Justice Goldberg Stresses Human Rights for Everyone

Arthur Goldberg—former Supreme Court justice, ambassador, writer and lawyer—told the audience, “The instinct of human rights, of human freedom is a universal one,” when he spoke April 26 on the Harding campus.

Repeating President Gerald Ford’s words, he said, “Human rights are not for the U.S. alone but for people everywhere.”

Goldberg spoke for the program jointly sponsored by the Arkansas Endowment for the Humanities and the American Studies Program.

On the domestic issue of rights, Goldberg said that the country had been concerned with these freedoms most of its history. The Bill of Rights had to be incorporated into the Constitution before it could be passed, he explained. “Individuals have dignity that must be respected by authority, by the state. That concept is implicit in our Constitutional fabric,” he said.

Americans lost faith in the concepts of the founding fathers in the early 1960’s, but a reversal occurred with the Watergate incident Goldberg stated.

“So no one, up to and including the president of the United States, was above the law. Suddenly, Americans realized what human rights were about. And behind that, they realized there is another concept—we have the right to lead private lives, the right of privacy.” The right, according to Goldberg, is the ability each one of us has to live our life as we want to live it without repressions or punishment, unless we do harm to ourselves or do legal harm to others.

The U. S. ambassador to the Belgrade Conference spoke of the country’s interest in human rights of other nations. “We are not going to change the political system of the East too easily,” he warned. Conferences (the next one will be in Madrid, Spain in 1980) are not going to change it either, but according to Goldberg, they will keep the spirit of liberty alive. The first role of diplomacy is “Don’t be too diplomatic, don’t mute your voice too much,” he concluded.

Following his 45-minute speech, the 70-year-old Goldberg fielded questions from a panel of Searcians, seated on the stage.

Business Team Wins Reno Competition

Culminating three months of concentrated competition, Harding was named one of three division winners in the 1979 Intercollegiate Business Games sponsored by the University of Nevada at Reno.

Harding, California State College at Sacramento, and Portland State University (Ore.) were winners of the three industries in the competition. Twenty-one colleges and universities participated in the competition.

Winning its Division One title, Harding finished in front of Weber State of Ogden, Utah and California State College at Stanislaus. No provision was made to select an overall winner for the competition.

Team members for Harding were Jeff Earnhart of Cahokia, Ill., Bruce Nunnally and David Perkins of Memphis, and Ed Rosenbaum of Richmond, Ind. Team sponsor was Dr. David Burks, chairman of the division of business.

“Our team met its objectives in an outstanding way,” Burks said. “In terms of performance and attitude, these young men were superior in every aspect of competition.”

The games are actually a simulation of five years of decisions in the business world. “The competition is based upon an artificial market so they can experience the workings in a whole economic cycle. The competition involves every aspect of business,” said Burks, “the major ones being marketing, production and financing. The games emphasize the production aspect to some extent.”

Each team member was responsible

'79 Petit Jean Ceremonies Honor Allen, Miss Weidner

The 1979 Petit Jean yearbook dedication ceremonies, held April 30 on the campus, honored Jimmy Allen, associate professor of Bible, and Julie Weidner, a senior from Cooksville, Ill.

The volume was dedicated to Allen, who was voted by the senior class to receive the recognition. Editor Kay Williams made dedicatory remarks and presented Allen with the first yearbook.

Allen, a 1952 graduate of Harding, was the school’s second student body president. He received his master’s degree from the Harding Graduate School of Religion and the honorary doctorate from Oklahoma Christian College.

In addition to his teaching in the Bible department, Allen speaks at evangelistic meetings across the country. He has also lectured in Australia, Greece, Lebanon, North Ireland and Japan.

The 49-year-old Allen has authored six books including studies of Romans and 1 Corinthians.

He is married to the former Marilyn McCluggage, and they have three children — Cindy, Jimmy and Mike.

Miss Weidner, a Bible major, was the Petit Jean queen nominee of Knights social club. She was crowned by Dr. Joseph Pryor, academic dean of the college, and faculty sponsor for the book. She is also studying psychology and plans a career as a women’s counselor on a college campus. In addition to membership in the Beta Tau Gamma women’s club, she is active in Conquerors evangelistic group and Joy service organization.

