HARDING UNIVERSITY • APRIL 5-7

'Camaraderie' special to president

Welcome to the Harding campus and Spring Sing 2007. This year's performances continue the tradition of exciting and enjoyable musical acts by some of Harding's most talented students. Hundreds of students have spent countless hours preparing for this weekend's performances. Their goal is to provide you, our guests, with another high-energy, quality show that has become synonymous with the words "Spring Sing." I believe this year's show will meet everyone's high expectations.

I hope that while you are on campus you will take time to visit some of our facilities and become acquainted with our students and faculty. The people are what make Harding such a special place. Our students and faculty are committed to combining academic excellence with spiritual development. A product of that combination is the commitment to service that you will see in their lives. Three words best describe the Harding experience — faith, learning, living.

Enjoy Spring Sing 2007 and your weekend on campus. Let us know if we can assist you in any way.

Please refrain from flash photography and video recording.
The show incorporates a number of special effects. Vapor and fog effects are non-irritant based and safe for all audiences. Spring Sing uses strobe and flashing light effects throughout the show.

director's note

Lifelong friends, spirited fellowship

"H e who is ready to despair

in solitary peril, plucks up a heart in the presence of another. In a plurality of comrades is much countenance and consolation".

-Herman Melville

Camaraderie is defined as high-spirited fellowship and mutual trust among people who spend a lot of time together. It is the essence of Spring Sing. It is the heart of Harding University. It is in fact a favorite word of our university president celebrating his 20th year of sharing that vision.

One of the great joys of university life is finding lifelong friends. Friends who are not just the ones in class, but the ones you live with every day of the week. Friends who are not just sharing a school name, but who share their lives, hopes and dreams. Friends who are more than people you have met, but souls who have changed you forever. That is camaraderie. That happens here at Harding University every day. That is worth celebrating.

And so we will. Welcome to Harding University and Spring Sing. Enjoy the show!

TRAVIS WISELY

Travis Wisely, a senior general studies major from O'Fallon, Ill., has been involved with Spring Sing four years. Upon graduation, he plans to work on his master's degree in musical theatre. The son of Phil and Sharon Wisely, Travis played Lumiere in the 2005 Homecoming production "Beauty and the Beast."

"What an appropriate theme to cap my four years here at Harding," Travis said. "Without a doubt the most meaningful element of my Harding career has been the relationships that are guaranteed to last long after I leave here."

JILLIAN SHACKELFORD

A returning hostess from 2005 and 2006, Jillian Shackelford is a junior general studies major from Bolivar, Tenn. She is the daughter of Jeff and Kandy Shackelford. She plans to attend culinary school after graduation.

"When I was in high school, I had a tight-knit group of friends and was convinced that they were the friendships that would last a lifetime," Jillian said. "Little did I know that I would soon come to a place where I would find even more wonderful and unforgettable relationships."

DAVID WALTON

David Walton, last seen as a member of the 2006 Spring Sing ensemble, wants to teach middle school or high school music after graduation. He is a sophomore vocal education major from Nashville. He is the son of Richard and Lynn Walton.

"Harding is one of the hardest places to be reclusive," David said. "No matter where you go, whether the practice room, a study lounge, or in the small corner of a coffee shop, someone is bound to find you and sit down for fellowship."

ELIZABETH HARRELL

Also seen in the 2006 Spring Sing ensemble, Elizabeth Harrell is a sophomore vocal education major from Nashville. A member of the "Beauty and the Beast" cast in 2005, she also performed as Fruma Sarah in "Fiddler on the Roof" in 2006. She is the daughter of Frank and Valle Harrell.

"I came to Harding for the fantastic music program," Elizabeth said. "I quickly realized all the other reasons Harding attracts so many students."
