faculty members David Johnson, Jeff Hopper and Helen Lambert are put on the spot at the faculty gathering at Camp Takodah. Every fall the faculty take to the hills to become better acquainted. — Photo by Ken Bissell.

LIBRARY

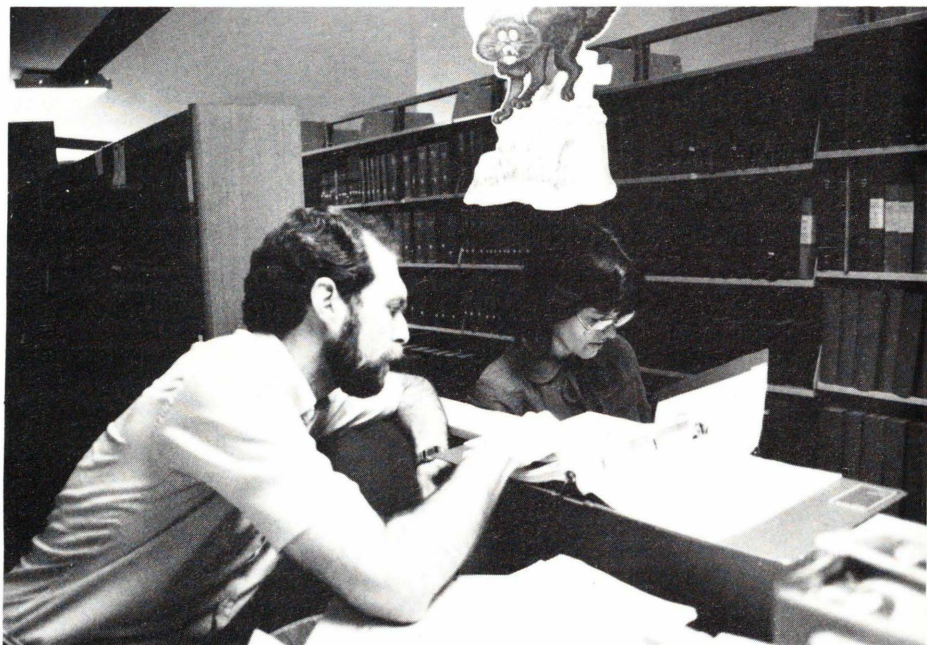

Upon its scheduled re-opening in the fall of 1990, the library is anticipated to house more than 1,300 periodicals and 325,000 volumes, with more than 7,000 volumes added every year. The library will have designated areas for six special collections, including a collection of Dr. George S. Benson's papers, an Oral History collection and 1,200 early American science books.

In addition to the renovation, the library directorship was also scheduled to change hands in the summer of 1990. Winnie Bell announced her retirement plans for July and Suzanne Spurrier, the circulation librarian, was chosen to be Bell's successor.

— Melydia Clewell

STUDY HALL. Senior Anita Waggoner studies in the library. The second floor of the Administration Auditorium was converted into study space this year. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

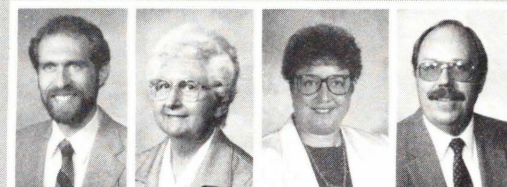

Craig W. Beard, M.L.S.—Assistant Professor of Library Science, Reference Librarian

Winnie Bell, M.A.L.S.—Professor of Library Science, Librarian

Suzanne Spurrier, M.A., M.L.S.—Associate Professor of Library Science, Circulation and Technical Services Librarian

Henry Terrill, M.S.L.S.—Associate Professor of Library Science

Shirley Williams, M.L.S.—Assistant Professor of Library Science

New faces abound on campus

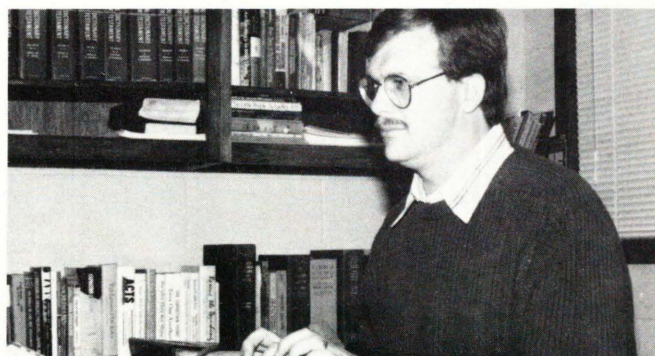

In an attempt to lower the teacher to student ratio, twenty-two new faculty members were added to the class schedule this year.