Serving as attendants in the queen’s court were Nancy Huett, a senior home economics major from Elizabeth, Ark., and Lynn Osburn, a junior from Columbia, Mo.

Ross Cochran, a senior from Hobbs, N. M., was presented the Regina Spirit Award. A Bible major and Greek minor, Cochran was president of the Student Association, a member of the tennis team and Chi Sigma Alpha men’s club. Cochran will travel to Limerick, Ireland, after May graduation to spend two years in mission work.

The Harding Academy portion of the book was dedicated to Ray Wright, English instructor at the school.

The cover of the 55th Petit Jean is a brown leather-like grain with a sky-blue name plate. The theme, “Insights and for a particular segment of the operation. A three-year team member, Nunnally, as president, gave overall direction but specialized in predicting total markets and projecting long-term trends.

Earnhart, a two-year team member, was responsible for finance, production, and cash flow within the mythical company.

In his first year on the team, senior Ed Rosenbaum directed the planning of new facilities and production schedules. Completing the team was junior David Perkins who worked in the area of marketing strategy and employee compensation.

"Our business teams have developed a winning tradition and we take the competition seriously," Burks said. "The training and experience these young men receive in actually meeting and dealing with the demands of the business field are invaluable."

Harding has compiled an outstanding record in business games competition. Dating back to 1965, Harding won the Intercollegiate Business Games three times at Michigan State University and four times at the Intercollegiate Business Games sponsored by Emory University of Atlanta, Ga.

Harding entered the Reno competition in 1978 and won second place in its industry.

Workshops Set for Counselors, Leaders

Improving church leadership and ministry will be the focal point of two June workshops on the campus.

Through the cooperation of several college departments, the school will offer a Church Leadership Development Seminar June 12-14 and a Counseling Workshop June 19-21.

The Church Leadership Development Seminar, which is being sponsored by the Bible, business, and education departments, will seek to develop and enhance the leadership abilities of church leaders. Each participant will be exposed to proven Christian management concepts and strategies specifically designed to increase individual leadership effectiveness.

Dr. David Burks, chairman of the division of business, and Dr. Bobby Coker, chairman of the department of education, will be conducting the seminar.

The topics for discussion will include models of management, leadership by objectives, leadership stimulation, organizational design and delegation, group dynamics, interpersonal communication, time management, and counseling techniques for church leaders.

The fee for the workshop will be $50, which includes the cost of registration, workbooks, and style sheet. The workshop will be limited to 50 people.

Directed by Dr. Jack Thomas, chairman of the psychology department and director of counseling, the Counseling Workshop will emphasize communication skills, recognizing behavioral problems, and developing counseling skills.

Both lecture and group exercises will be used during the workshop, which is being conducted for the third time on the Harding campus. Video tapes of simulated counseling sessions will also be used.

The group exercises will include sessions in experiencing and recognizing verbal and non-verbal cues, concreteness, empathy, confrontation, and establishing the one-to-one relationship.

Sponsored by the Bible and psychology departments, the Counseling workshop fee will be $50, which includes the cost of required textbooks that will be sent to each registrant.

Alan Risener, general manager of KWCK-KSER radio asked, "Do you feel the United States is morally qualified to lead the world in human rights?"

Goldberg replied that he felt the country was qualified because of its history of human rights and the judicial system. He thought that while the U. S. is not perfect, the democratic system is preferable.

Responding to a question on recent happenings in Iran, asked by Searcy Citizen Editor Perrin Jones, the diplomat said that he felt that the turmoil was not brought on by the Carter administration's demand for human rights, but by the failure of the Shah's political structure to adapt to social and economic changes.

"At what point do we overprotect the rights of a person at the detriment of society; does it not carry with it certain responsibilities?" asked Wayne Hartsfield, president of the First National Bank.

The textbooks will include The Skilled Helper and Basic Psychopathology and Personality. The workshop will be limited to 30 applicants.

"Through the workshops we offer in the summer, we seek to help church leaders do a more effective job and become more efficient in their ministry and in their leadership," Dr. Jerry Jones, chairman of the Bible department, said. "We try to serve the brotherhood with our workshops and seminars."

Using the controversial school prayer decision as an example, Goldberg replied that all have to share responsibility and some have to suffer when decisions are made.

