[Whether we intended for it or not, our lives were affected this school year by the people we encountered, the organizations we joined and the activities we participated in. As each day passed, we slowly became someone new, and God deliberately changed us by touching our hearts and minds. Our time here is precious because the person we will become is being determined today. We need to direct our footsteps toward the wonderful promise God holds and allow ourselves to be molded for His perfect masterpiece.]

molding a masterpiece

[editor's note]

Coming up with the theme for the 2007-08 Petit Jean was the daunting task that I, as editor-in-chief, was given as my summer homework. Like any good yearbook junkie, I immediately went to the seldom thought of but frequently overstuffed closet of past Harding yearbooks in my office to research.

I started at the beginning, when Harding was Galloway College, and went from there, leafing through the pages of the Harding College books. I read still through the brightly colored books of the 60s and 70s and a particularly great book from 1988 when Dr. Burks first became president. I saw faculty come and go, leaving their mark on the campus. I saw the university landscape change before my eyes as new dormitories and buildings popped up around campus. And I saw the students that made up Harding's population grow and change from year to year. Although hairstyles and clothing fads changed with each page, I realized that there were some things that remained the same through the generations.

I came to the understanding that the students in those pages and the ones in these 328 pages that you have before you were all here for the same purpose. Everyone comes to Harding to be molded and changed into something. Through classes, teachers and professional organizations, students come closer to their postgraduate goals. With the instruction from coaches, teammates and practices, athletes become physically refined.

But even more than academic and athletic shaping was the spiritual transformation that occurred for many while at Harding. Most of us could choose just about any university we wanted, yet we all have been drawn to a little town in Arkansas for this spiritual experience.

The 2007-08 Petit Jean theme, "Molding a Masterpiece" comes from this idea of a university and its students being constantly molded and shaped from year to year. During our stay at Harding, God provided opportunities for us to learn, grow and develop into the masterpieces He desires us to become. Seniors will look back on these pages and see the changes that have been made in their lives, and freshmen will see the potential. We are all being reworked by trials to become more like Christ; we are all being molded into perfection by the Master.

[Courtesy of Mallory Gatlin]

On the evening of Tuesday, March 11, senior management major Brian Luke Johnson died while surrounded by his family. Johnson was survived by his wife Mary, his 1-year-old daughter Kaitlyn, another daughter, Kennedy, due to be born April 17 and his parents Bill and Betty, the secretary in the Office of Health Science. He was 27 years old.

"I have known Brian since we were little kids," senior Mallory Gatlin, Johnson's sister-in-law, said. "Brian was always fun to be around. He has so many good friends and an awesome family support."

Johnson's future plans included graduating in May and taking care of his wife and children. Debbie Anderson, Brackett Library bookkeeper, went to church with Johnson at Downtown Church of Christ.

"Brian Luke was very sweet," Anderson said. "Very much in love with his wife and little girl. Last time I saw him, he was headed into the library with his little girl. I told him she looked just like her mom and he just smiled and said how happy that made him and did I know they had another one on the way? He was very excited about the coming baby."

Johnson was said by all to be a devoted husband, father, friend and student.

"Brian was the love of my sister's life," Gatlin said. "They were joined at the hip. They loved each other so much...you could see, even if you did not know them."

A memorial service was held at Downtown Church of Christ on March 14.