Carl Mitchell was named Dean of the College of Bible and Religion and three others were added to the school. Those three were: Parker Henderson, missionary in residence; Bill Searcy, visiting missionary; and James Woodroof, adjunct professor of Bible.

David Cole joined the Department of Physical Science and Steven Frye taught a variety of mass communication courses. Frye also worked on his doctorate at the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville. Greg Harnden took over as the girls' head basketball coach and Mike Pruitt replaced BALCONY SEATS. Despite the library's cramped quarters, most students were able to access all necessary materials. Here, students on the main study aisle are seen hard at work. — Photo by Jeff Montgomery.

NEW FACULTY

HUNT AND PECK. Bill Searcy, visiting missionary, types research for a Bible course. Searcy was a popular teacher and speaker on campus. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

Cecil Beck as the men's intramural director. Ken Hobby was added to the psychology department and Kenneth Hammes took Charles Pittman's classes in the English department. Deborah Mueller taught human physiology classes for the Biology department.

Three departments also hired adjunct professors. Tommy Jackson, Andy Kronenwetter and Sharon Pitt joined the communication department; Lis Jones and Laura White were added to the music faculty and Lisa Ritchie joined the home economics department.

Maribeth Downing, former dean of women, joined the School of Education and Curtis Clements, associate professor of accounting, was new to Harding's School of Business. The three additions to the School of Nursing were Rosemary McLaughlin, Jo Ann Smith and Richard Smith.

— Melydia Clewell

Bell leaves library to the future

Endless days of sorting, recording and directing are coming to an end for Winnie Bell. Harding's head librarian announced this year that she will be retiring in July.

Bell, a 1949 Harding graduate, has worked here for 31 years. In 1959, her first year as a bookkeeper, Bell admits she was a little confused. "I had little conception of what went on in a library." But in 1974 she moved from the position of assistant librarian to library director. In 1985 she earned the title of Professor of Library Science and Librarian.

For the past 16 years she has supervised all aspects of the library. Some of her responsibilities have included budgeting, ordering new books and materials and fielding any complaints from customers about the library and its staff.

Bell's staff this year consisted of twelve full time employees and forty student workers. Most of the full-time staff have been around for quite a while, and most of the student workers usually keep their jobs until graduation, a continuity for which Bell is grateful. "We have an excellent staff, and especially this year, we have had to get along and survive the crowded conditions of this year."

Full-time employee Henry Terrill said of Bell's retirement plans, "I have mixed emotions. Number one are her years of experience, which are very valuable. But on the other hand, she wants to travel, see her grandchildren and spend time with her sister."

Bell agreed that traveling is on the top of her list of things to do after retirement, but if that's not enough to keep her busy, she plans to keep working with the World Bible School correspondence program. She also described herself as a "computer nut," and planned to help with the computerization of materials in the new facility.

Terrill summed up Bell's retirement in one heartfelt sentence, "It's like your mom moving to another city — you can visit, but she's no longer living in your home town."

— Trish Shanklin

STAFF

Brent Abney-Special Representative, Admissions Office
Becky Adams-Secretary, Athletic Center
Cecil Adams-Loan Collection Officer
Neville Adams-Dorm Supervisor, Keller Hall
Betty Albright-Secretary, HSBS
Donald Allee-Custodian, Graduate Hall
Carylyn Anderson-Secretary, School of Education
Carl Ausburn-Carpenter

John Ballinger-Electrician
Marcus Barnett-Custodial Area Coordinator, Benson Auditorium
Patty Barrett-Assistant Director of Housing, Coordinator of Social Club Activities
Terry Bates-Secretary, Testing and Research
Lana Bawcom-Secretary to Suzanne Spurrier
Steve Beliech-Assistant Dean of Students
Belva Bellock-Bookkeeper, Library
Ron Bettis-Electrician

Ken Bissell-Director of Photo Services, Public Relations Office
Joe Boaz-Electrician's Helper
Mary Bolin-Accounts Receivable Clerk
Lee Bost-Secretary, Vice President for Academic Affairs
Billie Boustead-Textbook Supervisor, Bookstore
Claudette Bratcher-Secretary to the President
Frances Brewer-Receptionist, Business Office
William Bridges-Manager, Bookstore

Peggy Brimer-Computer Programmer, Harding Press
Chris Broadaway-Library Secretary
Martienne Brown-Postal Clerk
Tim Bruner-Director, Alumni Relations
Sue Bucy-Personnel Clerk
Sonya Burchett-Secretary, Public Relations
Ronnie Burkett-Assistant Maintenance Supervisor
Teresa Buss-Secretary, Admissions