"Probably the best thing we can do to advance the cause of human rights is to pur our own house in order," the former justice commented to Harding foreign language department chairman Winfred Wright's question of involvement with other nations. But Goldberg did advocate that we be involved in upholding rights of others, inasmuch as we are subject to agreements with other countries.

E. D. Yancey, executive vice-president of First Security Bank quizzed Goldberg on the loss of influence the United States has experienced in recent years and the outlook of foreign sentiment.

The distinguished lecturer said, "I look forward to a better and stronger feeling of confidence in the U. S." The reason for his optimism was that an attitude of openness and commitment now exists.

Goldberg was asked to report on the progress since the Helsinki agreements by Evan Ulrey, head of the speech department: "Jewish immigration from the Soviet Union is up . . . Immigration of Volga Germans to West Germany has not stopped, it's on the increase . . . the type of harassment and penalty in most of the eastern European countries is much less than it has been. In Russia, as bad as it is, it is not what it has been in recent history," he stated.

The message of Free Enterprise reaches travelers on Highway 67B, west of Searcy, courtesy of the Harding Economics team and Yarnell's Ice Cream Company. The billboard project is part of the team's entry in the free enterprise intercollegiate competition.

Student Team, Yarnell's Co. Display Economic Message

Harding's economics team and the Yarnell Ice Cream Company have teamed to further a project to promote economic enlightenment regarding the free market economy through a billboard on Highway 67B near the Searcy airport.

"Freedom Needs Free Enterprise — Yarnell's is Free Enterprise" is the slogan greeting passersby on the access route to Searcy. The ice cream company offered the billboard for the community project and the college students planned and developed the project.

Doug Sanders, student chairman, was assisted in planning by Rhonda Been, Dan Holt, Jake Jensen, Carol Smith and Ted Thompson. K. B. Searcy, a commercial painter, lettered the sign.

The project is part of an intercollegiate competition sponsored by Southwestern Life and National Leadership Institute companies of Texas. The projects are planned in order to reach as many persons as possible with a message intended to increase economic understanding. The Yarnell billboard theme suggests that as a tree needs a good root system, free enterprise is the basis for all freedoms.

The students will present the results of their multimedia efforts at the competition finals in Dallas April 20. The billboard is one of 66 projects which point to the fact that when business is healthy and prosperous, so is the economy, with producers and consumers both enjoying higher standards of living.

Dr. Don Diffine, sponsor of the team, said, "I'm an academic entrepreneur, but the real enterprisers are folks like the Yarnells, who really keep free enterprise in business. The students conducted a four-part economic education program for Yarnell's key personnel this year.

Rogers Yarnell, president of the ice cream company, is a member of the team's business advisory council, CREED (Council for Realistic Economic Education). Other members are E. D. Yancey, executive vice president of First Security Bank, and Perrin Jones, Citizen newspaper editor.

Housing will be available in college residence halls, and meals may be purchased in the American Heritage Center on campus.

For parents wishing to attend, a special program has been arranged. Opportunities will be available to meet with administrative officials, teachers and others in the college community.

Any new student who does not attend a summer orientation will be expected to participate in the regular fall orientation, immediately before fall classes begin. Fall orientation will be held August 27-28.

For information or reservations, write Dr. Jimmy Carr, Box 1224, Harding College, Searcy, Ark. 72143 or telephone (501) 268-6161 Ext. 462.

The teenagers also heard from campus groups on topics of spiritual service. Entertainment was provided by the Belles and Beaux, Time of Day and A Cappella Chorus.

"Ham It Up," a fast-moving act by members of Ju Go Ju and Galaxy social clubs, swept all categories of awards in the Harding Spring Sing '79 show and captured the Sweepstakes trophy over 11 other acts.

The production by 50 collegians in overstuffed pig costumes included an appearance by "Miss Piggy" and a rollicking parody of contemporary songs.

The favorite of the crowd from the first night, the revue took the top awards in choreography, theme, music and costume. The other awards category, participation, was won by Omega Phi women's club with 83 percent of the members taking part.

In overall sweepstakes, second place honors went to Chi Sigma Alpha and Regina clubs for their production of "New York, New York." Winners in the third-through-fifth place were Zeta Rho and TNT for "Love the One You're With," Chi Lambda Chi and Alpha Gamma Omega for "Celebrate," and Knights and Phi Delta for "Rollin' on the River."