Douglas Campbell-Director, Annual Fund
Eddie Campbell-Counselor
Emma Campbell-Receptionist, Health Center
Jimmy Carr-Assistant to the President

CHECKING THE MAIL. Ready for the end of another day, Winnie Bell, Director of the Library, prepares to close her office for the night. Bell has served in Harding's library for 31 years. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

STAFF

Ron Finley-Registrar
Lora Fleener-Telecommunications Office Manager
Helen Floyd-Secretary, Alumni Relations

Lana Cates-Custodian, Bible Building
Michael E. Chalenburg-Director, Software Development and Support
Gary Collins-Electrician
Virginia Collins-Custodian Area Coordinator
Lou Cook-Transcript Clerk, Registrar's Office
Pamela Cook-Secretary, Student Affairs Office
Doris Coward-Secretary, Alumni Relations
David Crouch-Director of Public Relations

Kathleen Crouch-Postmistress
Willie Curl-Roofers
Evlyn Daniel-Secretary, Student Financial Services
Larry Daughety-Dorm Supervisor, New Men's Dorm; Stockroom Supervisor
Ruby Davis-Custodian, Science Building
Ruth Dawson-Secretary/Receptionist, Counseling Center
Tamara Dawson-Dorm Supervisor, Sears Hall
Daniel T. Deramus-Electrical Supervisor

Joyce Dickson-Secretary, Athletic Center
Glenn Dillard-Admissions Advisor
Fran Dugger-Inventory Control, Bookstore
Latina Dykes-Secretary, Vice President for Finance
JoAnn Eads-Secretary/Receptionist, Admissions Office
Clyde Edwards-Campus Maintenance
Denise Edwards-Student Payroll Clerk
Hope Edwards-Switchboard Manager

Tish Elrod-Accounts Receivable Clerk
Sharon Eppes-Secretary, Recording Studio
Roger Evans-Plumber
W.C. Evat-Electrical Foreman
Clinton Fason-Roofers
Karla Feagin-Secretary, Associate Dean of Student Affairs
Johnny Ferguson-Campus Maintenance Foreman
Judith Ferguson-Accounting Clerk

Lawyer retires after 29 years

While some teachers may consider lecturing to a hundred or more students a drudgery, Virgil Lawyer did not. When asked what his favorite thing about teaching at Harding was, he quickly answered that having freshmen sections was the best. "I enjoyed getting students who were still full of expectations and excitement."

The spring semester marked the history professor's last semester before retirement.

This 1946 Harding graduate began his teaching career by joining the Harding faculty by teaching at two other Christian schools. Lawyer spent five years at Ibaraki Christian in Japan and three years at Lubbock Christian College in Lubbock, Texas. In fact, Lawyer was the first teacher asked by founding president Dr. F.W. Mattox to join the faculty at LCC. No doubt being one of Dr. Mattox's advisees when he attended Harding helped him get his foot in the door, but it was Lawyer's love for teaching which spurred his move to Searcy, where he put in twenty-nine years as a faculty member here.

Lawyer credits his own Harding teachers with his desire to go into Christian education. "I had a great deal of respect, love and appreciation for my teachers. They got a great deal of satisfaction from teaching even though the pay was not very high."

Although he retired in the fall of 1990, he intended to keep busy. Lawyer was an avid reader who finished two books in a week. Not surprisingly, his favorite books were historical biographies.

While enjoying every sport except fishing, which he found boring ("Too much depends on the fish!"), he could be found most days on the golf course. He and his wife planned to travel extensively in the United States. He will continue ministering at the College Church and His House.

After devoting his life to Christian education, Lawyer will now concentrate on other ways to serve his Lord.

— Joann Rabon

STAFF

Sharon Fornelli-Bookstore Clerk
Sherry Foster-Secretary, School of Nursing
Syble Fritts-Custodian, Student Center
L.B. Gardner-Dean of Students
Rachel Gibbs-Secretary, Library
Manly Gilpin-Operator, Cogeneration Plant
Judy Glenn-School Nurse
Vera Goforth-Custodian

Lynda Goldman-Counselor, Student Financial Aid Office
Kay Gowan-Dean of Women
Mary Groves-Secretary to Dean of College of Arts and Sciences
Sandra Hagger-Administrative Assistant, School of Nursing
Charles Eugene Haley-Auto Shop Mechanic
Ike Hamilton-Director of Housing
Bill Harris-Manager, Heritage Inn
Ray Harris-Mechanical Supervisor

Sarah Hedrick-Bookstore Cashier
Tammy Holderbaum-Paste Up, Harding Press
Sandra Holland-Campus Transfer
Judy Hormel-Secretary to Assistant Vice President for Finance
Patsy Howard-Secretary to Director of Teacher Education
Charles Howell-Manager, Bison Lanes
Charlean Howell-Secretary, University Relations
Liz Howell-Accounts Payable, Bookstore

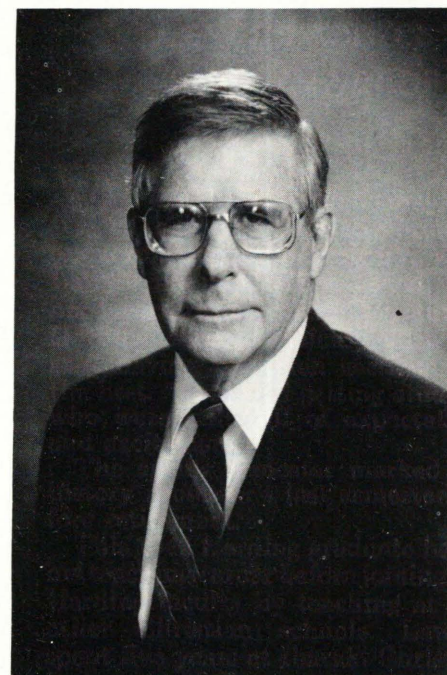

Peggy Huckeba-Dorm Supervisor, Pattie Cobb
Jim Hudgins-Assistant to Physical Plant Engineer
John Huffstickler-Carpenter
Wanda Huffstickler-Cashier
Cynthia Hunter-Secretary, President's Office
David Hurd-Director, Television Studio
Helen James-Secretary, Educational Media Center
Ira James-Assistant to Director of Grounds Beautification

Tonita Jernigan-Secretary, Alumni Relations
Velma Johns-Custodian, Bookstore
Joyce Johnson-Secretary, Assistant Dean of Students
Karen Jo Johnson-Assistant to Registrar

PAYING THE BILLS. Freda Martin, accounts receivable clerk, assists a student with her school bill. Business office cashiers were familiar faces to many students. — Photo by Sharon Bowles.

Virgil H. Lawyer
Professor Of History And Social Science

STAFF

Nancy Johnson-Accounts Receivable Clerk
Ophelia Johnson-Custodian, Art Department
James Jones-Director, Recording Center
Margaret Jones-Accounts Receivable Clerk
Carla Kearby-Controller
Helen Kearby-Bookkeeper
Carol Kell-Secretary, Physical Science Department
Alice Ann Kellar-Assistant Director of Public Relations

Jean Kelley-Secretary of Director of Graduate Studies
Michael Kelley-Assistant to Manager, Bookstore
Russell King-Mechanic/Operator, Cogeneration Plant
Adrian Knight-Systems Analyst
Dawn Loe-Secretary, Communications Department
Pamela Loe-Circulations Secretary, Library
Joni Mackey-Counselor
Barbara Martin-Personnel Assistant, Student Affairs

Freda Martin-Accounts Receivable Clerk
Harold Martin-Welder
Joetta Martin-Receptionist/Financial Aid Assistant
Steve Martin-Assistant Director, Educational Media Center
Tod Martin-Assistant to Dean, School of Nursing
Thelma Mason-Secretary to Registrar
Joe Mathis-Financial Aid Assistant
Phillip McCarroll-Painter

Clarence McDaniel-Manager, Harding Laundry and Cleaners
Durwood McGaha-Director, Career Planning and Placement
J. Rowan McLeod-Assistant Director, Development
Denise Miller-Director, Cooperative Education
Leroy Miller-Director, Microcomputer Equipment Services
James Milner-Assistant Registrar
Chris Mize-Campus Maintenance
Sue Moore-Secretary to Vice President for Student Affairs

Jane Musick-Assistant to Director, Student Financial Services
Byron Napier-Custodian Area Coordinator, Athletic Center
Ann Neal-Periodicals Secretary, Library
Barbara Newsom-Secretary, Development

Helsten prepares for new careers

After thirty-two years of teaching here, Professor Robert Helsten announced that he would retire at the end of this year.

Helsten graduated in 1946 and in 1948, he moved to Frankfurt, Germany, to do mission work. Six years later he returned to the U.S. and in 1956, he came back to Searcy. In 1958, Helsten completed his master's degree requirements, and later that year joined the faculty as assistant professor of Bible and German.

After spending over a quarter of a century in the classroom, Helsten said it's time to quit. "I don't feel sentimental about retirement, it's more like a pleasant feeling." That's not to say that Helsten did not enjoy being a part of the faculty here. "I've had a good life. And now is a good time to move on."