Other clubs participating included Tri Alpha and Alpha Epsilon Chi, Kappa Phi and Tri Sigma Delta, OEGE and King's Men, Shantih, Theta Psi, and Tofebt and Fraters.

Forum guests arriving for registration in the American Heritage lobby get helpful directions from Ken Qualls, assistant director of admissions. More than 3,000 attended the annual gathering for young people.

Ju Go Ju and Galaxy social club pigs sing "Let's Go to the Slop" in the audiences' and judges' favorite number, "Ham It Up." The sweepstakes winner, which involved 50 students this year, was also the top winner in 1975. Original pig costumes, in colors of pink and blue, were designed and made by the students. They featured snouts made of dixie cups, sequined-studded bow ties and a fitted cap with ears. A panel of 30 judges reviewed the gala musical event over five performances.

High school students, parents and sponsors gather in the Athletic-Physical Education Complex for a time of worship. Guests heard Dr. Neale Pryor speak on "The Christian View of Sex," "So You Want to Get Married" and "Does Your Family Care?"

The sparkle and excitement of Spring Sing is mirrored in Vanessa Stormes' face in "New York, New York." Miss Stormes is a sophomore from Heber Springs, Ark.

Shedding snouts and donning smiles, Ju Go Ju and Galaxy members bring home the bacon by winning sweepstakes and first place ribbons in choreography, theme, music and costume.

Dr. Neale Pryor of the Bible department, brings keynote lessons to the Forum audience.

Zeta Rho senior Anita Olbricht of East Syracuse, N.Y., teams with Frank Barker, a sophomore from Pratt, Kan. and member of TNT.

New Music Scholarship Recognizes Sanderson

A scholarship in honor of L. O. Sanderson, renowned church leader and composer, has been established at Harding by an anonymous contributor. The first award will be granted for the 1979 fall semester.

Sanderson, a 1928 Harding graduate, is now retired and living in Memphis. He is, however, still quite active in composing, writing and preaching. He began writing music when he was 15 years old and is recognized throughout the brotherhood for his outstanding music accomplishments. He has composed more than 500 songs and hymns.

In 1960 Sanderson was honored by Harding as the first recipient of the Alumni Association's Distinguished Alumni Award.

Bartholomew Is York College President

Gary R. Bartholomew, a 1969 Harding graduate, became the youngest college president in the state of Nebraska when he was inaugurated as the 15th president of York College on April 17.

At age 31, Bartholomew is also the youngest president among colleges affiliated with the Churches of Christ.

President Clifton L. Ganus of Harding delivered the inaugural address in the York City Auditorium.

Speaking on Christian education and the "fourth R" Ganus said, "York is not just another college, it's a Christian college. It is standing for Christian education," which he defined as "Christ in Education."

"It's adding that fourth R — the dimension of religion, righteousness and spiritual values," he explained.

To Bartholomew, Ganus said, "You and your fellow workers at York have a wonderful opportunity and a fear-some responsibility because you are working with the leaders of our nation tomorrow and of the church; you're working with eternal destiny, and that's a sobering thought we cannot take lightly."

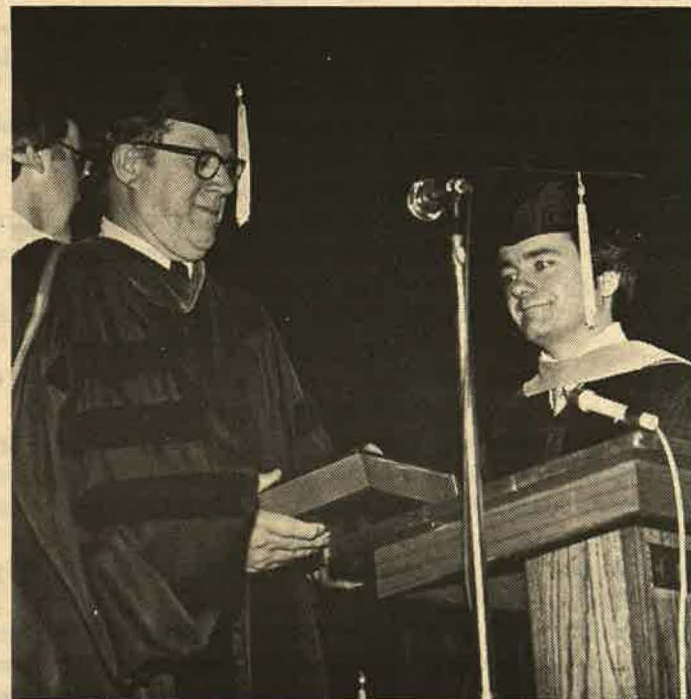

A native of McCook, Neb., Bartholomew succeeds Dr. Dale R. Larsen who resigned last July upon completion of his sixth three-year term as president. Larsen is now chancellor of the college.

Bartholomew joined the York administration in 1976 as assistant to the president and was named in July to act as chief executive officer, an interim position, until the new president was selected by the board of trustees.

At the annual October meeting, Bartholomew was chosen as the next head and inaugural ceremonies were set.

The new president is a 1967 graduate of York College with an associate of arts degree. He transferred to Harding where he was an honor student and captain of the intercollegiate business team which eventually won the national championship at the 1969 Marketing Games at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga. He was honored with the Wall Street Journal Award as the outstanding student in the business and economic department his senior year. He received the bachelor's degree in accounting.

Bartholomew worked as an accountant for Arthur Andersen CPA firm in Denver, Colo., and earned his master's degree in business administration from the University of Denver. In 1971, he returned to Harding to teach accounting.

He also worked in Harding's development efforts and was a faculty advisor to the business team.

Among his recognitions are Who's Who in America, Outstanding Young Men of America, Outstanding Americans in the South, and Men of Achievement.

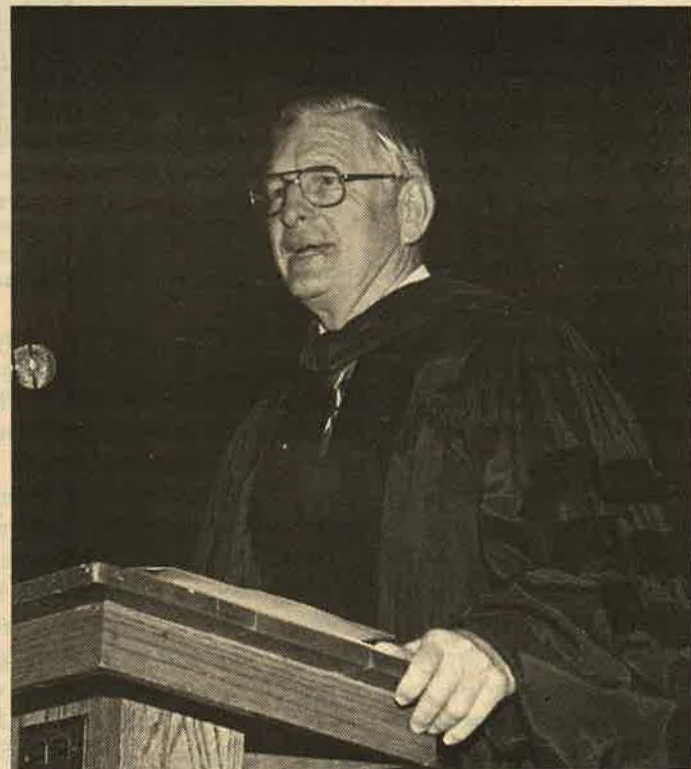

Currently, Bartholomew is a deacon in the East Hill Church of Christ in York. He is a board member of the York Chamber of Commerce and participates in the community's chapter of Rotary International. He is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Bartholomew is married to the former Gwen Sims, and the couple has a daughter, Stacey, age 6. The Bartholomews serve as guardians for Mrs. Bartholomew's sister, Miss Tammy Sims, age 15.

Bartholomew joins five other Harding alumni who now serve as Christian college presidents. They are Dr. Walter Gilfilen (BA '57) of Michigan Christian College, Dr. Emmett Smith (BA '46) of Crowley's Ridge College, Dr. Keith Stotts (BA '55) of Ohio Valley College, Max Mowrer (BA '50) of Western Christian College and Dr. Clifton Ganus, Jr. (BA '43) of Harding College.

Six-year-old Stacey Bartholomew looks on as her father, Gary, the new president of York College, is greeted by well-wishers.