Helsten is definitely not going to just sit around the house in total boredom. Some of his big plans included cleaning the garage, a project Helsten expects to last three years. At the suggestion of a garage-sale, Helsten balked. "I'm the kind of person who loves to get. I don't give." Helsten has also considered applying for a part-time job as a campus garbage collector. His explanation being, "I've always wanted to be a librarian, a museum curator, an archaeologist or a garbage collector, because they all deal with objects from the past. It looks like garbage collector is the only one of those jobs that I will have any luck at getting."

Helsten said he has enjoyed teaching at Harding, but says, "If I've reached any certain attainments in my profession, then I am certainly not aware of it. I just hope I haven't done them [the students] any harm."

When he was asked if he would miss working here, Helsten replied, "Do you mean faculty meetings, committee meetings, absentee reports? No. But I will come back for the enjoyable things, like having coffee and doughnuts with the Bible faculty in the mornings. But, I'll try not to be a pest by showing up too often!"

— Melydia Clewell

STAFF

Lottie Nichols-Mail Order Supervisor, Bookstore
Molly Noble-Accounts Receivable Clerk
Sam Noble-Carpenter
Joy Oliver-Secretary, Psychology and Social Work
Harvey Ollis-Locksmith
Clyde Owen-Director, Buildings Services
Edwina Pace-Executive Secretary to the Chancellor
Bobby Parks-Assistant Director, HSBS

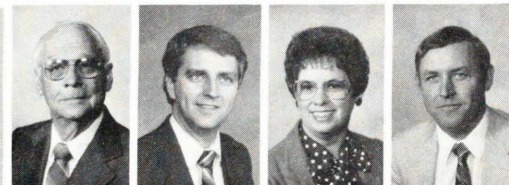

Opal Pasley-Postal Clerk
Christine Perkins-Secretary/Receptionist, Personnel Office
Lorene Poindexter-Auto Shop Foreman
Charles Pool-Equipment Operator
Nancy Pool-Custodian, Armstrong Hall
Alfred Prince-HVAC Foreman
Ona Mae Prine-Billing Clerk, Bookstore

Charlene Prock-Student Personnel Assistant
Donna Reeves-Secretary, Educational Services
Guilford Rice-Bus Driver
Pat Rice-Director, Student Health Services Center
James L. Richey-Manager, Harding Press
Linda Richey-Postal Clerk
Derrel Ridings-Plumbing Foreman
Rachel Roberson-Secretary, History Department

Renae Robinson-Custodial Area Coordinator
Karen Rogers-Postal Clerk
Jaretta Rose-Secretary, Admissions
Byron Rowan-Assistant Vice President for Finance
James Rumfield-Carpentry Foreman
Ervin Sandlin-Purchasing Agent, Internal Auditor
Ann Schol-Director, Personnel Services
Bud Sellers-Campus Maintenance

J.D. Siler-Custodian, Science Center
Lawrance Sivia-Financial Analyst
Joy Slayton-Secretary, Security
Edwin Smith-Cabinet Maker

POP QUIZ. Dr. Bob Helston, Professor of Bible, hands out a surprise quiz to his Bible class. Helston was known for his sense of humor — Photo by Jeff Montgomery

STAFF

Herman Smith-Chief Security Officer
Bill Spurlock-Sheet Metal Worker
Don Starks-Admissions Advisor
Ralph Sterling-Carpenter
Wanda Stewart-Custodian, Library
Ernestine Thomas-Presser
Mary Lois Thomas-Secretary, Music Center
Danny Townsend-Press Clerk, Harding Press

Lott R. Tucker, Jr.-Vice President for Finance
Mae Ann Tucker-Head Cashier, Bookstore
William Tucker-University Attorney
Sheila Vance-Custodian, American Heritage Center
Mary Vickery-Postal Clerk
Wayne Vickery-Campus Maintenance
Vernon Walls-Cabinet Maker
Gary Ward-Paint Supervisor

Gene Ward-Computer Technician
Larry Ward-Painter
Zearl Watson-Director, Student Financial Services
Pansey Wells-Financial Aid Assistant
Peggy Westbrook-Custodian
David White-Plumber
Jim White-Director, Admissions
Chester Williams-Carpentry Foreman

Mike Williams-Assistant Director, Admissions
Kindra Willingham-Nursery School Teacher
David Woodroof-Director, Educational Media Center
Ann Wright-Secretary, University Relations
Phylliss Wright-Administrative Assistant, Physical Plant Engineer
Julie Wyatt-Accounts Payable Clerk
Lois Wyatt-Custodian
Richard Yeager-Security Officer

Bernard Young-Campus Maintenance
Pat Young-Assistant to Vice President for Finance