Drawing on his experience of 14 years as head of a college, Harding President Clifton Ganus Jr. advises Bartholomew regarding his future task at York. Ganus delivered the inaugural address on April 17 in York, Neb.

Leisure Time Finds Math Professor Repairing Cars

by Robert Love of the Searcy Citizen

You probably think that mathematics professors sit around in their spare time figuring out algebraic equations, plotting the axis of a series of numbers, calculating the time it takes a rocket to travel around the world 500 times at the speed of light, or wondering why Einstein didn't get to the unified field theory.

Wrong.

There is at least one mathematics professor who leaves the abstract world of numbers behind him when he leaves the classroom. Algebraic figures remain on the board and in the text when Harmon Brown heads for home.

For leisure, Brown paints automobiles, builds wood cabinets, works on TV sets, metronomes, quadraphonic sound systems, and helps his neighbors find out what end of an automobile the engine is in, for those who don't know.

Brown, 38, is a mathematics professor at Harding. He is a mild-mannered man with thick professorial glasses, a quick smile, a ready laugh, and an eagerness to learn about the changing universe that might exceed that of Aristotle.

Brown says he grew up in Michigan, but he came to college at Harding amassing enough credit in his four years there to get qualified for degrees in Mathematics, chemistry, English, and biology.

However, he took his degree in mathematics because "it was the most fun."

But now says Brown: "I probably would get my degree in biology."

Brown leaves the world of mathematics in the classroom and gets into the nitty gritty world of painting cars as a sideline to bring a little extra cash.

He says in the summer about 40 cars a month will come through his backyard which he uses as his paint and body shop.

He fixes dents, strips old paint, welds on missing or rusted parts, and charges about $5 an hour plus materials for his work, which he claims is "real good."

He takes pride in his work. And with the scrutiny of a mathematician and the eye of a good body man, he puts the finishing touches on cars of friends, associates, and a clientele he has built up over the last five years.

He is now working on a dent which ended up on the rear fender of his wife's car recently. He is also working on a 1952 Studebaker which has been around Searcy since that time, and which, he says, has had about 40 owners, some even twice; and he is painting a Toyota for an associate.

Once Harding mathematics professor Harmon Brown leaves the classroom each day, this is what he is likely to be found doing at his home in western Searcy . . . painting cars which, like his work in the field of math, he's also very efficient at. (Photo by Robert Love)

Brown says he can do a paint job, considering the weather since he paints outside, in about three days.

Brown is not only a paint and body man and professor, but he is a preacher to boot.

Before he came to Harding to teach five years ago, Brown had been preaching full-time in Princeton, Illinois.

His wife, Ellen, says that that was a time when Ph.D.s were a dime a dozen and driving cabs to make money.

Before preaching, Brown was finishing his Ph.D. in math at the University of Missouri in Rolla where he was also teaching full-time. He received a master's degree at Michigan State. Between B.S. and M.S. degrees, Brown taught junior high school in Bernie, Missouri.

There he subbed as the timer at baseball games, and drove the bus, teaching any subjects that other teachers could not attend and being a general do-it-all around the school.

One of the science courses Brown teaches at Harding is related to religion. It is called a "Christian's View of Science and Scripture."

"Four science teachers teach this course, which is required for all science majors," he says.

"We take the logical approach to the evolution theory. None of us are evolutionists, because we see the obvious flaws in that theory.

"We require students to read a great deal and we go really deep into science and the scriptures," he continues.

"We don't agree with all of the religion professors that the creation happened in seven 24-hour days," Brown says. "We attempt to approach it logically."

But aside from those duties, Brown is a man of varied talents. One of those is electronics.

Inside his house at 130 Western Hills, Brown proudly displays a quadraphonic sound system he built from a used Akai reel-to-reel tape recorder and speakers. On top of his wife's piano she uses for giving lessons is a homemade metronome. He just wanted to try to see if he could build one, he says.

Harmon has even tried his hand at building wood cabinets and has one under his belt. "This was my first and last attempt," he says. But from looking at it, one thinks that he is a pro.

Brown has also dabbled in repairing color TV sets, a profession he said he got interested in when his brother Jim, a teacher at Harding Academy, sold him a used TV set.

Although Harmon dabbles in many things, his real money-making hobby is paint and body repair.

He says he prides himself in doing real good work and so far, has gotten good business.

It's a far cry from mathematics and the world of abstractions.

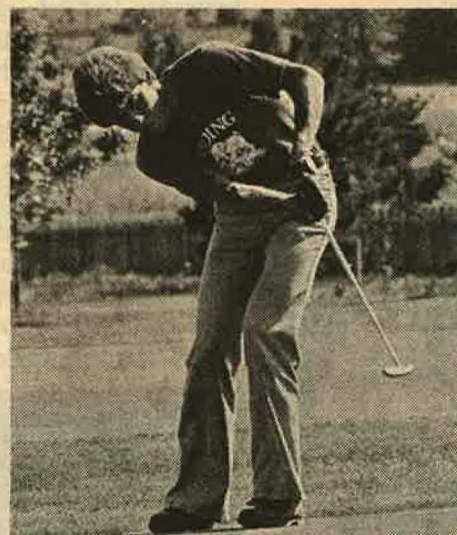

Golfers Claim Third In AIC Tournament

Posting their best finish ever, the Harding College Golf Team claimed third in the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference and second in the NAIA District 17 Tournament at the Longhills Country Club in Benton, Ark., May 3.

Sophomore Brent Taylor of Bartlesville, Okla., led the Bison contingent through the AIC competition with a 72.6 stroke average for the six 18-hole rounds. He was runner-up for medalist honors in the tournament, finishing just one stroke behind Mike Branson of Ouachita Baptist University who compiled a 72.4 average.

In the District 17 Tournament, which was the final two rounds of the AIC Championship series, David Padgett of North Little Rock, Ark., was the medalist for the Bisons with a two-day total of 148. He had rounds of 77 and a one-under-par 71 for that total.

"Brent was plagued with putting troubles in the final two rounds," Harding coach Phil Watkins said. "His integrity as a golfer was evident in the first round, though. He hit his ball into the deep woods on the fourth hole, and as he was addressing the ball, it accidentally rolled backward a tiny amount. The other golfers in his group were across the fairway, but Taylor immediately announced what had happened and added a stroke to his score. This stroke proved costly as

Taylor lost the conference medalist trophy by one stroke."

The AIC Golf Championship this season was determined by six 18-hole tournaments. Points were awarded to each team based upon its finish in each round of the Championship series.

Individual averages in the AIC series were David Padgett 77.4, Keith Goree 75.3, Charles Wicker 83.8, and Phil Garnett 82.0. The highest 18-hole total was dropped before averaging.

The final District 17 standings were Central Arkansas 596, followed by Harding 609, Hendrix 611, Ouachita 613, Southern Arkansas 614, Arkansas Tech 614, UA-Monticello 633, and Arkansas College 634.

Tennis Team Ranks Fourth

Closing out their Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference season with a 9-0 victory over Arkansas Tech University, the tennis team finished the year with a 6-3 league mark and fourth place in the AIC.

Ouachita Baptist University won the championship with a perfect 9-0 mark, followed by Southern Arkansas University 8-1, Hendrix College 7-2, Harding 6-3, University of Central Arkansas 5-4, Arkansas Tech University 4-5, University of Arkansas-Monticello 3-6, Arkansas College 2-7, Henderson State University 1-8, and College of the Ozarks 0-9.

"Ouachita is definitely on the top plateau, way above everybody else," Bison coach David Elliot said, "and then SAU is on the next plateau and they're way above everybody else except Ouachita. Hendrix and Harding are on the next plateau and we're pretty close."

The Bisons finished the season with a 13-8 overall mark.

Elliott awarded letters to Dave Delaware of Norcross, Ga., Scott Dawkins of Ketchikan, Alaska, Scott Carstens of Salina, Kan., Don Wood of Columbus, Miss., Dennis Sanders of Baytown, Texas, Eric Dawkins of Ketchikan, Alaska, and Bobby Ballenger of Corning, Ark.

Five Players Chosen For All-Star Team

Five Bison baseballers were named to the Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference All-Star team following completion of the 1979 season.

The five — catcher Mike Moody, pitcher David Stotemyer, third baseman Doug Cowden, first baseman Steve Ashcraft, and right-fielder Rich Katchur — were chosen to play for the North AIC All-Star Team.

The AIC had planned an All-Star clash featuring the North AIC All-Stars against the South AIC All-Stars, but bad weather forced its cancellation. Another all-star game is tentatively planned for next spring, according to Bison coach Dick Johnson, president of the AIC Baseball Coaches Association.

Moody, a sophomore from Texarkana, Texas, led the Bison batters with a tough .348 average, including four home runs and five doubles. Cowden, a senior from Hendersonville, Tenn., hit .282 to be the second leading Bison batter.

Other leading hitters for the Bisons were Steve Ashcraft of Crossett, Ark., (.258), Rich Katchur of Des Arc, Ark., (.261), and Wes Queen of Austin, Texas, (.226).

Plagued by bad weather throughout the season, the Bisons finished 2-12 in the AIC competition and 7-16 overall.

Junior Tom Sides of Flint Mich., led the Bisons pitching staff with a 3-2 season record.

Benjie Nall of Bay Minette, Ala., receives the Men's Intramural Athlete of the Year Award from intramural assistant Tommy Mitchell of Plano, Texas.

Barbara Barnes, director of Women's intramurals, presents the High Point Trophy to Paula Warnack of Hurst, Texas. Miss Warnack is a junior physical education major.

Intramural Program Names Top Athletes

Ten ladies and 11 men have received recognition for outstanding performances in the Intramural Athletics Program during the 1978-79 school year at Harding.

Individual recognition in the program is awarded not only on the basis of performance, but also spirit and sportsmanship.

Mrs. Barbara Barnes, director of the women's intramural program, presented the program's highest awards to Paula Warnack of Hurst, Texas, and Kristy Rollmann of Bartlesville, Okla.

Miss Warnack received the High Point Trophy, which is determined by both participation and success in the sports offered in the program. Miss Rollman received the women's Individual Sportsmanship Trophy.

Ten ladies earned letter jackets for their participation in the intramural athletics program. The ten included Miss Warnack, Miss Rollmann, Karen Blackman of Lilburn, Ga., Cindy Ireland of Judsonia, Ark., Patti Cameron of Hobbs, N.M., Charlotte McGee of Dallas, Texas, Pam Adams of Dallas, Jayma White of Michigan City, Ind., Lynn Watson of Marshall, Texas, and Jessica Moore of Paragould, Ark.

Two Bisons Set Record; Squad Finishes Fourth

Utilizing superior depth in four events, the Harding College track team claimed fourth in the recent Arkansas Intercollegiate Conference Track and Field Championships at Alumni Field.

Setting a fast pace throughout the race, senior captain Phil Hostetler of Topeka, Ind., ran an AIC record-setting 15:02.71 to win the 5,000-meter run. He broke the old record of 15:06.72, which was set by Mark Segovis of the University of Central Arkansas in 1977, by four seconds.

Hostetler also holds the Harding school record in the 5,000-meters with a time of 14:58.1, which he set in the Memphis State Invitational this year.

Sophomore Mike Lynch of Bevin, Texas, claimed the other conference mark for the Bisons. Lynch vaulted 16-0 to win the pole vault competition, and break the old mark of 15-5 in the process. The old record was set by Jim Rankin of Ouachita Baptist University in 1977.

In the 5,000-meter run, teammates John McAlister and Carter Lambert joined Hostetler in placing for the Bisons. McAlister, a sophomore from Temple Hills, Md., claimed third place with a 15:13.83 clocking while Lambert, a sophomore from Pearl, Miss., took fourth in 15:14.46.

the Bisons were junior Perry Fraley of Scottsdale, Ariz., and freshman Kevin Lay of St. Louis, Mo. Fraley finished second in the competition with a jump of 15-6 while Lay tied for fifth with a vault of 14-0.

The Bisons also recorded two finalists in the high jump. Junior Bruce Gaither of Conway, Ark., took third with a jump of 6-6 while teammate Bill Duff finished in a tie for fourth with a leap of 6-4.

Randy Jackson of Springdale, Ark., and McAlister both placed in the 1500-meter run to provide more points for the Bison cause. Jackson finished second with a 3:52.61 clocking while McAlister claimed fourth with a time of 3:57.17.

The Bisons also recorded solo finishers in both the triple jump and the 800-meter run. Senior Don Thurman of Germantown, Md., took fifth in the triple jump with a leap of 47-10. Sophomore Stan Burnette of Jefferson, Ga., placed fifth in the 800-meter run.
